Roosevelt Aids Here to Steer Party

EVERYTHING SET FOR THIRD TERM DRAFT PROGRAM

Acceptance Speech Plans Ready.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Mr. Roosevelt will run and will accept his renomination formally after the acceptance speech of Wendell Willkie, the Republican candidate.

This was the intelligence that flashed thru Democratic circles yesterday following the arrival in Chicago of the President's liaison officers to establish remote control by the White House of the approaching Democratic national convention.

Three Agents of President.

The liaison body is composed of the following:

Secretary of Commerce Harry Hopkins, who lives at the White House and is the President's closest adviser.

Senator James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, personal spokesman of the President in the senate and a vice presidential possibility.

Frank Walker of New York, who has served the President in numerous capacities, official and unofficial, during the last seven years and who is reputed to be Mr. Roosevelt's choice for a successor to James A. Farley as chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Private Line to White House.

By a private telephone line between Chicago and the White House these liaison officers will keep the President informed of what is going on in and about the convention and will receive and transmit his instructions. Everything is all set for a well bossed convention to carry out the program of drafting the President for a third term, adopting the platform he has approved and nominating his choice for Vice President.

The arrival of the President's close representatives touched off a display of enthusiasm for the renomination of the President that so far had been conspicuously lacking at national committee headquarters. Messrs. Hopkins, Byrnes, and Walker proclaimed the forthcoming renomination of the President a popular and spontaneous demonstration of the overwhelming conviction of the country that Mr. Roosevelt should be kept on the job to guard the national interest in a time of stress.

Parries 3d Term Questions.

The report that Mr. Roosevelt will not come to Chicago to accept renomination but will accept, probably at Hyde Park, after the Willkie acceptance at Elwood, Ind., was partly confirmed at the White House press conference. Mr. Roosevelt said he would not go to Chicago to attend the convention. His intentions as to his acceptance speech were not divulged, for again he parried all questions relating to the third term.

Mr. Roosevelt departed from custom when he flew to the Chicago convention in 1932 and accepted his first nomination before that body adjourned sine die. Again in 1936 he went to Philadelphia and accepted renomination following the close of the convention.

This time he apparently is intent upon having the last word after his redoubtable opponent, Mr. Willkie, shall have defined his attitude on public questions and interpreted the Republican platform. It was for similar strategic reasons that the President manuevered the Republicans into holding their convention first so that the Democrats might have a target to shoot at in framing their platform and nominating their ticket. The theory was that if the Republicans chose a weak candidate Mr. Roosevelt would feel it unnecessary for him to run in order to assure his party of victory.

Farley Declines to Predict.

At a press conference National Chairman Farley declined to make his customary prediction of the states the Democrats will carry. Four years ago he predicted all but Maine and Vermont, a prediction fulfilled. This time he said it is too early for prediction.

Mr. Farley, who is vigorously opposed to departure from the two term custom, was asked if he would "take a walk" from the ticket if Mr.

Pick Chicago for Willkie's Headquarters

Wendell L. Willkie's Republican campaign for the presidency will be directed from headquarters at 120 South La Salle street, Charles B. Goodspeed, treasurer of the national committee, announced yesterday.

John D. M. Hamilton, former chairman and now executive director of the national committee, will head the offices here. Hamilton looked over the suite with Goodspeed yesterday and then returned by plane to Washington, D. C. He and a part of the headquarters staff will move to Chicago early next week to start the campaign machinery rolling.

Eastern Office Planned.

Altho campaign direction will radiate from the Chicago headquarters, an eastern office is expected to be established, probably in New York, Goodspeed said. This plan will be similar to the one that operated during the Republican campaign in 1936, except that the Chicago offices were then known as western headquarters.

A director for the eastern office has not been named, but Sam F. Pryor, Connecticut national committeeman, has been mentioned for the post. Pryor was active in Willkie's behalf during the Philadelphia convention.

Martin Busy in Capital.

Congressman Joseph W. Martin Jr., of Massachusetts, chairman of the national committee and minority leader of the house, will be kept busy in Washington until congress adjourns. What time Congressman Martin will have to devote to the campaign machinery will likely be spent in the eastern states.

Once Hamilton is installed in the Chicago offices, the various division heads are expected to be announced and organization completed.

ENGLAND SEEKS MOTORCYCLES AS AID AGAINST FOE

LONDON, July 12 (AP).—The British war office appealed to private owners for several thousands of motorcycles and 500 motorcycles with sidecars immediately, presumably to assure military communications in the event ordinary communication lines are cut by a German invasion.

Sir John Anderson, the home secretary, banned aliens from employment in any defense area, in munitions industries, in gas, water, electric, and transport enterprises, and in welfare organizations associated with the fighting forces.

NAZI TIME VEXES FRENCH; DISLIKE 8 O'CLOCK CURFEW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CLERMONT - FERRAND, France, July 12.—Getting off the streets at 8 o'clock sun time, long before darkness has fallen, is one unpleasant aspect of living in French territory occupied by the Germans.

Those who remain out of doors after that time risk arrest by Nazi troops patroling the streets.

When the Nazi troops invaded France, they did not change their watches to conform with French time. They still operate on Berlin time, which is one hour ahead of the French daylight saving time and two hours ahead of French sun time.

A German order last week-end required Frenchmen in the occupied provinces to set their watches and clocks ahead. In consequence, when it is legally 10 o'clock it is only 8 o'clock by sun time.

MR. UPSIDE DOWN EARS STOPS THE SHOW—BRIEFLY

Lieut. Kyran Phelan and his detective squads yesterday started to Soldiers' field to rehearse their battle with "gunmen" for the Police and Fire Thrill show to be held there tomorrow afternoon. But they weren't at the field when the rehearsal was called. They were out capturing a real gunman.

The detectives were just leaving their headquarters when word came that James [Upside Down Ears] Kelly was hiding in a third floor apartment at 2442 Harrison street. Kelly is a parolee from Pontiac prison wanted for 100 Chicago robberies and a California shooting.

The detectives surrounded the building, warned by Phelan that Kelly was a dangerous man. With drawn guns they went in and seized him. In his pocket was a bullet with which he had been shot in a holdup. He explained that he is called Upside Down Ears because his ears look as if they were upside down.

2 U. S. Ships Deliver Food to Martinique

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

FORT DE FRANCE, Martinique, July 11 [Delayed].—The United States today steered two supply ships into the harbor of Fort de France, where nine French warships lay at anchor beneath the big guns at Negro point and shielded by submarine net and mine fields. Outside the harbor British cruisers are prowling.

On orders from Washington, D. C., two steamers, believed to be the Point Caleta and the Salinas, took cargoes of food into the port. They were the first ships to enter the harbor since the collapse of France.

The French are frankly jittery, as one of their large cruisers, two smaller ones, an aircraft carrier, four destroyers, and a patrol vessel await developments at Martinique, while farther north, at Guadeloupe, a large French warship and her British counterpart are eying each other.

U. S. Warships on Guard.

Meanwhile a covey of United States destroyers is poised for a dash to the scene of any action from its anchorage in the harbor of St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands.

The French have turned Martinique into a virtual state of siege, barring all ships, visitors, and airplanes. Only one Pan-American plane a week is permitted to land.

A close inspection of the anchored French squadron gave no evidence that the planes on the aircraft carrier Bearn are to be used in any action that may develop. Her flight deck is packed with dismantled planes which could not take to the air.

Near the Bearn rides the heavy minelaying cruiser Emile Bertain. With her heavy guns she seems to dominate the whole harbor. The other warships are clustered about these two, and six big flying boats are moored near their hangar.

Believe Gold Aboard.

Great secrecy prevails. The Emile Bertain is supposed to be loaded with a billion dollars' worth of gold, which originally was intended to buy war supplies for France. It is said the Petain government wants it back to turn over to Germany.

It is felt that the present situation cannot continue indefinitely. The town is seriously short of food, business is halted, and the native population is restive. It is argued also that Britain cannot afford to keep such a strong squadron immobilized much longer, when it is so urgently needed in European waters.

GERMAN PLANES POUR BOMBS ON ALL OF BRITAIN

Strike Savage Blows at Scotland.

LONDON, July 13, Saturday (AP).—German bombers carried their blasting attacks on Great Britain into southwest England and Wales last night after striking deadly blows yesterday at industrial Scotland.

The ministry of home security reported early today that German aircraft dropped bombs last night "on places in southwest England and in Wales."

"Little damage was caused and casualties are believed to have been slight," the ministry reported.

Planes Over Northeast Coast.

"Some persons were killed and some houses damaged" by German air raids during the night in northeast England, Scotland, and Wales, the air ministry announced.

The Germans yesterday smashed again, as they have done day after day, at British shipping on the east and south coasts.

The most savage blows were aimed in northeast Scotland, where at least 10 persons were reported killed.

Raids on Scotland went on into the night. The Germans, it was reported, dropped high explosive and incendiary bombs in southeast and southwest Scotland and incendiary bombs in northeast Scotland.

A lone raider flying over a southwest Scottish area dropped bombs, wrecking a building and causing a number of casualties.

These attacks may have been directed from German bases in Stavanger, Norway, at which British airmen have been pounding for weeks.

Eleven Raiders Shot Down.

Eleven of the raiders officially were reported to have been shot down. Two British planes were missing.

An air ministry communique thus summarized the destruction of these Nazi craft, and illustrated how far they had ranged over Britain:

Six shot down while they were attacking a convoy off the southeast coast; one sent to earth in flames on the outskirts of a Scottish port; three off the southeast coast; one shot down into the sea by coastal aircraft.

At the same time, however, the loss of three other British planes in a heavy assault Thursday night on German munitions works, airdromes, blast furnaces, and other objectives was acknowledged.

Hint Higher Death Toll.

By these new raids in Scottish areas, a rough outline of the Nazi program seemed to emerge: A series of rotating attacks designed to hit every so often every section of the British Isles.

The Scottish fatalities were described ominously in the phrase "as far as is known," and it was clear that the list of the dead and injured there might be much higher.

How many other casualties had occurred on the east, southeast and southern coasts was not permitted to be published.

Unofficial tabulations of the slain in raids from June 18 up to last evening showed 167 deaths.

German Plane Downed.

The raid on northeast Scotland produced one aftermath of some satisfaction to the British. It was declared that the German raider which had dropped bombs "in various parts" of a town there had been headed off by British fighter planes and shot down.

The day's melancholy visitations began in early morning with the arrival of a German squadron over the southwest coast.

The Nazis dropped six bombs in the space of half a minute. One smashed a children's playground.

So widespread were the combined major attacks of the day—on Scotland, on the south and southeast coasts—that it appeared they were developing in coördination from two directions—from the Scandinavian peninsula and from nearby France.

Patrol Yacht Sunk.

The admiralty disclosed that the British patrol yacht Warrior 2d was sunk by enemy bombing in the English channel Thursday with the loss of one seaman.

An amplified statement of what had happened in Thursday night's British continental raids was made in a bulletin which declared that Rotterdam's principal airport at Waalhaven was bombed.

Bombs were said to have struck the runways and exploded among the airport buildings at Schipol airdrome on the outskirts of Amsterdam, and more than 100 high explosive bombs were dropped on the airdrome at Haamstaade on the island Schouwen.

PETAIN, USING ROYAL 'WE,' PICKS DICTATOR AIDS

VICHY, France, July 12 (AP).—[By telephone to Berne]—Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, using the kingly "we," tonight named the cabinet to help him rule authoritarian France and chose Pierre Laval, canny rightist and long time apostle of friendship with dictators, as his right hand man and ultimate successor.

Twelve full ministers—including Petain—were appointed, plus three defense secretares of state. The new cabinet meets tomorrow.

Laval, as vice premier, his post in the last "defeat cabinet," heads the list. Gen. Maxime Weygand, former allied generalissimo and, Adrien Marquet keep their posts of national defense and minister of the interior, respectively.

Three Key Advisers.

These three will be the key advisors of the 84 year old "hero of Verdun," it is expected.

Gen. Louis Colson, chief of staff of the army in republican France, is secretary of state for war; Admiral Jean Darlan, secretary of state for the navy, and Gen. Bertrand Pujo, secretary of state in charge of aviation.

The latter three were not given the full ministries which they held in the old Petain cabinet, and will be answerable now to Gen. Weygand.

Refers to Self as "We."

A decree which will appear tomorrow in the official journal referring to Laval's right of succession as chief of state, says:

"If for any cause whatsoever before the nation ratifies the new constition we [Petain] are impeded from exercising the sanctions of chief of state, Pierre Laval, vice president of the council of ministers, will assume them in full right.

"In case Laval is impeded for any reason whatsoever from assuming these functions, he in turn will be replaced by persons designated by a majority of seven votes of the council of ministers.

"Until this person's investiture his functions would be exercised by the council of ministers."

Takes Lebrun's Place.

Petain's use of the plural pronoun "we" was manifested in the first communique he signed after taking President Albert Lebrun's place as head of the French nation.

Three decrees issued today, one defining his successive powers in the new governmental system, all begin, "We, Philippe Petain, marshal of France, chief of the French state."

The ministry, created for youth and family, emphasized the importance attached by Petain to the future training of the nation's youth—burdened by war's aftermath and defeat. Jean Ybarnegaray, minister of this new post, is a rightist who has been associated with Col. François de la Rocque's Fascist Croix de Feu [Cross of Fre] party.

France, under Petain, will revert to the old provincial system of pre-Republican France with provincial governors wielding local power under the cabinet's direction.

A communique published thru Havas, French news service, said Petain would not transfer the seat of his government to the Paris region unless he got "all necessary guarantees assuring its complete independence."

LONDON TO HALT SUPPLIES FROM BURMA TO CHINA

Meets Tokio's Plea to Stop War Aid.

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Japan, July 13 [Saturday].—A satisfactory arrangement has been reached between Great Britain and Japan for settlement of the dispute regarding the transportation of war supplies over the Burma road to China.

Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, British ambassador, informed Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita yesterday that the British government accepts the Japanese demands in principle.

According to the terms of the agreement, which will be announced on Monday, Britain agrees to prohibit the transportation of arms, ammunition, trucks, and gasoline thru Yunnan and the Burma route and in case of necessity agrees to permit the Japanese consular authorities at Rangoon to investigate the movement of supplies.

SEE LITTLE CHANGE

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 12.—Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, British ambassador negotiating with the Japanese government in Tokio, has received instructions enabling him to agree to restriction of certain classes of goods destined to China, it was announced here tonight.

Negotiation of Japanese demands that the Burma road and Hongkong be closed to transit of war materials to China was resumed after Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita characterized the first British reply early this week as unsatisfactory and threatened strong counteraction.

The practical effect of the arrangement suggested here, it was said, probably would not be very great, since this is the rainy season in Burma when road traffic is restricted.

Tells Chinese Envoy.

The Daily Telegraph said that Foreign Minister Viscount Halifax had explained the British position to the Chinese ambassador in London, Quo Tai-chi. He is said to have told him that "certain inexorable new factors have entered into the world situation since the capitulation of France."

What effect this will have on China was not mentioned, but it was reaffirmed here that "there is, in any case, no intention on the British side to go back on undertakings entered into to give such facilities as lie in the British power to assist China in her defense against aggression."

British admiralty officials tonight said they knew nothing about the report Japanese warships had fired on two British vessels off the central China coast. Inquirers were assured this was not a "strategic" denial.

Block French Inlet.

HONGKONG, July 12 (AP).—The Japanese navy dispatched a dozen officers to Kwangchowan, French-leased port midway between Hongkong and French Indo-China, today to block the remaining French-controlled inlet for trade destined for China.

The Japanese said they were establishing the Kwangchowan contraband control in accordance with the agreement which last week placed Japanese inspectors at five key points in Indo-China in order to sever China's most important economic lifeline. Kwangchowan is connected with the Chinese hinterland by roads and waterways, and with Indo-China by regular ship services.

COMPANY COMING AND ARMY NEEDS EXTRA BLANKETS!

Washington, D. C., July 12 (AP).—The war department is attempting to meet the problem of providing such supplies and equipment as uniforms, overcoats, and blankets should mass training be undertaken this fall or winter.

Makeshifts of various kinds are under study to meet a shortage, which, by officials' estimates, would require months to remedy.

The army's reserves of clothing and blankets were almost completely exhausted on May 1, congress was told, largely because world war reserves were turned over to the CCC and the Mississippi flood refugees. Woolen cloth contracts totaling more than $25,000,000 were placed last month, but are not expected to be completed for six months or more.

3 WHITE HOUSE AGENTS ARRIVE TO STEER PARTY

Everything Set to Draft President Roosevelt.

Roosevelt is renominated for a third term.

"I am a Democrat," he replied.

Opposition to the renomination of the President was far from silenced by the preparations to start the Roosevelt steam roller thru the Chicago Stadium. E. B. Germany, manager of the Garner candidacy, reiterated that the name of the vice president will be placed in nomination whether Mr. Roosevelt does or does not run. He continued to boom Garner as the only candidate whose nomination would halt the defection of millions of conservative Democrats to support of Willkie. Mr. Garner himself will not attend the convention.

Senator Bennett Champ Clark, a leading opponent of the third term, arrived on the scene, flinging at the reporters the single remark that "I'm not bolting but I'm for Garner."

National Chairman Farley reiterat- that his position is unchanged from what it was when he said his name would be presented to the convention, regardless of other candidacies. Senator Carter Glass of Virginia is to make the Farley nominating speech.

Monroe Sweetland, Oregon alternate, announced that Senator Robert M. LaFollette [Prog., Wis.] had asked that his name be not submitted for the vice presidential nomination. Oregon in its primary election instructed its delegation for Roosevelt and LaFollette. Sweetland said this request from the senator released the Oregon delegates, many of whom favor Justice William O. Douglas of the Supreme court for second place on the ticket.

Wheeler Says No Third Party.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana also arrived and established himself at his headquarters in the Congress hotel. He said his name will be presented to the convention if the President shall not have indicated he will run before Montana is reached on the roll call. He still says he does not believe the President will run.

The Montana senator also said that there will be no third party such as he suggested if the platform contains a war plank based on the President's statement in his special message to congress that our men will not be sent to fight in Europe.

Senator Wheeler appeared to raise the question whether the renomination of the President would be a guarantee of noninvolvement in foreign war.

Must Stay Out of War.

"The United States is the last great democracy, and the stronghold of liberty, Christianity, and civilization," he said. "We may always be thus—if we remain free, tolerant, democratic, and at peace. War—the deadly enemy of liberty and democracy—rages in Europe and in Asia. We know something of its cost. We are resolved to avoid it—we are resolved to remain at peace—and to escape bloody conflict.

"We can and must avoid participation in this war. To do so we must, first, be sure that the Democratic presidential nominee is one whose record shows beyond doubt that he will carry out this pledge.

"Secondly, we must not be misled by the interventionists. Intervention means war for us just as surely as the sun will rise tomorrow morning. And the cost of another war for us can no longer be measured in dollars or cents or even human misery or death and destruction.

Who Can Measure Costs?

"Who can measure the economic and social losses incurred by war? Forget, if you can, the 45 billion dollars cost of the war that was going to make the world safe for democracy; forget, if you can, the 120,000 American boys who were killed; forget, if you can, the 250,000 American boys, many of whom still lie in narrow cots in hospitals that dot our country, men who lie row on row, floor on floor, alive in body but dead in mind; forget, if you can, the hate and brutality and the retrogression of civilization that war brings to the human race; forget, if you can, that the flower of our country, those upon whom we builded our hopes, are gone. How many Edisons, Jeffersons, and Lincolns never lived to serve humanity and their country?

"And yet today we are marching down the same road that we traveled in 1916 and 1917—only faster and to more certain destruction. The signs are the same—some of the posts have been repainted in new colors and with more modern catch-phrases—but they differ in no respect from what we heard 24 years ago.

Remember the Last War.

"Today again, we hear that grimly familiar chant—'The allies are fighting our battle—the allies are paying with blood—we would pay only with dollars.' Again we are told that this is a war to save democracy and Christianity and civilization. How tragically ironic that phrase is to those of us who remember the purposes and the results of the last war!"

Boy, 15, Held as Slayer of Grandparents on Farm

Fayetteville, Ark., July 12 (AP).—Gerald Stewart, 15 year old country boy, was held today as the slayer of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Stewart, both shot in the back yesterday while they worked on their farm near here. Sheriff Herbert Lewis said Gerald admitted the slaying, but would not say why he did it. Stewart was 74 years old and his wife 71.

CONSCRIPT BILL LASHED BEFORE PLANK MAKERS

Measure Perils Freedom, Democrats Told.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Opposition to the military conscription bill now before congress was voiced at last night's open hearings of the Democratic resolutions committee, which is preparing the party platform.

Frederick J. Libby of the National Council for Prevention of War told the platform makers that the bill by Senator Edward R. Burke [D., Neb.] to require more than 40 million men to register for military training would mean regimentation of Americans and would attack free rights.

The Burke bill was introduced at the request of the Military Training Camps association. It originally was not an administration measure, altho President Roosevelt has indorsed its principle and the war and navy departments did likewise yesterday. With modifications, it may be used as the basis of the administration conscription measure.

Cites Terms of Bill.

Libby said the bill would provide for calling men between the ages of 21 and 45 for duty in the army and navy.

"This bill would fill the jails and prisons from coast to coast not only with young men but also with church pastors," he said, "for it exempts only certain conscientious objectors.

"This conscription bill is a long step toward regimentation of our people. It is the same kind of thing which in Europe has undermined the liberties of all labor unions and all people. It is to make regimented, obedient men out of free men. It is an attack on the fundamental rights of American people. And, let me ask, where are we going to get military instruction for 40 million men?"

The committee will resume public hearings today, with a declaration from Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, chairman, that it will hear all who wish to speak.

Defense Plank Based on Pledge.

As the sessions opened the outlook was that the foreign defense plank will be modeled upon the President's pledge to congress that American troops will not be sent to Europe's wars.

First to appear before the platform builders was Philip Murray, vice president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations and head of the Steel Workers' Organizing committee. He is a delegate-at-large from Pennsylvania. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, is to appear later.

Murray spoke against President Roosevelt's compulsory service scheme to draft youth for industrial labor and declared that the New Deal government had taken no steps to end unemployment, which he described as America's greatest evil.

Labor Violations Charged.

He charged that the corporation of which Wendell Willkie was president had been found guilty of violating the Wagner labor relations act the day Willkie was nominated for president by the Republican national convention in Philadelphia. [This later was identified by C. I. O. headquarters as the Consumers Power company, a subsidiary of Commonwealth and Southern corporation.] Murray also charged that the National Steel corporation, which is headed by E. T. Weir, chairman of the Republican national finance committee, was found guilty recently of similar violations.

Murray expressed the same opposition to the New Deal proposal of conscription of youth for industry as did John L. Lewis, head of the C. I. O., before the Republican resolutions committee in Philadelphia.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, a member of the resolutions committee, asked Murray whether he favored such conscription.

Conscription Plan Opposed.

"Absolutely not," answered Murray. "I don't think that sort of program is necessary in a country such as ours. We are for a special educational and training program for young men and women and for those displaced by technological advances in American industries. But this should be voluntary."

"We have vocational guidance in Helena, Mont.," said Senator Wheeler.

"Yes," replied Murray, "and I think a system of voluntary training would be far more wholesome than any drafting in a country such as ours."

"I don't know of a single step taken by the federal government to stop unemployment," he said.

"What would you suggest to solve the unemployment problem?" asked Mayor Kelly, Illinois member of the committee.

Labor-Industry Parleys Urged.

"I have no panacea," replied Murray, "but I'd like an opportunity for labor to meet with leaders in industry and business to work on a plan.

"I've often wondered," Murray added, shaking a finger at a group of senators at the end of the table, "why some of you fellows in congress haven't introduced a bill to bring about a conference of labor, industry, and business. I see more danger from a continuance of the evil of unemployment than from menaces overseas."

"How about the division in the ranks of labor?" asked Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada.

"There is not so much disunity in the ranks of labor," answered Murray. "The Democratic platform should contain a statement designed to establish confidence that you are going to do something about unemployment—and not just talk about it."

Mrs. Helen Hunt West spoke in support of a plank guaranteeing equal rights to men and women, which is in the Republican platform. Miss Agnes Nestor of the National Women's Trade Union league argued against such a plank. She argued it would destroy such laws as the women's 8 hour law and the minimum wage law for women.

Others who appeared were Mrs. Martha Bradley of the Illinois Council of Professional and Business Women, Dr. John F. B. Carruthers of the National Small Business Research bureau, Inc., and Dr. Harold Hillenbrand of the American Dental association.

TEXAS OIL MAN URGES DEMOCRATS TO PICK WILLKIE AS CANDIDATE

Guy Warren.

Guy Warren, an oil man from Corpus Christi, Tex., flew into Chicago yesterday with the flabbergasting proposition that Democratic convention delegates nominate Wendell L. Willkie for President.

"I am a Democrat, too," Warren said as he opened headquarters for his group—the "nominate Willkie Democrats"—in the Palmer House. "I never voted the Republican ticket in my life, and I don't want to. But Willkie is one of the best Democrats in the country and the Republicans stole him away from us. We ought to go and get him back."

Warren, who is vice president of the Renwar Oil company, said he was positive Willkie's name would be placed in nomination, but refused to disclose the nominator's name.

"I don't know Willkie," he said. "I've seen his pictures in the papers and the movies and that's the closest I've come to him. But he has taken the imagination of the American people and he's the man who can unite the people. We can't afford to have them divided at a time like this. We started this movement in Dallas eight days ago and the reply has been country-wide. A united people can do more for the defense of this country than 50 billion dollars."

Badge to be worn by the more than 1,800 persons who will represent their states in Democratic national convention.

PARTY LEADERS WILL BE KELLY DINNER GUESTS

Party leaders attending the Democratic national convention will be entertained at a dinner tomorrow night in the Blackstone hotel. Mayor Kelly will be the host. Among those who have accepted invitations are:

Governors Carl E. Bailey, Arkansas; Frank M. Dixon, Alabama; Homer A. Holt, West Virginia; Keen Johnson, Kentucky; Paul B. Johnson, Mississippi; R. T. Jones, Arizona; Burnet R. Maybank, South Carolina; John E. Miles, New Mexico, and John Moses, North Dakota.

United States Senators James F. Byrnes, South Carolina; Allen J. Ellender, Louisiana; Joseph F. Guffey, Pennsylvania; Carl A. Hatch, New Mexico; Clyde L. Herring, Iowa; Josh Lee, Oklahoma; Francis T. Maloney, Connecticut; James M. Mead, New York, and Sherman Minton, Indiana.

Congressmen Harry P. Beam, John C. Martin, Kent E. Keller, and Arthur W. Mitchell, Illinois; Clarence Cannon, Missouri; John J. Dempsey, New Mexico; James H. Fay, New York; Thomas A. Flaherty, Massachusetts; Michael J. Kirwan, Ohio.

National Committeemen Wirt G. Bowman, Arizona; Charles E. Broughton, Wisconsin, and Edward H. Crump, Tennessee, and Secretary Harold L. Ickes, Howard O. Hunter, and Mrs. John Catlett, Oklahoma.

MEET THE CHIEFS WHO OIL GEARS OF CONVENTION

Here Are the Leaders, from Chairman Down.

Behind the machinery of the Democratic national convention are fourteen national and local leaders of the party. Four are from Chicago and most of the others are from the east. The leaders are:

James A. Farley, chairman of the national committee and postmaster general, who will call the convention to order Monday. The national committee runs the convention. Farley has been its chairman for eight years. Last night over a radio network he praised the accomplishments of the New Deal.

Col. Edwin A. Halsey, secretary of the United States senate and sergeant at arms of Democratic conventions since 1928. Col Halsey and Cliff H. Scott, Little Rock, Ark., chief doorkeeper, will direct 300 ushers and the policemen assigned to the stadium.

Speaker William B. Bankhead of the house of representatives, temporary chairman. The speaker, who has represented an Alabama district at Washington for almost 25 years, will deliver the keynote address, sounding the Democratic tocsin and laying down the challenge to the Republicans.

Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, majority leader of the senate and permanent chairman. When the convention swings into high gear, Barkley, as wielder of the gavel, will be its most powerful member.

Charles Michelson, publicity director for the national committee. A former Chicago and New York newspaper man with a wide reputation for political sagacity. Michelson is a brother of the late Prof. A. A. Michelson, University of Chicago physicist. He will have the job of publicizing the ticket when it is named.

Mayor Kelly, host to the convention and reputedly one of the managers of the Roosevelt program for the meeting. In addition to performing the duties incumbent on these assignments, the mayor also will represent Illinois on the platform committee.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, national committeewoman for Illinois and hostess to the women attending the convention. Mrs. Conkey has been committeewoman since 1928.

Robert J. Dunham, president of the Chicago Park district, who underwrote Chicago's bid for the convention by guaranteeing $125,000 for it's operation.

Senator James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, who is believed to carry special instructions from President Roosevelt to the convention leaders.

Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins, another of the Roosevelt managers on the scene. Formerly Works Progress administrator, Hopkins is one of the President's closest collaborators.

Oliver A. Quayle Jr., treasurer of the national committee and Chairman Farley's right hand man.

Frank C. Walker, close friend of the President, who may succeed Farley as chairman of the national committee.

Lawrence W. [Chip] Robert, secretary of the national committee, and former assistant secretary of the treasury.

Thomas Garry, local Democratic leader and generalissimo of the forces who made the Stadium ready for the convention.

WOMEN GATHER FOR CONVENTION WORK, NOT PLAY

Frivolity Is Ruled Out of Official Program.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Democratic women, already gathering here for next week's quadrennial fray, are full of grim purpose.

The purpose, as outlined yesterday by Mrs. Thomas McAllister, director of the women's division of the Democratic national committee, is on the "We shall not play!" line of mental therapy. Democratic women, she said, are to whet their noses on the old political grindstone from the minute they get here, and will devote no time at all to light thinking or even a mild frolic.

There will be a few convivial gatherings at mealtime, of course, Mrs. McAllister admitted, but social activity in general is being subordinated to Accomplishment.

Light Chatter Is Banned.

Consider, for example, the pre-convention dinner in the Palmer House tomorrow night for the 569 women delegates and alternates. Will the women down their food with light chatter? No. In the words of Mrs. McAllister, "All will be devoted to suggestions for the platform."

Likewise with the luncheon Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, official hostess and Democratic committeewoman from Illinois, is giving in the Palmer House Sunday for her sister committeewomen. Mrs. Conkey likes to think it will be gay, but Mrs. McAllister says it will be happily grim. Even at a breakfast given Tuesday by the Federation of Illinois Women's Democratic clubs, there will be no surcease from seriousness. Secretary of Labor Perkins will speak.

Before the "We Shall Not Play" motif was interposed, a fashion show had been planned. It still is being planned for 4 p. m. Monday at Marshall Field & Co., and some 2,000 good, solid Democratic women are expected. But it no longer is listed on the official program. Too flippant.

Gain in Women Delegates.

Otherwise, all seems to be elation. Mrs. McAllister announces 569 women delegates and alternates—a gain of 19 over 1936. The 202 women delegates, however, do not mean 202 votes, for many Democratic votes are split. One state, Mrs. McAllister said, has 30 delegates but only two votes. She withheld its name on the ground that "It wouldn't be fair to tell it."

But the women are breaking at least one precedent, and maybe more. Congresswoman Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, the first Democratic woman elected to congress and author-backer of the minimum wage-hour legislation, heads the New Jersey delegation. She is the first woman to hold such a chairmanship.

Mrs. Norton was to have presided today at the initial meeting of the women's advisory committee to the 1940 platform, but she wired Mrs. McAllister late yesterday that her arrival here will be delayed because of a throat infection. Miss Josephine Roche, assistant secretary of the treasury from 1934 to 1937 and now chairman of a committee to coordinate federal health and welfare activities, will preside in her stead.

Pride of Women's Division.

The committee is the pride of the women's division. It is composed of 18 representative Democratic women, most of them with backgrounds of brilliant achievement. Their duty now is to make suggestions reflecting women's opinion on political, social, and economic issues. In 1936, when the committee first functioned, it asked the platform committee for special consideration on eight points. Many of its recommendations later appeared in the 1936 platform.

More important, still, is the great hope now that women may have equal representation with men on the platform committee itself. Monday will tell, for practically the first resolution at the opening session will be one asking that the two committee members from each state or territory be "of opposite sex."

If this passes, the feminine Democratic hat will be as full of feathers as a turkey's tail. Utah, which sends 9 women delegates out of its total of 16, is so confident of its passage that it already has selected Mrs. James H. Wolfe, wife of a Utah Supreme court justice, as its lady member.

W-G-N PREVIEWS THE CONVENTION ISSUES TONIGHT

Chairman Farley Will Review Sessions.

A radio preview of the Democratic national convention, which opens Monday, will be broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual system from 9:35 to 10 o'clock tonight. Among the speakers will be Postmaster General James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, who will be a commentator for W-G-N and the Mutual network on each night of the convention.

Mr. Farley will speak from a broadcasting booth in the Chicago Stadium at the conclusion of each session. He will sum up the high spots of the day's proceedings and discuss the major events of the next day's program.

Will Discuss Chief Issues.

At the convention preview program tonight members of the W-G-N-Mutual convention staff and Democratic leaders will discuss the chief issues confronting the convention. In addition to Chairman Farley, party speakers will be Senator Scott Lucas of Illinois and Col. Edwin A. Halsey, sergeant at arms of the convention and secretary of the United States senate.

Representing the broadcasting staff of W-G-N-Mutual will be Quin Ryan, chief announcer for the convention broadcasts; Fulton Lewis Jr. of the Washington staff of Mutual, and Arthur Sears Henning, head of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Washington bureau.

The broadcast will originate from Mutual's convention headquarters in the Stevens hotel.

Forum Tomorrow Night.

W-G-N-Mutual also will present a discussion of the convention at 11:15 tomorrow night when the American Forum of the Air is aired under the direction of Theodore Granik. Six newspaper writers will be presented, along with Mr. Farley, who will speak briefly.

The forum speakers: William Allen White, veteran Kansas editor; Ulrich Bell, Louisville Courier-Journal; Doris Fleeson, New York Daily News; Frank Kent, Baltimore Sun; Joseph Driscoll, New York Herald-Tribune; Ernest K. Lindley, Washington Post.

Details of W-G-N-Mutual's convention broadcasting plans will be announced in tomorrow's TRIBUNE. As during the Republican convention, all of W-G-N's regularly scheduled broadcasts will be subject to cancellation so the station may carry the convention proceedings.

35,000 Made Homeless by Cloudburst in Corea

TOKIO, July 12 (AP).—The newspaper Yomiuri reported today that 52 persons had been drowned, 39 injured and 35,000 made homeless in floods following a cloudburst in Corea.

FORMER STATE G. O. P. HEAD IS CHOSEN CHIEF OF SPEAKERS' BUREAU

Ben L. Berve, chairman of the state Republican committee, yesterday announced the appointment of John F. Tyrrell of Chicago, former chairman, as head of the speakers' bureau for the coming campaign. Tyrrell is state committeeman from the 6th district and has long been legal adviser to the state committee.

Berve also named Livingston E. Osborne of Highland Park chairman of the committee on special groups, which, he explained, include organizations of physicians, lawyers, merchants, and foreign language groups.

Osborne is an attorney and member of the firm of Osborne, Kline & McGurren. He was active in the mayoral campaign of Dwight H. Green, nominee for governor, in 1939, and also worked in Green's behalf during the state primary last April.

DELEGATES GIVEN 'ON THE HOUSE' COURTESY CARDS

Early arrivals to the Democratic national convention were presented yesterday with courtesy cards signed by Mayor Kelly and providing free admission to most of the city's entertainment places. Delegates, alternates, party officials and visiting newsmen will be given the cards.

Besides extending the symbolic key to the city, the cards give free admission to loop movie theaters, Chicago Cubs baseball games during convention week, to Arlington Park race track, to the Negro World's Fair in the Coliseum and to the annual Police and Fire Thrill show in Soldiers' Field tomorrow.

The cards also carry golf privileges at many golf clubs and will be honored at the various city museums. Free moonlight cruises on Lake Michigan are available thru the cards.

POLICE COP THE SHOW; FIREMEN STEAL IT BACK

It's All in Fun for Big Thrill Drama.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

Twenty-eight men climbed the walls of a six story building with clockwork precision yesterday. That was the fire department's chain pompier ladder drill in the rehearsal for the third annual Chicago Police and Fire Thrill show, to be held in Soldiers' field at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

Fire department officials smiled, and said the drill would be the hit of the show.

Mounted police—some in robbers' rôles and some as members of a sheriff's posse—shot it out after an old time wild west train robbery. Then city and park police gave battle to a modern bandit gang and captured them with a radio squad car blockade. That was the policemen's crime drama.

Commanding officers smiled, and said the drama would be the hit of the show.

Tell the Glory of Service.

And so it went thru the entire rehearsal of the show in which the firemen and police will tell the glory of their service. The firemen stole the show and the police stole it back, ad infinitum.

The chain pompier ladder drill was truly a spectacle. The pompier ladder is a light implement that looks like a fish's backbone. At its top is a metal hook. The pompier is used for climbing to upper stories inaccessible even to the aerial ladder trucks. The climber smashes the window above with the hook, and then fastens the hook over the window ledge. Up he climbs. At the next floor he repeats.

But Chief George E. Graves and Drill Captain Peter Gleason of the fire department drill school added showmanship. They sent seven men up the walls. These men hooked their wide pompier belts over their ladders, that their hands might be free, and each took another ladder from firemen below.

Pouf! And They're Up.

The first group moved in unison up the second ladders to the first floor. And the men below went up one floor. Pouf! All 28 men were on the roof. Then they climbed right back down again, as if they were 28 automatons.

The firemen opened their bag of tricks again. Five officers did a slide-for-life down ropes from the roof. Ralph Bergstrom, fire school instructor, improved upon that. He slid down head first.

The firemen were only starting. They got out guns with which they shot lines over the building. And up to the roof they went again.

By that time they were ready for a fire. They sounded an alarm and roared from their Soldiers' field firehouses in their pumpers, high pressure wagons, water towers and aerial ladder trucks, with a floodlight wagon and smoke ejector truck for good measure. The fire that threatened the six story building didn't have a chance.

Chief Frank C. McAuliffe of the Fire Insurance Patrol was glad he'd brought some New York fire department executives to see the rehearsal.

Something Up Their Sleeves.

The police still had something up their sleeves: Their daring motorcycle riders and their dashing horsemen.

But the firemen didn't give up. They brought out the Chicago's Pride Drum and Bugle corps, sons of members of the Firemen's post of the American Legion. It paraded with one of the country's youngest drum majors, Richard Vestal, 5 years old. He is the son of Fireman William Vestal. The corps has two other drum majors, Richard's sister, Shirley, 11 years old, and Shirley Scrivans, 14, a high school baton twirling champion.

The Thrill show is sponsored by the Chicago police and fire departments and the Park district, in cooperation with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Seats are 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for children, with none reserved. They are on sale at THE TRIBUNE'S public services offices in Tribune Tower and at 1 South Dearborn street, at the Fair store, and at Soldiers' field.

In W-G-N Broadcast

Elissa Landi and Phillips Holmes as they appeared in "Wings for America" last night.

Facsimile, the new form of radio transmission which makes it possible to send pictures, maps, and printed matter thru the air, played a rôle in the second instalment last night of "Wings for America," W-G-N and Mutual's new dramatic series, a fictional exposé of fifth column activities in the United States.

Elissa Landi plays the part of Lorna Carroll, a CHICAGO TRIBUNE reporter, and Phillips Holmes that of Riley Davis, a Mutual network commentator. In last night's episode Miss Carroll and Davis investigated a bomb caché of the Advance Front, a fifth column group, and found a photo diagram of a Milwaukee factory which had been marked for dynamiting. They transmitted the diagram by facsimile to police in time to foil the plotters. This episode is told pictorially in the Graphic section of tomorrow's SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

Following last night's broadcast Pierre Andre announced that episodes to come will show the methods and propaganda of subversive groups in America.

NEGRO DEMOCRAT CONCLAVE OPENS; HEARS KEYNOTE

Delegates and visitors filled the 8th regiment armory, 35th street and Giles avenue, yesterday at the opening of the 12th quadrennial convention of the National Colored Democratic association. This organization of Negro Democrats has been holding its meetings in connection with Democratic national conventions since 1892.

About 20 states sent delegates to the 1940 convention, Dr. William J. Thompkins, president, announced. The convention will be addressed by Mayor Kelly at noon today and by Postmaster General James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, and other leading convention figures tomorrow afternoon.

The keynote address yesterday morning was delivered by Roscoe Dunjee of Oklahoma City, editor of the Black Dispatch. Committees were appointed, and today's program calls for adoption of the platform on which the committee on resolutions was working last night.

MAYOR IS SLATED FOR RESOLUTIONS COMMITTEE POST

Tipoff Comes as He Sits In on Unofficial Session.

BY PARKE BROWN.

When Mayor Kelly of Chicago walked into the first preliminary discussion of the Democratic platform yesterday and sat in as one of the members of the unofficial group headed by Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, his action tipped off the fact that he is scheduled to become Illinois' representative on the convention resolutions committee when it is created on Monday.

It meant also that the Chicago mayor is to be doubly honored by his home state delegation. He has been slated to succeed to the Illinois membership on the Democratic national committee ever since the incumbent, P. A. Nash, announced a decision to devote his time and effort in this campaign to the chairmanship of the Cook county central committee to which he was reëlected last April.

Nash to Head Delegation.

The Illinois delegation will choose Nash as its chairman, and in that capacity he will call and conduct the Illinois caucuses, poll the delegation, and announce the state's vote on each roll call. He also will retain his national committee post until the end of the convention, as the new committee does not meet and organize until after the convention adjourns.

One other honor subject to the vote of the delegation is considered settled. Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey is scheduled to be reëlected national committeewoman, a post she has held for two four year terms.

All these elections depend upon the action taken when the delegation meets next Monday, but downstate leaders as well as local chieftains have been consulted and it is believed the honors mentioned will be awarded by unanimous action. There are six other posts in the delegation and most of these probably will go to downstaters. They are those of delegation secretary; members of the committees on permanent organization, credentials, and rules, and the committees to notify the presidential and vice presidential nominees.

First Caucus Monday.

Disposition of these places will not be taken up until the first caucus, and that will not be held until 10 a. m. Monday, two hours before the convention is called to order. This late hour was selected in order to insure the presence of the late arrivals from downstate. It had been planned to hold the caucus immediately after the dinner that National Committeeman Nash will give for the entire delegation in the Palmer House tomorrow night, but it was learned that some downstaters will not reach Chicago until Monday morning.

The meeting, as now planned, will be held in the Nash-Kelly temporary headquarters at 1817 Madison street, almost directly across the street from the main entrance to the Stadium. This headquarters, ample enough for a large number of visitors, will be kept open thruout the convention as a place of rest and refreshment for all delegates, alternates, and newspaper men.

In the past it has served as the 27th ward Democratic headquarters maintained by Sanitary Trustee John J. Touhy, committeeman for the ward.

HANDKERCHIEF BANDITS ROB TAVERN.

Three gunmen who held handkerchiefs before their faces yesterday robbed a tavern at 1319 Belmont avenue of $100, two bottles of liquor, and six cartons of cigarets.

WILLKIE TELLS 3 MAJOR POINTS IN HIS CRUSADE

They Are Defense, Unity, and Prosperity.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Denver, Colo., July 12 [Special].—Wendell L. Willkie, Republican nominee for President, had a trial day of campaigning today, meeting thousands of people in the Colorado capital and making two speeches in which he outlined three major points in what he described as an American crusade rather than a political campaign.

Speaking from the steps of the state capitol before a crowd estimated by Gov. Ralph Carr at 9,000, and again at a luncheon of state Republican leaders of Colorado and Wyoming, Willkie dedicated himself to the task of bringing about three things in this country, as follows:

First, a united people; the destruction of class consciousness and hatred.

Second, the rehabilitation of our economic life, making it vibrant and vital.

Third, building such a national defense that no Hitler or other totalitarian dictator will ever strike at this free, democratic way of life.

Crowds Line the Streets.

Willkie was tossed into this campaign atmosphere when he motored here this morning from his vacation home in Colorado Springs at the invitation of Gov. Carr. He found crowds lining the streets at Littleton and at Englewood on his way into the city. Broadway was alive with the curious, and at the slope of the green lawn that stretched to the gold domed capitol more thousands swarmed.

It cannot be said that there was any wild enthusiasm for Willkie. It was, however, a warm welcome wherever he went, and it built up during the day into something that political observers found significant. Thousands crowded into the lobby of the Brown Palace hotel to see him. His big, slouching figure, his tousled hair, his easy, natural manner and smile, won the westerners at once.

Makes His Speech.

As for Willkie, he could not withstand the electric moment of contact with the crowd and broke his promise not to make any campaign speeches until acceptance day. He spoke at the capitol steps until the crowd yelled, and in the luncheon gathering he stirred the Republican leaders of two states, old and young, men and women, into a real demonstration of enthusiasm for him.

After Gov. Carr presented Willkie as the next President, the Republican nominee said:

"It will be represented in the campaign by the opposition that I am from the East. In my 48 years, 37 years have been spent in the midwest and far west, and my business interests have been there.

"I have had to live all my life facing opposition. I have come up the hard road. Opposition has never worried me. I love the lust of battle and the joy of conflict. For seven and one half years I have fought the Roosevelt administration and never with a sense of fear.

"Sense of Humility."

"I have an overwhelming, abiding sense of humility in having been chosen the leader in what to me is the greatest cause in the history of this country. Our own way of life, our domestic system, is at one of the testing points of its history.

"This way of life is facing the most ferocious assault physically, psychologically, and ideologically that it has faced in the long, glorious history of the struggle for liberty.

"You Republicans have called on me to lead the cause in America for preservation of this way of life and for the preservation of the democratic processes. In moments of contemplation I am overwhelmed with humility concerning this task, uniting our people, rehabilitating our economic life, building an adequate defense indispensable to the preservation of this way of life.

A Defense Against Dictators.

"If our economic life is vibrant and vital, no dictator, no totalitarian ruler can ever successfully strike at this great free democratic life that we have had in America.

"I dedicate myself to this cause to bring about three things: A united people, to destroy class consciousness and class hatred; to rehabilitate the economic life, and build an adequate defense program.

"If you help me, we can do it. We cannot afford to fail. We must not fail."

CALL NEW DEAL POWER BEHIND FIFTH COLUMN

Decatur, Ill., July 12 [Special].—charge that the New Deal has permitted subversive elements to flourish in this country was contained in a resolution which Evan Howell of Springfield, first president of the Young Republican clubs of Illinois, will present to the annual convention of the organization which opened here today.

The resolution states the New Deal has aided and abetted groups which operate contrary to American principles of government and cites the support of New Dealers to the American Youth congress which the Dies committee charges is run by communists.

The resolution declares constitutional government "is seriously threatened by subversive elements which have flourished thru New Deal encouragement.

"As a state-wide organization," the resolution continued, "we hereby condemn nazism, fascism, communism, and all other doctrines contrary to the fundamental ideals of the American republic."

FOUR FINED ON GAMBLING CHARGES.

Four men arrested by police in handbook raids pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Erwin J. Hasten in South State Street court to gambling charges and were fined $5 each.

FORMER EMPRESS ZITA.

New York, July 12 (AP).—Former Empress Zita of Austria-Hungary, widow of Emperor Karl and mother of Archduke Otto of Hapsburg, will arrive in the United States within a few days, probably on a trans-Atlantic clipper, it was reported authoritatively today.

The empress, now in Portugal after fleeing from the Nazi advance thru Belgium, France, and Spain, will bring her three youngest sons and her three daughters along with some semblance of a retinue.

Archduke Otto, who arrived on the Atlantic clipper yesterday from Lisbon, declined to discuss his mother's plans, but it was learned he is seeking a suitable country estate for her here.

Another royal entourage—that of the Grand Duchess Charlotte of Luxemburg; her husband, Prince Felix of Bourbon-Parma, and their six children—may leave Lisbon for the United States soon.

The grand duchess, a friend of the former Empress Zita, was forced to end her 21 year rule when the Germans invaded Luxemburg in May.

SIX UNIONISTS SENTENCED FOR TRIAL FIX PLOT

C.I.O. Reds' Terrorism Described.

New York, July 12 [Special].—Federal prison sentences ranging from a year and a day to two years were imposed today upon six officers and members of the communist-dominated International Fur and Leather Workers union, a C. I. O. affiliate, for their conspiracy to obstruct justice and influence witnesses.

The six men were convicted last night by a jury before Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard on government charges that they extended the notorious terrorism in the New York fur industry to bribery and threats of death against witnesses at the recent trial of 18 union chieftains.

Eleven of the accused were found guilty last April 13 of violation of federal antitrust laws in seeking to control labor in the fur industry eight years ago by a reign of terror.

Boss Gets Two Years.

Top man of those sentenced today was Irving Potash, manager of the Furriers' joint council and vice president of the international union, who received the maximum term of two years. Ben Gold, communist leader and president of the union, was acquitted with three others last night, tho he and Potash were fined and sentenced to a year in prison on the antitrust charge.

The original antitrust case stemmed from activities of officials and agents of the now defunct Needle Trades Workers Industrial union during 1931, 1932, and 1933. This union reputedly took its orders direct from Moscow and at one time was in what some observers referred to as the "red wing" of the A. F. of L.

The needle workers union dissolved and later reappeared under its new name, eventually finding its way into the C. I. O. About four years ago, with Gold and Potash still its leaders. It also expanded to include leather workers.

Violent Activities Described.

Finally brought to trial last April on an indictment obtained late in 1933, the needle workers leaders were charged with restraining interstate commerce between 1931 and 1933. Witnesses credited them with slugging, window smashing, tossing of stench bombs, damaging of stock, and raiding of fur establishments not having contracts with the union.

The investigation in which Assistant United States Attorney Jerome Doyle unearthed the conspiracy to coerce government witness was touched off when William Karpouzas recanted his testimony at the antitrust trial. A union member, fur contractor, and former member of the strong-arm "Greek organization committee" of the needle workers, Karpouzas was charged with taking a $50 bribe from one of the defendants shortly before recanting. He also received a maximum sentence of two years today, as did Useratos Vafiades, alias John Burns, an organized for the union.

Three Lesser Sentences.

Joseph Winogradsky, assistant manager of the joint council, received a 15 month sentence. He also faces 6 months on his conviction in the antitrust case. Sentences of a year and a day each were handed to Louis Hatios, member of the union's organizing committee, and Max Kochinsky, business agent for the union.

Judge Goddard issued a stern warning to the six convicted men against any reprisals against witnesses who had testified against them. Attorney Doyle declared that witnesses in this case "have suffered exactly as witnesses in the antitrust case," and added that the government would continue to protect them.

WARM WELCOME WAITS RELIEFERS IN DEFENSE UNITS

62,150 in State Eligible for Enlistment.

There are 62,150 men on the WPA and relief rolls in Illinois who could apply for enlistment in the army, navy, and marine corps in the nation's growing defense program, a survey yesterday disclosed. Of this total 22,486 live in Chicago. Military recruiting officers here offered a warm welcome to any of the 62,150 who might want to enlist.

"We'll be glad to have young men from WPA and relief rolls apply for enlistment," said an army recruiting officer. "If they can meet our physical and mental requirements we'll be proud to have them in the service. There certainly will be no discrimination against WPA or relief men."

Navy Wants Them, Too.

The navy is open to these men if they can meet the standards of intelligence and fitness, said Lieutenant Commander George D. Lyons, navy recruiting officer.

"Bring them on," said Maj. Dean Kalbfleisch, marine corps recruiting officer. "We'll be happy for the chance to enroll them if they qualify."

The 62,150 are within the age limits for the armed services—18 to 35 years—and have no physical or mental defects, according to relief and WPA standards. Such standards are not very rigid or systematized, however, and some of the applicants might be turned down by the military medical authorities.

Latest figures show that of a total of 429,663 persons on relief in Illinois, 205,151 are male adults, 89,552 of them in Chicago.

But of these men, only 69,010 men in the state, including 28,770 in Chicago, are regarded as employables—that is, they are not disabled mentally or physically and are not required at home for the care of minors and invalids. Of these, 27,633 in the state, including 10,176 in Chicago, are within the proper age limits for recruiting.

How WPA Stacks Up.

As for WPA, there are 110,005 on the rolls in the state, of whom 93,290 are males, including 33,270 in Chicago. Of this number, 34,517 in the state, including 12,310 in the city, are within the age limits.

The following table shows those eligible to seek enlistment:

	Chicago.	Downstate.	Total.
From relief	10,176	17,457	27,633
From WPA	12,310	22,207	34,517
Totals	22,486	39,664	62,150

Relief clients are given brief and generally incomplete physical examinations when they are certified for WPA jobs. Oral examinations are given to WPA men who seek white collar jobs, such as clerkships, in the organization.

Intensive physical and intelligence tests are ordered, however, for all applicants for the army, navy, and marines. The minimum height for a recruit in the three services is 5 feet 4 inches with weight proportionate to height and age.

Age Limits Vary.

While the minimum age at the time of enlistment in the three branches of service is the same—18 years—the upper age limit in the army is 35 years, in the navy 30 years, and in the marines 25 years. The marines also accept recruits up to the age of 30 if they have special qualifications, such as one year of college or experience as machinists, draftsmen, bookkeepers, or in professions.

Some of the WPA and relief men within the service ages do not have the education or mechanical and technical aptitude for the specialized divisions of the armed forces, but they would be found acceptable for other tasks as soldiers, sailors, and marines, the recruiting officers said.

O'BRIEN AID WILL BE TEMPORARY ADMINISTRATOR

Gov. Henry Horner yesterday named John F. Cahill, 133 South Waller avenue, to serve temporarily as public administrator of Cook county, succeeding theh late Martin J. O'Brien. O'Brien died after a boating accident in Wisconsin a week ago.

Cahill, a public accountant and former federal bank examiner, had been office manager for O'Brien for several years. He has no political background.

The governor's announcement noted that Cahill's appointment was being made on a temporary basis, raising the possibility that he may be succeeded later on. His appointment is not expected to last beyond December, if Harry B. Hershey, Democratic nominee, is elected governor, since the post is one of the prize patronage plums at the governor's disposal.

O'Brien's will was filed in the Probate court yesterday and named Ald. Joseph S. Gillespie [29th] as executor. The heirs are two daughters, Mrs. Clara Richards and Mrs. Eleanor Divane, and a son, Martin E. O'Brien. The estate was estimated at $70,000.

Prof. J. B. Haldane, once a distinguished biologist and now chairman of the board of the Daily Worker, replied to the warning by suggesting that if the paper were suppressed "many organized workers on whose skill and endurance so much depends will feel that an attack has been made on them."

BRITAIN SAYS CLAIMS OF ITALY IN SEA AND AIR WAR ARE FALSE

LONDON, July 12 (AP).—Official British sources today declared that "wild claims made in the Italian communique regarding attacks on the British fleet in the eastern Mediterranean are untrue."

The only damage caused by eight Italian bombing attacks yesterday, these sources said, was that "one of our fighters became unserviceable after landing." They declared that one Italian fighter was shot down.

The Italian Claims.

ROME, July 12 (AP).—Italian warplanes set a British aircraft carrier on fire and seriously damaged two destroyers yesterday in the 4 day old Mediterranean air and naval battle, the high command reported today.

Besides the aircraft carrier and the two destroyers, the English squadron included two battleships, the Italian communique said. These warships were convoying five large freighters in the Malta region, the Italians said, and one of the freighters was reported sunk.

In North Africa, the communique reported, tanks and armored cars had been destroyed, and barracks and trucks struck and set on fire at Sidi-barani. In British Somaliland, the Italians said, the airfields of Berbera and Burao were bombed. Also bombarded was the base of Wajir in Kenya.

2 MILLION FRENCH REFUGEES STILL CANNOT GO HOME

Barred from Starting Out on a New Life.

BY BERNHARD RAGNER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BORDEAUX, France, July 11. [Delayed]—Altho the Franco-German armistice became effective 17 days ago, some 2,000,000 French refugees still are anxiously awaiting permission to return home, to get back to work, and to begin life again in the new France being created under the leadership of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain.

With them are 1,500,000 Belgians whose compulsory sojourn in France may be extended for many days, since the German military order forbids their repatriation at present. A notice posted today by the chief of the Bordeaux railroad station announced that the Germans will not allow refugees from the following French departments to return home: Bas Rhin, Haut Rhin, Moselle, Vosges, Meurthe-et-Moselle, Meuse, Ardennes, Aisne, Nord, and Pas-de-Calais.

Hint of Peace Treaty.

This means that refugees from northern and eastern France, many of whom have been absent from home since September, must stay where they are until further notice. In addition, certain observers interpret this restriction as a prophetic hint of the territorial provisions Germany expects to write into the peace treaty when it is finally elaborated.

Other refugees are technically free to return home. In reality, except for those going back to homes in the nonoccupied zone, they are held up by blocked roads, lack of gasoline and travel permits and transportation facilities.

For a Parisian to return to the capital is almost an impossible undertaking, altho there seems to be no specific German order against it. The German authorities do nothing to help the traveler to get to Paris, while French officials urge him to stay where he is unless he is moving into nonoccupied territory, where he will be free to wander almost as in prewar days.

Trips May Be Started.

A few governmental employés charged with special missions have been able to get back to Paris, but for ordinary civilians this is out of the question. However, if they desire they can always start in the general direction of Paris. Poitiers now is linked up with Bordeaux by train, and travelers may even get to Chatellerault, and possibly Tours, but here their trips northward will be blocked, according to warnings posted at the Bordeaux railroad station.

French authorities realize the necessity of finding a prompt solution of the refugee problem and the French armistice delegation at Wiesbaden, Germany has been instructed to work diligently to this end. Altho a broad general agreement on the subject has been reached, many details still remain to be worked out. Until this has been done, thousands of French families unable to get home will be blocked within those sections of France not occupied by German troops.

The refugees, meantime, can only adopt an attitude of watchful waiting and hopeful idleness. Not a single one enjoys this enforced vacation, and many are growing nervous, impatient, and melancholy over the delay in getting back to their daily tasks in their home communities.

Vets of 16th Engineers to Assemble in Detroit

Chicago veterans who served with the 16th U. S. engineers in the world war were urged yesterday by R. J. Vrooman, Chicago regimental representative, to attend the annual regimental reunion in Detroit, Mich., beginning Aug. 30. The 16th engineers was a volunteer regiment of engineers and construction men who were recruited in the midwest. They served 22 months in France.

CLAIM FRENCH PLANES BOMBED WARSHIP HOOD

Seek to Avenge Raid by British Navy.

[This delayed dispatch from France adds another version to the various dispatches of the last week concerning purported damage to the British battle cruiser, the 42,100 ton Hood.]

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOULOUSE, France, July 10 [Delayed].—France took reprisal today [Wednesday, July 10] against the British naval attack on the French fleet off Algeria on July 3.

A swarm of two hastily prepared squadrons of French hydroplanes attacked British warships in Gibraltar and, it was reported tonight, seriously damaged the battle cruiser Hood and sank two destroyers.

Struck in Naval Action.

The French attacked the British warships before they could get out of the Mediterranean and while they were refueling and burying their dead.

It was disclosed that the Hood previously had been struck by three shells fired by French coastal batteries in the naval action off Oran and Mers El-Kebir, Algeria.

Anger is Increased.

The speed with which the French got an air squadron organized for the reprisal indicated the fury and anger which the British act aroused here and this was increased by the revelation today that all French warships refuging in the British ports of Plymouth, Portsmouth, and Southampton have been seized by the British and Admiral Villenne arrested.

The French declare that these seizures indicate that the British purpose was not to protect England against an imaginary danger—but to grab the French warships for their own purposes. It is confirmed that a British submarine sank the French cutter Rigault de Genouilly.

[If all the reports of damage inflicted upon the Hood are true the giant battle cruiser is experiencing days of great travail. On July 11 the Italian high command announced that Italian bombing planes had set fire to the vessel, the biggest sea fighter in the world, in an attack on the British fleet south of the Balearic Islands on July 9. This claim was preceded by a report that the Hood had been forced into drydock at Gibraltar for urgent repairs as the result of being seriously damaged in the Oran naval engagement with the French.]

WHY U. S. WARSHIP CONSTRUCTION IS COSTLY AND SLOW

Red Tape, Waste, Lack of Facilities Blamed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—The helter-skelter spending of billions of dollars for naval expansion has raised the question of why warship construction in the United States is both a slow and costly process.

The following factors are outstanding among the many involved:

1. Labor restrictions such as imposed under the Walsh-Healey act.
2. Lack of adequate facilities and an alleged monopoly in shipbuilding.
3. Undue waste of time thru inefficient administration and blunders in design and construction.

These have been some of the charges in evidence presented before congressional committees.

Costs Abroad Much Lower.

While foreign statistics are not completely available because they are guarded as confidential naval information, it is said that foreign vessels have been built for 40 or 50 per cent of the cost of American vessels of the same type prior to the present war. Since then the disparity in costs has been greatly reduced by wartime conditions abroad which make materials and labor more costly.

At recent hearings of the senate naval affairs committee Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, was questioned on the rapid progress made by the Germans and Japanese in building up their navies.

"Speed of building has a great deal to do with it," Stark said. "In our navy yards, for example, we are working, I would say, on an average of about 33 hours a week on 48 hours' pay. If that same man were working 72 hours a week, 12 hours a day, 6 days a week, his government would of course get its ships more quickly." [Recently permission was given to work up to 48 hours, with overtime pay above 40 hours a week.]

Stark said his calculation of 48 hours' pay for 33 hours' work was based upon the average number of days' sick leave which is taken, plus holidays, plus 30 days' leave and no Saturday work at all.

Lack of Facilities Told.

In Japan and Germany the work week is approximately 66 hours and in some cases longer, Stark said.

He also pointed out that the provision of facilities and skilled workers in itself would require time.

"There is a bottleneck in armor for capital ships, there is a bottleneck in labor for others, and there is a bottleneck in construction ways for others," he said.

Stark asserted that between 1922 and 1933, there was little activity in shipbuilding, largely because of naval restriction treaties, and that the industry's skilled and technical labor drifted to other fields. Replacement of equipment also lapsed, he said.

A recent survey showed that warships under construction and under contracts amount to twice the capacity of total government and private shipbuilding facilities, swamping the yards until necessary expansion can be completed.

Bidding Tactics Disclosed.

The Nye committee hearings of several years ago brought out testimony that conferences of shipbuilders were held prior to bidding on naval vessels. Charges also have been made that the navy has not always awarded contracts to the lowest bidders. Whether public or private, however, costs have ranged far above those built abroad.

The U. S. S. Maryland, a battleship of 31,500 tons, was built at a cost of $27,500,000 in the post-war period when prices were high. Yet when the navy called for bids for 35,000 ton battleships in 1937, private yards submitted estimates of almost $60,000,000 for the vessels, exclusive of armor and armament.

These were rejected and the vessels were ordered built in naval yards, where it was estimated the cost would be about 70 million dollars for each completed vessel. The following year, when bids for two more vessels were asked, the contracts went to private yards for $49,540,000 and $49,815,000 each.

Costs Exceed 70 Millions.

It was estimated costs would run over 70 millions each when the vessels were completed. Costs of four other battleships of 45,000 tons are expected to range between 80 and 100 million dollars each.

Mr. Roosevelt asked for the first of the new battleships in a message to congress in January, 1937, shortly after Britain launched a naval race by laying the keels of two 35,000 ton battleships.

The British vessels were launched more than a year ago. The two American vessels were not launched until last month. It is estimated the British ships will cost between 40 and 50 million dollars. Naval experts say the cost would be still lower in Germany or Italy.

Only a small part of the difference can be charged to the generally higher standard of wages in the United States as compared to foreign nations.

Longer Periods Required.

Estimates are that it takes six or seven years to build a battleship in the United States, against three to five years abroad. Other classes do not take as long, but all of them require longer than for similar building abroad.

It was charged in testimony presented the senate naval affairs committee that delays occurred during the New Deal years because plans were not drawn up for vessels in advance. For instance, congress authorized two 45,000-ton battleships in May, 1938, and contracts were not awarded until December, 1939, more than a year and a half later.

After contracts have been awarded delays often have been caused by changes in plans.

FRENCH DECLARE BRITAIN BLOCKED ROAD TO PEACE

Claim War Might Have Been Averted.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CLERMONT-FERRAND, France, July 11 [Delayed]—Speeches by French statesmen at meetings in the last few days and a study of the pronouncements made since the armistice by Marshal Henri Petain, Foreign Minister Paul Boudoin, and High Commissioner of Information Jean Prouvost throw into high relief two important disclosures.

The first one is that the war might have been avoided last September had British diplomatic insistence not made impossible the conference suggested by Italy on Sept. 2, the day before war was declared. This declaration was made yesterday by George Bonnet, French foreign minister at that time.

Allied Breach Wide in March.

In the second place the breach in the British-French alliance since last March was so wide that successful prosecution of the war was practically precluded. This disclosure was made by Prouvost on June 24. He said the French delegation visiting England in March saw plainly that the British war effort was wholly deficient.

In addition French allegations indicated that the British let down the French in the war after the passage of the Meuse by the Germans following the concentrated attack on the Low Countries.

A crucial moment came when the breach in the allied lines reached the line between Bapaume and Peronne, where all competent observers had expected an allied stand. One reason advanced for the failure to fill the breach at that point was the part the Belgians played, but it has been revealed that British hesitation was a contributing factor.

Find British Hesitated.

Immediately after succeeding Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin, Gen. Maxime Weygand appraised the situation and decided on a counteroffensive calculated simultaneously to carry the German thrust and realize a junction of all his forces.

He flew over every part of the fighting line, and conferred at their respective headquarters with King Leopold and Viscount Gort, commander of the British expeditionary force. The Belgians appeared to agree, but their capitulation was only a matter of days. The British, it now has been learned, also appeared to accept in principle, but then hesitated, and finally retreated toward the channel ports.

"The French army of the north consequently was ordered to retreat also," an official version of the situation disclosed. "It fought to the last day in order to enable four-fifths of the British army to be saved, while only one-half of the French could be saved."

Crucial Day of Battle.

The battle of Flanders having been lost, Gen. Weygand decided to fight the battle of France on the general line marked by the rivers Somme and Aisne. Much was made then of the fact that British elements were in action side by side with the French.

The crucial day of that battle was the one on which the French communique announced that German armored columns had penetrated the French lines and were menacing the whole valley of the Seine, including Rouen. This was the beginning of the movement to envelop the French left wing and reach the lower valley of the Loire. It was revealed today that at this sector the British elements mentioned above consisted of two brigades "which gave way before Abbeville and proceeded to reembark."

BULLITT GOES TO MADRID TO GET IN TOUCH WITH U. S.

MADRID, Spain, July 12 (AP).—William C. Bullitt, United States ambassador to France, arrived in Madrid today "to get back in touch with Washington." He said communication from Vichy, present seat of the French government, was extremely slow and difficult.

The ambassador said he had been virtually out of touch with the state department since last month.

Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Jr., ambassador to the Polish government, who has been in San Sebastian, Spain, advised the United States embassy here he would leave for Madrid by train tonight to see Bullitt and Alexander Weddell, American ambassador to Spain.

CHURCHILL DIVES INTO TRENCH AS BOMBERS APPEAR OVER COAST

LONDON, July 12 (AP).—Like King George VI. and the duke of Kent, Prime Minister Winston Churchill has had a closeup view of German aerial bombing tactics within the last few days.

Advised before leaving London that German planes were dropping their bombs over a wide area, the prime minister lighted another cigar and set out on his scheduled inspection of southeast coast defenses. In the middle of his tour Nazi bombers appeared overhead and released their missiles. Churchill made his way to the soldiers' trench shelters and stayed there until the raiders were driven off.

Not far from where Churchill was touring a bomb almost cut in half a village pub. The story is told that darts players there carried their darts board outside and hung it on the wall where the local championship match proceeded while glasses of ale were passed out to the contestants thru a hole in the crumbled wall.

DEMANDS FRANCE SEIZE FIRMS OF JEWS WHO FLED

Anti-Semitic Drive Grows in Paris.

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 11 [Delayed]—[By courier to Berlin].—One of the serious aspects of the situation in Paris today is the rising feeling in all classes of the population against Jews.

This wave of anti-Semitism, which is growing daily, is based upon a widespread belief that Jews, thru their control of the French press, radio, and banks, have been chiefly responsible for pushing France into the war against Adolf Hitler and frustrating efforts to bring about a French-German rapprochement after the Munich conference.

Charge Attack on Munich Pact.

It is said the French and British Jews were violent in their criticism of the Munich agreement. Furthermore, it is charged they had pledged themselves to plunge Europe into war in order to avenge the wrongs inflicted on Jews in Germany.

The French declare that Jewish exiles from Germany flooded France with propaganda to the effect that Hitler would be overthrown if he ventured to declare war, that the German army was incapable of fighting France and Britain, and that the German people were starving, thus leading the French to believe that they would win an easy victory.

The allegation that leading French Jews, including the Rothschild family and numerous great bankers and industrialists, were among the first to desert Paris in its hour of stress, has likewise contributed to stimulate anti-Semitism.

While no official action has yet been taken, drastic measures against Jews now are advocated by the Paris newspapers.

Demands Seizure of Business.

Thus La Vie Nationale, which has reappeared under the direction of Jacques Doriot, French National Socialist [Nazi] and former mayor of St. Denis, one of the great workers' suburbs of Paris, demands that all large business enterprises belonging to Jews who have fled from the capital be confiscated and reopened "under Christian management" to give employment to idle Parisians.

Such measures would affect notably the clothing, fur, and leather businesses, as well as theaters and motion picture houses, of which a large percentage were controled by French or foreign Jews.

Similarly, La France au Travail, a new newspaper, urged German military authorities to take a census of all Jews engaged in any kind of industry or trade in Paris and to compel them to placard their business premises with notices that they are Jewish concerns.

BRITISH BATTLE TO LIFT SIEGE OF FORT IN AFRICA

Italians Pour 1,000 Shells on Defenders.

LONDON, July 12 (AP).—A beleaguered British garrison, battered by more than 1,000 shells, tonight struggled to hold out in Moyale fort, on the Ethiopian-Kenya frontier, against a besieging Italian force. The siege is in its third day.

Even as this dramatic battle raged, Great Britain declared that it once more recognized Haile Selassie as emperor of Ethiopia, Lion of Judah, and thus opened up new possibilities of warfare in the vast reaches of northern and eastern Africa.

A British communique disclosed that the besieged British force at Moyale had not made contact with troops going to its relief up to noon today. It said the relieving troops were holding positions on a high ledge.

British Casualties Light.

The British casualties from both Italian artillery and smaller gun fire were reported light, while in counter-attacks the British were said to have inflicted severe losses on the Italians.

The attack on Moyale may produce something like the seven month siege of Mafeking, in Bechuanaland, South Africa, by the Boers in 1899. A small garrison under Col. Baden-Powell held out until relieved and planted the word "Mafeking" in colloquial English to mean a military triumph. Baden-Powell, now a peer, is 83 years old, and is founder of the Boy Scouts.

On the Egyptian-Italian Libya frontier today, British motorized columns harassed Italian troops cut off in the forts of Capuzzo and Maddelana. A pipeline running from the coast to supply the forts with water has been cut, reports said.

Retaken by Italians.

Strong Italian columns reoccupied the forts after the British had taken them from garrisons of native Libyan troops. The British columns now have flanked the forts and are harassing supply trains.

In recognizing the black bearded Selassie as emperor of Ethiopia and proclaiming the African kingdom a full ally of Britain in the war against Italy, England did another about-face in its relations with the government of Premier Mussolini.

The British will assure Ethiopian independence "when the war is won," said R. A. Butler, undersecretary for foreign affairs, in the house of commons.

British and those Ethiopian forces opposed to the Italian rule which was impressed on Selassie's 350,000 square mile empire in 1935-'36 are to coördinate "all activities likely to damage the enemy's effort in north and east Africa and in Abyssinia [Ethiopia]," Butler said.

They Need Guns.

Tens of thousands of Ethiopia's fierce but ill armed warriors are in the field against Italy already.

C. W. Martin, who was Ethiopian minister to London at the time of the Italian conquest, says at least 300,000 to 400,000 of his countrymen are ready to fight Italy if they can get enough guns.

Butler said it was impossible to give further details on this historic shift of British policy, the second since British-led economic penalties [sanctions] against Italy petered out and Mussolini's legions marched to triumph in Ethiopia.

The British shift from sanctions against the conquest to sanction of it was formalized in recognition of Italy's annexation of Ethiopia in a British-Italian agreement in 1938.

Lion Chained to Throne.

In that year, while the Chamberlain and Mussolini governments were exchanging gentlemanly assurances over the status quo in the Mediterranean basin, Selassie, then an exiled emperor, was living at Bath, England, amid the memories of his Addis Ababa court where a lion chained to the throne was a symbol of his power. When Italy declared war, the 49 year old Selassie moved to a west end hotel in London.

The arming of Ethiopians against their Italian conquerors would add fuel to the spreading fires of war in Africa. The lines of friction reach across some 2,000 miles of sun baked desert and wild highlands, from the Mediterranean southeastward to the Indian ocean.

Quiet 65 Years, Volcano Spreads Death in Japan

TOKIO, July 13, Saturday (AP).—A volcanic eruption on Miyake Island killed or injured eight persons today. Ten were missing and 1,000 residents fled their homes. A warship was dispatched for rescue work. The volcano, which has been quiescent for 65 years, erupted last night and was continuing today. Miyake is 200 miles south of Tokio.

GERMANS BOAST 'STARVE BRITAIN' SIEGE IS SUCCESS

Say Foe Lost 4,329,213 Tons of Ships.

BERLIN, July 12 (AP).—Spectacular success for the starvation blockade against England was claimed and officially emphasized today. At the same time German sources remarked that only Adolf Hitler and his top associates knew when and how—or whether—a full-out military assault on the British Isles themselves would be made.

This significant and unamplified observation was made under circumstances equally significant, for it was the second successive day in which the communique of the high command had been preoccupied with the progress of the economic warfare.

Sink 4,329,213 Tons of Shipping.

It has been three weeks now since France was knocked out, and there has been no sign of a major attack on Britain's kingdom.

This time, the high command, asserted that since the beginning of the chant shipping space or shipping space usable to the enemy" had been war 4,329,213 tons of "enemy mersunk by German naval and air action and that aside from this 300 ships had been so damaged by bombers as to be out of service for the present or for some months.

The total tonnage lost by Britain in the entire world war was 7,830,765 tons.

[In London, an authorized source declared the figure of 4,329,213 given by the Germans was in fact more than four times the total British losses to July 1. It added that Germany had lost 877,000 tons of merchant shipping and Italy about 244,000 tons captured, sunk or scuttled—more than the total British losses since the outbreak of the war.]

Point to Channel Bases.

Again it was stressed officially that the bases now available to Germany on the English channel in consequence of the French capitulation had made the U-boat a vastly greater menace than in the world war.

Again it was stated that the convoy system so useful to the British in that war was not working now—for it was said that thru coördinated submarine and plane attacks serious losses had been suffered repeatedly by the British.

Only today, the Germans told of sinking a 15,000 ton tanker and four smaller merchant ships in the English channel, while new smashes of bombers at English harbors and munitions plants were reported.

The high command disclosed that dive bomber units were used in yesterday's aerial attacks on airports, port facilities, and armament plants in central and southern England.

"In the harbors of Plymouth and Lowestoft facilities were hit by bombs," the communique said. "In Portsmouth and at industrial plants near Burton-upon-Trent fires were caused by bombs."

U. S. LINER SAILS FROM HONGKONG WITH REFUGEES

HONGKONG, July 12 (AP).—The American liner President Coolidge sailed for Japan and Pacific ports tonight crowded beyond normal capacity with American refugees from Hongkong. Several hundred British and Canadian women and children also sailed on a Canadian Pacific liner.

Arrangements had been made for 150 extra on the President Coolidge because of advice by both British and American officials that women and children leave this British colony, but only 30 of these places were occupied.

There apparently has been no increase in tension between Great Britain and Japan over shipment of supplies to the Chinese government which had caused fear of a possible Japanese blockade of Hongkong.

RUMANIA LAUDS ITALY; SPEEDS DICTATOR RULE

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, July 12 [Passed by censor].—To emphasize Rumania's new place in the European lineup, the government today made public a telegram sent by Foreign Minister Mihail Manoiliscu to Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano of Italy, assuring him of Rumania's admiration for the Fascist regime and its desire for closer relations.

Newspapers gave a prominent place to the telegram and to Count Ciano's answer, which expressed his gratification.

While this exchange of diplomatic compliments went on, authorities were pushing ahead with the work of fitting the nation into its new totalitarian mold.

Must Exclude Jews.

Instructions were issued to all officials of the Party of the Nation—Rumania's new single party—ordering strict investigation of all applicants for party membership. They were told to exclude all Jews.

Officials must be as "attentive and scrupulous as possible in carrying out the formalities," said the order issued by Premier Ion Gigurtu, as chief of staff of the party.

Lists of all applicants for party membership were ordered posted in public so that those who have Jewish blood can be detected.

Officials denied that the government's policy is anti-Jewish. They said exclusion of Jews from political and economic life gives Rumanians their fair share in running the country.

Hope to Avoid Friction.

They consider Jews in the liberal professions offer too stiff competition and that as newspaper workers they do not fit in with the program of intense nationalism now being undertaken. The effect, they agreed, is the same as any other form of anti-Semitism, but they hope to avoid any excessive applications which might upset the country and give any covetous neighbor an excuse for attacking them.

Germany's interest at present, observers believe, is to keep peace in this part of the world. The scanty crops are being harvested and Germany does not want anything to happen that could diminish the year's meager output of food. She has too many mouths to feed.

THE PARTY OF PEACE AND THE WAR PARTY.

Some people have been saying that Mr. Roosevelt need not seek a third term to assure the continuance of his policies, and particularly of his foreign policy. The argument goes that the Republican platform and Mr. Willkie are in complete agreement with Mr. Roosevelt on foreign affairs.

This is a favorite contention of Democrats who don't like Mr. Roosevelt or the third term and are trying to find reasons to discourage him from running. The only fault with the argument is that it isn't true.

When did Mr. Willkie say that the frontier of America is on the Rhine or in France? Mr. Roosevelt was recorded as having made a remark to that effect at a conference with the senate committee on military affairs and his subsequent denial was never accepted by the men who attended the meeting. When did Mr. Willkie talk of quarantining aggressor nations? When did Mr. Willkie advocate, as Mr. Roosevelt has done, the training of an army far larger than is needed for the defense of the United States or the western hemisphere? Mr. Roosevelt has sold army and navy equipment to belligerents in violation of domestic law and the international law of neutrality. When did Mr. Willkie or the Republican party advocate this kind of a declaration of war by executive action? When did Mr. Willkie or the Republican party favor conscription or legislation permitting the President to send the National Guard overseas?

Mr. Willkie will make every effort to avoid war because he believes in free enterprise and knows that if war comes this country must become another totalitarian dictatorship. Mr. Roosevelt does not believe in free enterprise, as his favorite legislation proves, and to him war would offer a means of achieving control of the nation's economy without further struggle.

It is true that since the disappearance of the western front in Europe Mr. Roosevelt has taken fewer overt steps toward a military adventure in Europe. No doubt, too, the imminence of the election has made him more cautious than he was before about disclosing his purposes and more eager than he was before to disarm suspicion. But his earlier acts and utterances make it highly probable that if he is reëlected he will move promptly to send the American navy, the air force, and anything else he regards as serviceable, to fight in Europe.

If a continental front is reëstablished he could be expected to favor the sending of an expeditionary army. The fact that there is no continental front today is no assurance that there will be none within a few months or years. Any one familiar with the record of the Napoleonic wars knows how often such a front can be wiped out and how often it can be reëstablished.

The Republican platform flatly opposes participation in a foreign war. It could not be more precise on this point. The platform unquestionably reflects the sentiment of the recent Republican convention. The delegates heard Mr. Brooks of Illinois expound the meaning of the peace plank and no one arose to dispute him. The platform is unambiguous and Mr. Brooks was uncompromising in his interpretation.

Mr. Roosevelt believes that America's frontier is in Europe; it follows that if that frontier is breached, as it has been, he believes we must fight. The Republicans, and Mr. Willkie in particular, believe that the American frontier is where the map shows it to be, 3,000 miles from Europe, and until that frontier is breached we have been given no occasion for war.

At Brooklyn, on June 18, Mr. Willkie said:

"I want to repeat what I have said on several previous occasions: that despite our wholehearted sympathy for the allied cause, we must stay out of the war. . . . We do not intend to send men from the shores of this continent to fight in any war. . . . We shall not serve the cause of democracy and human freedom by becoming involved in the present war; we shall serve that cause only by keeping out of war. . . . No man has the right to use the great power of the presidency to lead the people indirectly into war. Only the people thru their elected representatives can make that awful decision and there is no question as to their decision . . ."

This speech of Mr. Willkie went far to win him the nomination, and far to establish his popularity as a candidate. The Republican platform which described the Republican party as the party of peace and attacked Mr. Roosevelt for his provocative language and acts was approved by the common people of the country and greatly disturbed Mr. Roosevelt.

Accordingly, he is now engaged in an attempt to establish himself in people's minds as another who, like Willkie, is opposed to intervention in Europe. Mr. Roosevelt has just added two interventionists to his cabinet and asked for an army larger than is needed for the defense of America, but the country is expected to forget these facts and his earlier record. Mr. Roosevelt, in short, is another Democrat who "kept us out of war." He thinks the American people will fall for that one again.

TAKE OUR ARMY OUT OF CHINA.

The Japanese army and navy spokesmen have worked up an incident involving Japanese police and American marines in Shanghai. It is now a major affair. The Japanese army has been insulted; the Japanese navy has been insulted; the Japanese people have been insulted. Yards of face have been lost and admirals and generals denounce the affair with the skill of experts. The acts of the marines, in the words of Admiral Takeda, were "barbarous beyond description."

Col. DeWitt Peck, the marine commander, says the Japanese are liars and does not thus soothe the offended militarists. Mr. Hull who at first was unperturbed in Washington is now less so. The story as told by the marines is that the Japanese have been discourteously entering the marine area in the international settlement without giving notice of their intentions. They exposed a high ranking officer to possible indignity resulting from mistaken identity. They also drove trucks thru and then brought the affair to a climax by sending in a number of armed policemen who were discovered and arrested. The alleged barbarous treatment followed.

One clew to the cause of the uproar is afforded in the statement of the marine command that the arrested men were given the medical examination to which all persons under arrest are subjected. That would explain a great deal. The Japanese intended to provoke trouble. They got it, but our government must explain why the opportunity was given them.

What excuses our army of invasion in China? We must go back to other times and other conditions when the Chinese government, having been forced to grant concessions, spheres of influence, and treaty ports was supposed to be unable or unwilling to protect the foreign traders and foreign missions. For that reason American and European gunboats were in the rivers and garrisons were in the foreign quarters and international settlements. These arrangements have been carried over into new conditions. The Japanese have been at war, undeclared, with the Chinese government for three years. Their troops of occupation are in control of the cities in which our troops are stationed.

The military contact is now a dangerous one, as the Shanghai and other incidents reveal. The United States retains an artificial frontier in a country at war and American soldiers are protecting so-called rights which the invading Japanese do not want to respect and which they do not want to acknowledge. The régime represented by these protected settlements is one they plan to end.

America and Japan seem at times to be very near to drawn swords. We have troubles enough without that. The drawn sword will gain nothing American welfare or interest requires. A war with Japan would be a criminal blunder. Yet we invite it by useless military adventure in China. We also are invaders there, but with a force large enough only to be linked with disaster.

LOCKING THE TAX BARN IN TIME.

The state's attorney's office announces that forfeiture foreclosure proceedings against 737 properties, all of which have been delinquent on real estate taxes for 10 years or more, have collected $4,175,359. What is more important, the properties have been freed of their back tax load and presumably will make regular tax payments in the future.

This is a promising tho relatively small attack on the mountain of delinquent taxes that is choking real estate development and crippling local government in Chicago. The defects of the procedure have been pointed out before in these columns. Both the constitution and statutes of this state are so tender toward delinquent taxpayers that the only person who will bid in a foreclosure sale of this type is the owner of the equity in the property.

The foreclosure sales thus amount to a method of compromising taxes, which is always undesirable. It is only excusable when there appears some prospect of restoring a long delinquent property to an active taxpaying basis. Only extreme vigilance and an active conscience on the part of the state's attorney, who represents the public in the proceedings, can prevent abuse of the process. Fortunately State's Attorney Courtney and his assistant in tax matters, Mr. Kearney, seem to have exercised both.

There is one way in which the forfeiture foreclosure proceeding can be used without compromising taxes. That is the way it should have been used 10 years ago, when the present delinquencies were piling up. Foreclosure proceedings can be started as soon as two years' taxes on a property are forfeited.

In such instances the tax bill is far less than the value of the property. Outside bidders, who are discouraged from entering the sales of heavily burdened properties because the equity owner has the privilege of redeeming the property from them, would be much more strongly tempted to bid if they could get a title, subject only to the redemption privilege, for two years' taxes and penalties.

The state's attorney, in addition to cleaning up heavily burdened properties, should use the foreclosure proceedings to keep properties on the taxpaying list. Property owners should be threatened with foreclosure as soon as two years' bills are forfeited.

In most instances the threat will be sufficient. Where it is not, foreclosure at an early date will prevent the loss to local governments of a substantial proportion of the taxes owed, which they are now losing thru the foreclosures on long delinquent properties.

Editorial of the Day

PLEASE DO IT HERE.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer.]

St. Louis police have reached a decision which should make them just about the most popular law officers in the land. They have decided to use the swatter on that pest of all pests, the driver in the wedding parade who proceeds thru the streets with one hand glued to the horn button. Henceforth the St. Louis celebrant who starts out to escort the newlyweds to the railroad station in this raucous manner will find himself being escorted to the police station.

No one but the offenders would be sorry if the police of Cleveland and her suburbs adopted a similar policy. Undoubtedly the least put out would be the brides and grooms. For we have yet to observe a just married couple who were anything but embarrassed and annoyed by the frightful clamor raised in their honor by a line of peace wrecking, horn blowing, so-called friends.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

THINGS THEY ASK US.

The last line of each of the six stanzas of Kipling's poem, "Screw Guns," ends with "Tss! Tss!" What does this cryptic expression mean? [Virginia Moe.]

We are slightly baffled. To answer, we must write to the librarian of the war college, Washington, D. C., asking him to refer this point to the editor of the Field Artillery Journal, or we can try our luck at guessing. We prefer the latter course:

Kipling's "screw guns" were light artillery for mountain use, "built in two bits" as the verses say, and carried on mules. We suspect that they were equipped with a pneumatic recoil mechanism, which, when set in preparation for firing, gave a hissing sound. Hence the "Tss."

Kipling's works contain so many technical and topical allusions, now out of date, that they are much in need of footnotes.

* * *

What is the origin of the expression, "The life of Riley"? [J. Travelstead.]

We are completely stumped. Vizetelly's "Idioms and Idiomatic Phrases" [1923] does not contain it. In our own experience, this saying dates back only 20 years. We will advance the theory that this Riley was one of the Three Irish Musketeers, the others being the Real McCoy and Tom Collins. There are, no doubt, about 50 popular theories regarding the origin of "the life of Riley," all of them wrong.

More in Sorrow than in Anger.

Wishing the Linemaster a jolly holiday—but why did you [July 8] wrap the wet blanket of a defeatist around the fishing fraternity, vets and neophytes, who will carry on the Izaak Walton tradition in log cabins of the north woods, Excelsiorlike bearing high at the masthead the rod-and-reel banner inscribed with the angler's creed: Hope, optimism, expectancy to the last cast, enthusiasm, visions of that Big One, patience, satisfaction, meditation, and good luck to your partner, fish or no fish. . . . You may thank your stars if Bob Becker doesn't have you hauled before the high tribunal of the Izaak Walton league for your apostasy.

Required Reading in Schools of Acting.

So you want to become an actor? Go to the library and get a book called "A Narrative of the Life of Mrs. Charlotte Charke," an English actress of the Georgian period. Among other things, Charlotte said:

"'Tis a Pity that so many who have good Trades should idly quit them to become despicable Actors; which rendered them useless to themselves and very often Nuisances to others. Those who were bred up in the Profession have the best Right to make it their Calling, but their Rights are horribly invaded by Barbers, 'Prentices Taylors and Journeymen Weavers."

Mrs. Charke was the youngest daughter of Colley Cibber, manager, actor, dramatist, and mangler of Shakespearean texts.

MEMORIES OF ENGLAND—III.

(Westminster Abbey.)

Here rest the weary kings entombed in gold,
And here the warriors cease from battle strife.
Elizabeth the Queen, still proud and cold,
Maintains her regal dignity. Tho rife
With bloody conflict this tumultuous hour,
She, undisturbed, still rules the British heart.
On this old chair the monarchs came to power;
There Henry sat, assumed his royal part.
In this proud aisle brave Wellington, new-crowned
With victory, received the king's acclaim.
And here they brought their poets, much renowned—
Old Chaucer, Browning, Tennyson, whose fame
Can never die, tho men forget their kings;
Still from their "Corner" beauty sweetly sings.

Parnassus on North Clark Street.

Your mention of the Dill Pickle club [July 4 and 9] recalls another institution of learning of 1933—the College of Complexes, at 1317 North Clark street. On Friday evenings poets would gather there to recite their verses and compete for prizes ranging from $1 to $15. Thornton Wilder, Cati Mount, and Sis Wilner were often there to act as judges. The proprietor was Slim [Porkchops] Brundage.

One sad day in 1933 the grill room in the rear of the lecture hall was raided by prohibition agents. When I arrived to partake in the intellectual feast, I found the place gutted. So perished a noble institution, whose premises are now occupied by Clara's Resale shop.

WHY WATCH CHILDREN FOR INFECTIONS?

DURING the summer months when boys and girls go barefooted—or barelegged—we must protect them against wounds, abrasions, and scratches. No matter how tiny the cut may be, scrub the area with soap and water and then cover with a bit of clean gauze. Care is needed because every now and then we hear of an infection that finds its way to the blood stream and thence to vital parts—sometimes causing an abscess within one of the bones. Bad teeth are sometimes responsible and tonsilitis or respiratory difficulties may constitute the starter of a crippling disease [osteomyelitis]. Furthermore, we can teach our youngsters not to squeeze pimples, as bacteria may thus be forced into the blood stream.

Some of us forget that a scratch over which a scab forms may—if the lad is run down—harbor organisms within the parts, some of which may later journey into the circulation. Should germs lodge anywhere in the skeleton the resulting disease is known as inflammation of the bone marrow. The child becomes acutely ill long before symptoms localize. If an examination of the blood is made at this time microbes may be found in large numbers. Later the infection passes outward thru some porous portion of the bone, forming an abscess beneath the thin but tough covering, called the periosteum. There may be great pain and, in consequence, rest is disturbed. In fact the victim may be in so much agony that strength is lost rapidly.

Surveys show that in any sizable community there will be many similar illnesses each year and parents need to know more about it because life is in jeopardy. The malady requires the most careful handling if recovery is to be anticipated.

Drugs of the sulfanilamide type may be beneficial. A member of this group—sulfathiazol—has been suggested when the trouble is due to the staphylococcus. As a rule, however, surgery will be called for.

We must drain the abscess just as we would wash away foul accumulations wherever they may occur. But the question arises, how far reaching should the procedure be and can the little patient stand it? Recent studies point clearly to the fact that extensive removal of bone thru chiseling is attended with greater danger than when the soft tissues are incised, merely splitting the bone covering membrane [periosteum]. Plaster splints then relieve strain and tension and hence pain. If pus is discharging the Orr method of packing the wound with vaseline gauze or strips soaked in crude cod liver oil has met with favor.

A short time ago a 13 year old girl was admitted to the hospital because of acute pain in the vicinity of her right knee. At first it was thought that she was afflicted with arthritis. X-rays showed no abnormality of the bone, altho the temperature was high—103½ degrees Fahrenheit—and the white blood cells were increased in number. A blood culture was taken and showed numerous staphylococci. There was nothing significant about the knee except that it was swollen and extremely painful. With the thought that the lower end of the thigh bone might be involved splints were applied which eased her suffering. In this instance it was necessary only to separate the muscles and allow the pus which had burrowed thru to discharge. Within three months healing was complete, with perfect function of the knee, altho some thickening of the lower end of the femur remained.

Altho the condition may come on at any age, it is far more likely to attack one who is anemic, who does not have quite the reserve needed to combat the frequent infections which may be experienced. There is every reason to believe that conservative treatment is better than "hurry up" surgery. The fact that the X-ray will supply no evidence whatsoever in the early stages should be kept in mind. Just because the film fails to reveal the disorder does not mean that pus may not be present.

SYPHILIS.

D. D. C. writes: What does "leutic" mean? What is the cause? Can it be overcome?

REPLY.

The word "lues" means a plague or a pestilence. In common usage it applies to syphilis. The cause is a microscopic parasite. The disease can be conquered with adequate and intensive treatment. The proper drugs should be administered as soon as the malady is recognized.

DISAGREEABLE ODORS.

S. G. writes: What causes one to smell very nauseating odors at times?

REPLY.

In the malady called "ozena" the patient may detect the odor of putrefaction within his own nostrils. After a time he becomes accustomed to the foul smell altho those near by may be fully aware of its presence.

NEURALGIA.

M. M. writes: What is interstitial neuralgia?

REPLY.

You probably refer to "intercostal." This is characterized by a pain in the side [frequently the left] due to neuralgia of one or more of the intercostal nerves.

CHANGE FROM SHOCK.

A. R. writes: Can a shock bring on the change of life?

REPLY.

It may injure the autonomic [sympathetic] nervous system and hence interfere with certain glandular secretions. Not directly responsible, however.

WHERE THE HECK IS PROSPERITY?

Springfield, Ill., July 10.—We have 102 counties in Illinois. Taking all the counties of the United States and the depreciation in farm lands, business properties, residence properties, and lots, the enormous debts incurred by the spendthrifts would fade into insignificance compared to the losses sustained on property honestly acquired by years of hard work. Is this prosperity?

Business property here in Springfield that rented for $650 a month is now renting for $200 a month and is absorbed by taxes, insurance, and upkeep of the building.

Where in the heck is our prosperity? Please show me.

A MUTT AND GRANDFATHER.

P. S.—I believe the county treasurer can tell how each county of the United States is indebted and being mortgaged by the newly imposed taxes that will flow from the taxpayers' pocket.

CONSCRIPTION IN THE OFFING.

Chicago, July 10.—Do the people of the middle west know there has already been introduced in both senate and house a bill called the Burke-Wadsworth military conscription bill, which will require registration of all men from 18 to 65 and make all of us subject to conscription in accordance with the whims of the gang in control in Washington?

If we expect to retain any of our liberties we would better write our congressmen and let them know how we expect them to vote. If we don't this bill may be slipped thru in a hurry and we'll find the United States a totalitarian state.

Canada, which is at war, has not initiated conscription and announced just last week they have no intention of doing it. The United States, which is not at war, certainly has no need of conscription at this time. But we'll have a dictator if we aren't awake.

MAN FOR THE JOB IS FOUND.

Chicago, July 6.—The American republic has brought forward in this crisis a man fitted for the work to be done. Wendell Willkie is the people's choice and not a political machine choice. Like Lincoln, Wendell Willkie has come up the ladder by his own efforts. Those various rungs of the ladder have given him an insight of what the people need in our American way of living. He has now been drafted by the American people for public service to do the job of a real executive.

He has no promises to fulfill after election and he has no shyster corrupt political machine drafting him to carry them or keep them in power. In other words, our people have found the man for the place in our economic crisis.

RED TAPE IN PENSIONS.

Chicago, July 9.—Can any of your readers tell me how long it takes for an applicant for old age pension to have same approved?

Why does it take months for an individual, 80 years old and penniless, who has resided in the same neighborhood for over 50 years, to get this approval? All information requested could be checked in a day.

For the last five months the son-in-law has provided bed and board and paid doctor and medicine bills. The case worker knows all this, but still no action.

Is it necessary to have a political pull to get results?

DOGS IN FOOD STORES.

Chicago, July 10.—In your issue of June 30 there was a letter on Dogs in Stores and signed "Dog Lover."

Section 95-13 of the municipal code provides:

"It shall be unlawful for the owner of, or the person having the care or custody of, a dog to suffer or permit such dog to enter any store, meat market, bakery, or other place where foodstuffs are sold or on display; provided, that the person owning or operating such store or place may permit a watchdog to remain therein if chained or bound in such a way that such dog cannot come in contact with any of said foodstuffs. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be fined not less than $1 nor more than $10 for each offense."

The health department will be pleased to investigate if the names and addresses of places where violations have been noted are furnished.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

Chicago, July 10.—My deep sympathy goes to the young lady who was ordered off the Oak street beach along with her dog, who yearned for the playful waves of our beautiful Lake Michigan. Naturally she found it difficult to understand the attitude of the beach guards or police who sensed a menace to public health.

May I suggest that the owner and dog may find an unbridled playground in the food stores in the vicinity of Clark and Diversey? The store managers know we have ordinances, but who cares?

I came across at Portal, N. D., and found the Canadian officers most cordial. They welcomed me and my party of six. I told the truth about my baggage and they didn't bother to look.

American citizens are the most welcome people who could come to Canada.

INDIANA'S GOOD EXAMPLE.

Chicago, July 10.—Indiana has just enjoyed its first safe and sane Fourth of July under state-wide prohibition of private fireworks, and the results seem to have been highly gratifying. The Indianapolis News reported July 5 that there had been no accidents in that city from fireworks.

My home is in Lafayette and my family reports that they heard only two mild and distant "plops" the Fourth.

My mother has been ill for four years. In 1937 the fireworks hurt her so badly that in 1938 and 1939 we sent her to an outlying sanitarium to get away from them, altho she was so ill that moving her was difficult. This year she was able to stay at home in comfort.

Indiana's law was enacted after a survey of accidents, etc., caused by fireworks in 1938. In order not to hurt merchants who already had made investments it did not go into effect until 1940. It seems to me Illinois would do well to follow the example of Indiana.

OLIVE LEWIS.

WOULD BANISH FIREWORKS.

Farmer City, Ill., July 10.—We women in central Illinois want to do something to outlaw fireworks of all kinds in Illinois. As president of 85 women in our Federated Woman's club, I ask how can we go about it? Our town can outlaw them if we get busy, but that is of small avail.

HIS COMPLIMENTS TO THE BRASS HATS.

Murdock, Fla., July 9.—As a follower of the late Gen. William Mitchell, I must raise my voice in swelling the condemnation of the short-sighted, bungling BRASS HATS who won the world war at flat topped desks in Washington.

In attempting to discredit Gen. Mitchell they drew shame about their heads for, as history is being made today, the stature of this great general who lived ahead of his time so far overshadows the little men who demoted, court martialed, and hounded him, that they must continue to ahrivel.

If Wendell Willkie will take as his slogan "Clean out the brass hats" he will sweep the country in November, no matter whether F. D. R. runs or stays in the barn.

WAR EXEMPTION.

Elmwood Park, Ill., July 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In the course of a friendly argument, these questions upon which we disagreed, came up. Can you help us settle them?

1. In the event of war A claims all federal civil service employés are exempt. B says none of them is exempt. Who is right?

2. If A is right by what authority are they exempt?

3. A is a young man just married. He buys a home for $5,100, pays $1,000 down, balance of $40 per month for 15 years. The war comes along. A is drafted and his wife cannot, therefore, make the monthly payments. Will they lose their home because A is in the service of the government and cannot thereby work at his old job, or is there some provision made to stop payments temporarily until A returns, or any other provisions whereby they will not lose their home and life savings? If so, what are they?

4. Are employés of a firm engaged in governmental work exempt from war duty?

C. G.

1. and 2. It is not practicable to predict what legislation may be adopted in the course of a future war. Also your question does not make clear what exemption you are talking about. If it is exemption from draft, then every one is exempt in the sense that there is no draft legislation now on the books.

3. During the first world war extensions of time were granted on such facts. It seems probable that something similar would be done in another similar emergency.

TODAY IN HISTORY

July 13, 1863

Rioting broke out in New York City in protest of federal army drafting. Hundreds of persons were killed or wounded and the violence continued for five days. Order finally was restored by Union soldiers, sent back from the front. The federal government had been driven to conscription this year. The first attempts to carry it out resulted in disorders in many cities, but the New York outbreak was the most violent.

ROOSEVELT ACTS TO MOBILIZE U. S. NATIONAL GUARD

Picks Four Divisions for First Call; All Later.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—The White House announced tonight that President Roosevelt, with permission of congress, intends to order into the federal service, for a period of intensive training, four divisions and other units of National Guard troops aggregating about 50,000 men. Thirty days after these men are called, the entire National Guard of 240,000 men is expected to be mobilized.

Gen. Marshall shown testifying. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

The White House announcement came a few hours after war department witnesses, testifying before the senate military affairs committee, outlined plans for the creation of a vast conscript army and urged that the entire National Guard be mobilized immediately for at least a year of training. Both the war and navy departments urged immediate adoption of compulsory selective service legislation.

Conscript Training Is Goal.

Preparation for training the conscript army is the purpose of ordering the National Guard into federal service. War department officials explained that the guard itself must be trained before it is assigned the task of assisting the regular army in training the conscripts.

National Guard officials disclosed that the four divisions and antiaircraft and coast defense regiments mentioned by the White House announcement are only the first units to be called and that the plan contemplates mobilizing the entire National Guard one month later.

Altho White House Secretary Stephen T. Early indicated the initial units will be called almost immediately, he explained later that no action will be taken until congress gives the President the necessary authority.

Earlier Move Opposed.

The President requested authority to mobilize the National Guard in a message to congress last May 31, and the house military affairs committee reported a bill giving him such authority. There was strong opposition to the President's proposal, however, and there has been no further action. It was indicated today that congress will be subjected to pressure for immediate action when it reassembles on July 22.

The President has authority under existing law to "call" the National Guard for limited training periods and to deal with local emergencies. In either case, however, the guard units are subject to the authority of the states. If congress gives the President the necessary authority, the guard will be "ordered," as distinguished from "called," into the federal service and will become a part of the army of the United States.

Initial Organizations Listed.

The initial organizations to be called are:

1. The 44th division, comprising units in New York and New Jersey.
2. The 30th division, comprising units in Tennessee and North and South Carolina.
3. The 45th division, comprising units in New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arizona, and Colorado.
4. The 41st division, comprising units in Oregon, Washington, Montana, and Idaho.
5. Seven antiaircraft regiments, one-third of all the antiaircraft personnel in the National Guard.
6. An unspecified number [probably all 12] of the National Guard sea coast and harbor defense regiments.

Among the first seven antiaircraft regiments to be mobilized, it was learned, is the 202d coast artillery of the Illinois National Guard. No other units in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, or Iowa will be among the initial mobilization.

Secretary Early announced the guard mobilization plan after President Roosevelt had conferred with Henry L. Stimson, his new 72 year old secretary of war.

"As a general objective it was agreed that we should prepare to give training under federal orders to four divisions of the National Guard and to various other guard units as soon as possible," Early said.

"At the conclusion of their training it will be determined under the conditions then prevailing whether the training of the guard under federal orders should be further extended.

"The President and Mr. Stimson said that it was reported to them that the overwhelming majority of the guard desire training."

War Cabinet Charge Made.

The recommendation that congress approve conscription legislation was the first official act of the war department under the administration of Secretary Stimson, who took office Wednesday. The appointment of Stimson, an interventionist Republican, resulted in senate charges that Mr. Roosevelt was creating a war cabinet. Stimson urged immediate conscription in a speech two days before his appointment on June 20.

Senators most familiar with the army and navy expressed surprise today when Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, and other army and navy officers not only approved but strongly urged compulsory selective service. Friends of Gen. Marshall had been told only last week that the army did not favor conscription.

Navy Waiting List Reported.

Both Gen. Marshall and Rear Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, chief of the bureau of navigation, conceded during their testimony today that voluntary enlistments have been exceeding the army and navy quotas. Gen. Marshall testified that the army's enlistment quota for June was 15,000 men and that 18,000 enlisted during the first 20 days of the month. Rear Admiral Nimitz testified not only that the navy has had no difficulty in getting recruits but that it has a waiting list of 7,000 men.

Gen. Marshall urged mobilization of the National Guard on the ground that it will be required to help train the conscripts if compulsory service legislation is adopted.

Discusses Training Needs.

"I might say that if such a measure is accepted by the congress," said Gen. Marshall," the practical proposition of putting it into effect requires one of two things: Either that we mobilize the National Guard for the purpose of training these men in its ranks and also in the ranks of the regular army units, where we must have men as soon as possible, or we must emasculate the regular army and the National Guard at the present time in order to provide the training cadres to handle the men.

"The training of the young men in the large training camps we could not do at the present time; we have not the men, the material, the set-up, at the moment. We would have to make the first step within the ranks of the National Guard and the regular army. We could not dare, in view of the present situation, emasculate our units to provide the training."

Gen. Marshall explained that the present strength of the army is 249,000 men and that it is to be increased as soon as possible to 375,000, comprising a ground force of 335,000 and an air force of 40,000. When asked what number of men would be called into service if congress should adopt conscription, Gen. Marshall replied:

"The first number we would like to draw, using the act in relation to our ability to equip them, would be somewhere between 300,000 and 400,000 by Oct. 1. The next increment would be next April, 400,000 men. After you pass beyond next April you probably reach the basis of 600,000 by the following October."

Program Further Projected.

Lieut. Col. H. L. Twaddle, speaking for Brig. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, chief of operations and training, projected the compulsory service program still further. The National Guard would be sent home, he said, after one year.

He estimated that the army could complete its first objective—a protective mobilization force of 1,200,000 men, fully trained and equipped—by April 1, 1943. By June 1, 1945, he said, the army would have the protective mobilization force of 1,200,000, plus 3,000,000 trained reserves.

Col. Twaddle estimated that the training program would cost about 1 billion dollars for the first fiscal year, or the remainder of the present fiscal year, and about $750,000,000 in succeeding years. This would include pay of $21 a month for the conscripts.

Favor Changes in Bill.

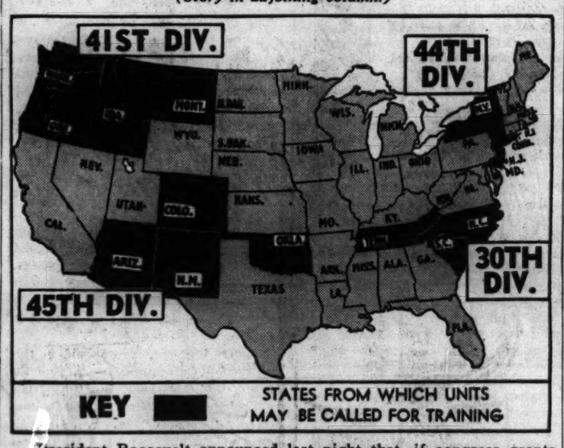
Altho the army and navy officers approved the objectives of the Burke-Wadsworth bill, sponsored by the Military Training Camps association, they urged modifications which, if adopted, will result in a new bill. They did not like the provision of the Burke-Wadsworth bill requiring the registration for possible compulsory service of all males from 18 to 65, of which there are some 42,000,000. The bill would subject those in the age group 18-21 to so-called noncombat service and those in the 45-65 group to home defense service.

Brig. Gen. W. E. Shedd, assistant chief of staff in charge of personnel, said the question of organizing home defense units should be dealt with in separate legislation if at all. Other witnesses said the registration of boys from 18 to 21 would not be necessary, since there are 11,500,000 males in the group from 21 to 30 inclusive and 780,000 first class men become 21 each year.

Both the army and navy officers testified that the 8 month training period required by the Burke-Wadsworth bill is too short. At least 18 months is required to train men in modern warfare, they said.

Proposes Calling National Guard

(Story in adjoining column.)



President Roosevelt announced last night that, if congress grants permission, he will call four divisions of the National Guard immediately for intensive training. Names of divisions appear near groups of states whose soldiers compose the units. The remaining units, it is expected, would be called 30 days later.

LONG RANGE U. S. BOMBERS URGED BY AIR OFFICIAL

Albuquerque, N. M., July 12 (AP).—The building of long range bombers and coördination of America's air arm in the national defense program were urged today in an interview by D. W. [Tommy] Tomlinson, TWA vice president in charge of research.

"When you talk about 50,000 war planes, a lot of questions enter the picture," the former speed flyer said. "Primarily, there is the problem of providing trained ground crews to care for the ships. Then there is the one of airports.

"We talk about basing 1,000 planes at La Guardia field in New York. That would be duck soup for an enemy bomber. Instead of building that large field, Hitler would have scattered them up and down Long Island."

Tomlinson said the United States should concentrate on building long range bombers because "we may have to bomb enemy bases as far away as Greenland, if we get into a war."

British Shell Fired Across Bow, U. S. Vessel Reports

Boston, Mass., July 12 (AP).—A shell fired across her bow by a British shore battery at Port of Spain, Trinidad, was reported by crew members of the new American freighter, Flying Fish, on arrival here today. Capt. Waldo E. Wollaston declined to discuss the incident, which occurred July 5. Others aboard said the vessel, which had been given approval to proceed after being halted by a British patrol, was entering port with a pilot and with proper signals flying when the shell was fired.

Fisherman Kills Three Game Wardens and Self

Waterville, Minn., July 12 [Special].—Three state game wardens were killed late today by a Waterville man who then committed suicide. The officers had been enforcing the state law governing the taking of rough fish from lakes in this area. Chief Game Warden Joseph A. Lingle said the wardens killed were Marcus Whipps, Dud Brady and Melvin Holt. The slayer was identified by Dr. J. J. Kolars, Le Sueur county coroner, as Brandt Baumgartner.

Lasser Seeking to Form New Workers' Movement

Washington, D. C., July 12 (AP).—David Lasser, who recently resigned the presidency of the Workers alliance—which he said had become "only a mouthpiece of the communist element"—issued an appeal today for the formation of a new workers' movement. Ballots to decide on the holding of a national conference at either Washington or Chicago in August have been mailed to various WPA, labor, farmer, youth and other groups, Lasser said.

NATIONAL GUARD DOVETAILS INTO REGULAR ARMY

Equipped, Paid, Trained by Government.

The National Guard, four divisions of which President Roosevelt plans to order into training soon, has been an integral part of the armed defense forces of the United States for nearly 25 years. Its present strength of 240,000 men is divided among 18 divisions and certain units attached to corps and army organizations.

Before 1916 the National Guard of each state operated almost as an independent unit under state authority exclusively. The national defense act of that year incorporated the Guard into the army and there have been several amendments since strengthening the tie. Now all National Guardsmen are clothed, equipped and paid by the government; the states usually furnish little besides armories.

Major General Is Commander.

General command of all National Guardsmen is vested in the chief of the National Guard bureau of the army, with headquarters in Washington. Maj. Gen. Albert H. Blanding is the present commander. He is responsible only to the chief of staff of the army and to the secretary of war. He is, however, in close touch with the regular army and has an assistant who is a regular brigadier general.

Coöperation of the regulars with the Guard goes much further than this. Each National Guard regiment has assigned to it a regular officer and one enlisted regular, who act as advisers. Also, each of the Guard divisions has a senior instructor who is a regular army man.

Guardsmen, who are all volunteers, are trained more thoroly than many realize. Each unit is called to armory drill periods 48 times a year and is given three weeks of field work each summer. Pay is at the regular scale for equivalent grades in the army—each man gets a day's pay for a training session and three weeks' pay while in camp.

Work 10-12 Hours a Week.

According to Guard officers, the time they put in on study and duty actually consumes 10 to 12 hours a week. They say a noncommissioned officer must put in four to eight hours a week.

A National Guard infantry division includes four infantry regiments, three artillery regiments, an engineer regiment, a medical regiment, a quartermaster regiment, attached air units and special troops—an ordnance company, signal company, headquarters company, tank company and military police.

The corps and army units include coast artillery, which takes in antiaircraft batteries, and cavalry divisions, of which there are four in the country. In late years progress has been made in converting the cavalry into motorized units. Most of the infantry, and artillery transport is by motor truck, and the personnel has been studying on how to handle such transport.

Illinois Has One Division.

One division, the 33d, is recruited exclusively in Illinois. It was not listed in the units to be ordered out first by the President [with congressional approval]. It is assumed that its personnel and that of the 32d division from Michigan and Wisconsin—together making up the 6th corps—would be sent under army plans when their turn comes to San Antonio and Fort Clark, Tex., for training.

Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton, the commander of the 33d, said last night that it now has about 10,000 officers and men. Full strength under the old "square division" organization would be about 27,000. Some military experts hold that modern divisions will be held down to a more mobile 16,000 to 18,000.

Regiment May Go at Once.

One Illinois National Guard regiment, the 202d coast artillery, is to be ordered to camp at once if President Roosevelt's plan for intensive military training is approved.

Lieut. Col. Edward McTamaney said last night that the regiment, which is an antiaircraft unit, had a present strength of 1,187 enlisted men and 49 officers, or about 85 per cent of full peacetime quota.

"If we get a call to go," he said, "the assumption is that some at least of our men would go to the coast. Probably the training period would be from four months to a year."

Maurice Maeterlinck, Belgian writer, and his wife as they arrived in New York from Lisbon, Portugal, yesterday.

Loses Money, Books

Hoboken, N. J., July 12 (AP).—Maurice Maeterlinck, the Belgian playwright who wrote the celebrated "Bluebird," arrived from Lisbon, Portugal, on the Greek liner Nea Hellas today, a war refugee.

The 78 year old writer wore a gray wig held down by a hairnet and clutched a French edition of "Gone With the Wind." He said that all he had left in the world was the little baggage with him. He plans to stay with a friend in New York until the war is over.

With him was his attractive blonde wife, 30 years his junior, whom he married 20 years ago. Maeterlinck said that all his money had been in Belgian banks, now in German hands, and that his books and papers were lost in Paris.

DEMOCRAT RUSH BY TRAIN AND PLANE AWAITED

Railway and air line company officials announced plans yesterday for handling the arrival of Democratic convention delegates and visitors over the week-end.

Representatives of the New York Central system said 20 extra trains probably will be needed today and tomorrow to take care of traffic from Boston, New York, Philadelphia, and Louisville.

The Pennsylvania railroad has been running two sections of The General from New York City for the last three days. One of the Pennsylvania special trains, The Democrat, will arrive this morning with 12 cars carrying Washington visitors.

One hundred and seventy-five convention visitors will arrive this morning on the California Democratic Special, a 12 car special train on the Burlington railroad.

American Air Lines officials said 12 extra planes will be placed in service over the week-end. United Air Lines will have three special runs.

Avery Brundage Heads Keep Out of War Group

Avery Brundage, building contractor and president of the American Olympics committee, was elected chairman of the Keep America Out of War committee at a meeting last night in the Hotel La Salle. Capt. William J. Grace was chosen executive secretary. The committee plans a massmeeting on Aug. 4 in Soldiers' field.

$25,000 Damage Caused as Fire Sweeps Foundry

Fire destroyed materials and equipment valued at $25,000 yesterday at the Pyott Foundry and Machine company, 328 North Sangamon street. Fire Marshal Michael J. Corrigan said faulty wiring or the spilling of molten metal in the foundry had probably caused the blaze.

FASCISTS COVET BRITISH OWNED LANDS IN SPAIN

Urge Seizure of Business 'Gibraltars.'

BY MAURICE ENGLISH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, July 12.—In addition to Gibraltar, Spanish claims on the English include all of the "economic Gibraltars" which English capital created on Spanish soil, the newspaper Pueblo declared tonight.

This official organ of the Falangists [Fascist] labor front, climaxed a series of articles on the country's economic program with an editorial, "Spanish Mines for Spain," which declared that the fundamental aim of the revolution was nationalization of all riches in the country.

The British-owned Riotinto copper and pyrites mines specifically are mentioned as economic Gibraltars.

Seek Control of Property.

The editorial made it clear that Spain also wants control of the Penarroya mine and those in the Basque country in which English capital has been dominant.

Similar, but less outspoken claims, have been voiced in other sections of the Spanish press recently and also expressed in posters on the main streets.

There has been no indication in the press regarding the official attitude toward American investments in Spain, such as the telephone system, owned by International Telephone and Telegraph company, and the Ford and General Motors plants in Barcelona. The latter have not been allowed to resume production since the end of the civil war, but on the other hand, no progress has yet been made on the creation of a native automobile industry, one of the items on the government's program.

Criticize New French Rule.

The Madrid press was unanimous today in describing the new totalitarian structure for the French state set up at Vichy as a jerrybuilt creation which does not merit the sympathy of the Spaniards. Dispatches from Rome and Berlin, declaring that France would not be allowed to escape her "just punishment for provoking the war" by blaming England were prominently displayed.

The Spaniards are being informed that their government is united with the axis in its determination not to forget the injuries done to the nationalist cause by France's former Popular Front.

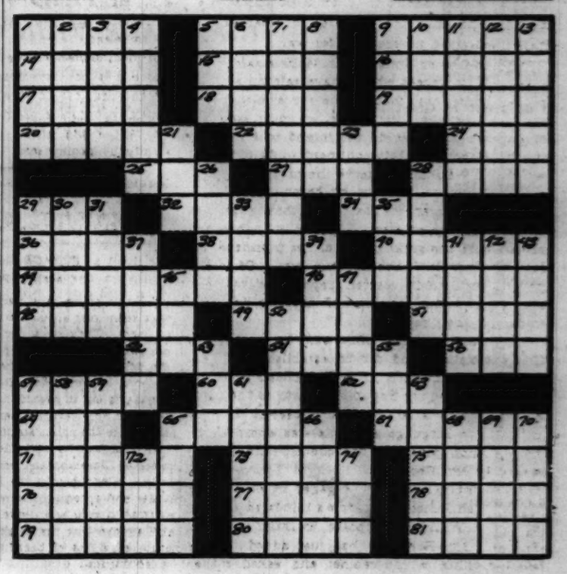
PUZZLE OF FRIDAY, JULY 12, SOLVED



BRITAIN DELAYS SENDING OF WAR CHILDREN TO U. S.

Lack of Convoys Holds Up Refugee Plan.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 12.—The British government's scheme to evacuate children to the Dominions and the United States has been indefinitly postponed, it was announced tonight. The ministry of information statement points out that the sinking of the fast luxury liner, Arandora Star, makes it impossible for the government to assume the responsibility of sending shiploads of children away from the country without protective convoys.

[The Arandora Star was sunk off the Irish coast while en route to Canada with German and Italian internees with a loss of 1,000 lives.]

While ample shipping space is said to be available to transport children at the present time, naval shipping vessels have more imperative duties than escorting special convoys overseas, and hence they cannot be diverted to this purpose.

No Trouble Over Visas.

The American consulate today indignantly denied that visa difficulties have in any way retarded the evacuation of children to the United States. It stated that already 1,700 children have visas to go to the United States, where homes already have been found for them, but the difficulties and danger of transportation have been delaying their departure from the country.

The consulate declared that by Aug. 1 they would be easily able to visa 13,000 passports, but even the sending of such numbers to the United States presents serious shipping problems and the opinion of many here is that it is safer for the children to stay out the war in England than to venture onto the submarine infested high seas. Now, when the airplane is able to sow mines over an extensive area of the sea, it is pointed out that this alone constitutes a grave danger.

COMMITTEE KEEPS UP WORK.

Chicago agencies and Marshall Field III., national chairman, announced last night that decision of the British government to postpone the evacuation to this country of child war refugees would not affect their work of canvassing the nation for temporary homes in which to place the children should they eventually arrive in the United States.

Applications will still be taken on a when, as, and if basis from those willing to receive refugee children into their homes for the duration of the war. The United States Committee for the Care of European Children, which Mr. Field heads, will continue to function.

Keep Organization Intact.

"Postponement is not abandonment," Mr. Field said of the British announcement. "The organization of the child refugee committee will be kept intact so that it may be available for any further emergency."

M. K. Reckord, director of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society, who has been nominated as chairman of the Chicago division of the United States committee, said:

"We are planning to go ahead with our preparations."

Mrs. M. Ogden West, secretary of the English Speaking union, stated:

"We can't believe that with 100,000 children wanting to be evacuated the whole plan will simply be dropped."

Bishop Sheil Hopeful.

The Most Rev. Bernard J. Shiell, auxiliary bishop of the Catholic diocese of Chicago and the only Chicago member of the Field national committee, repeated his prediction that present difficulties would be solved and said that Chicago would be ready to take its quota when the children arrive.

In certain quarters the action of the British government was considered to be a "feeler" to determine whether the United States would relax neutrality restrictions forbidding American ships from entering the war zone. But the impression prevails that the United States government will not alter these provisions. When this becomes clear, some spokesmen said, the British themselves will probably provide sufficient convoys.

U-BOAT CHASING CHILD REFUGEES IS BELIEVED SUNK

AN EASTERN CANADIAN PORT, July 12 (AP).—Persons landing from liners which brought nearly 2,000 British children to a refuge in Canada said today that three submarines approached the ships during the trip and that one was believed to have been sunk by an escorting warship.

Two of the submarines, of unknown nationality, appeared on the surface two days out of Great Britain, the passengers said.

They were sighted by a flying boat. An escorting warship steamed ahead of the convoy and fired five shots. Afterwards, the flying boat reported, oil appeared on the surface. The other submarine was chased away by depth charges after it had submerged.

Two days later another submarine was reported sighted, but also was chased off by depth bombs.

Of several ships in the convoy, one carried 1,200 children who came under private sponsorship.

CUBA TENSE OVER ELECTION; SHOTS AND CHARGES FLY

Army Man Slain; Letter Hits at Candidate.

BY GUSTAVO RENO.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, July 12.—The shooting of a military supervisor and circulation of copies of a letter charging that Ramon Grau San Martin, opposition presidential candidate, was responsible for his brother's suicide heightened Cuba's tense election campaign today.

Sgt. Jacinto Fernandez was shot to death at Jatibonico by unidentified masked men shortly after he announced that Col. Fulgencio Batista, Cuba's "strong man" and army leader, would be elected president in Sunday's election. Followers of Batista charged the opposition camp with responsibility for the slaying. Further bloodshed was predicted for election day.

As a result the voting in Jatibonico, Florida, and Guaimaro counties in Camaguey province was postponed indefinitly.

Distribute Letter.

Thousands of leaflets bearing the reproduction of a letter allegedly written by Francisco Grau San Martin, brother of the presidential candidate, shortly before he took his life in September, 1932, over what he said was the "treason of my brother and my wife," were distributed thruout Havana. The letter, addressed to the judge of Havana's fifth criminal court, said:

"Mr. Judge: For some time past I have been seriously thinking of taking my life. Last month I had decided to do it, but after having everything ready my plans failed thru lack of courage. But I cannot any longer bear the treason of my brother and my wife. My brother, Ramon Grau San Martin, physician and professor of the National university, is the greatest coward known. He is a cynic with less self-respect than a dog. Please forgive me and accept this letter as my testament. [Signed] Francisco Grau San Martin."

Charge Unfair Tactics.

Copies of the leaflet sent to other cities in the island in official envelopes were presented to the supreme electoral court by supporters of Grau San Martin. They charged the Batista group with unfair tactics in circulating the letter and demanded that the election be postponed. The court refused to call off the balloting.

Grau San Martin, who became Cuba's president when the revolt led by Batista deposed Carlos Manuel de Cespedes on Sept. 4, 1933, moved into the presidential palace with his brother's widow and children. It has been reliably reported that he married her only six weeks ago.

DE PAUL CO-ED DIES; SIX BLOOD GIFTS ARE VAIN

Miss Mary McCormick, 25 years old, who had been ill with a streptococcus viridans infection, died yesterday in the Woodlawn hospital. Her brother, Walter B. McCormick Jr., said death came unexpectedly after his sister had appeared to rally Thursday evening.

Miss McCormick was a junior at De Paul university. She was given six blood transfusions, the last four by two young men who had recovered from the disease.

Miss McCormick lived at 6734 Cornell avenue. She leaves her father, W. B. McCormick, a real estate broker; her mother and her brother. Services will be held Monday in Fairbury, Livingston county.

197,795 on Relief in City After 12th Monthly Drop

The rolls of the Chicago Relief administration declined during June for the 12th consecutive month, Leo M. Lyons, relief commissioner, reported yesterday. A total of 197,795 persons were aided during June, compared with the peak of 269,000 reached during June, 1939. During last month 3,720 cases were closed, 1,452 of them because the recipients had obtained regular employment.

BEG YOUR PARDON

A story in THE TRIBUNE Wednesday erroneously identified Dr. Alice Masaryk with Hull House settlement. She was a resident of the University of Chicago settlement, representatives there said, for two months before July 4, and she will return to her position in September after a vacation.

CHICAGO TO GET TELEVISION PLANT SOON AFTER JAN. 1

A television station with a regular schedule of programs will be placed in operation by Balaban & Katz shortly after next Jan. 1, John Balaban, secretary of the company in charge of Chicago operations, announced yesterday.

Three sites for the transmitter, two in the loop and one on the west side, are under consideration, Balaban said. The company has an experimental license issued by the Federal Communications commission.

An initial expenditure of $100,000 for transmitting, receiving, and studio equipment has been authorized. At least 100 receivers will be distributed. Many will be installed in theaters in Chicago and the suburbs, Illinois and Indiana. The station will have maximum reception within a radius of 50 miles, it was stated; minimum service within a radius of 100 miles.

The station will devote itself to experimental work to determine types of programs most feasible for this new medium television, Balaban said. Motion picture film as well as radio, stage, screen, and operatic personalities will be subjects for telecasting.

ASK DISMISSAL OF ESTATE SUIT FOR INFANT BOYS

Counsel for Mrs. Annette Eppenstein, in an answer filed yesterday in Kane county Probate court at Geneva, asked dismissal of a claim filed June 11 for two-fifths of the $2,000,000 estate of her late husband in behalf of two infant boys who are allegedly children of his born out of wedlock. Her husband, Louis A. Eppenstein, president of the Illinois Watch Case company of Elgin, died last Oct. 24 at the age of 59.

The answer, filed by the Chicago law firm of Rosenthal, Hamill, Eldridge and King, denied the facts of the claim and asked "strict proof." The claim was brought by Mrs. Helen Metz as guardian for the children, whose mother is Miss Zelda Satlow, also known as Mrs. Judith Sanford, 10 West Elm street. The claim states that her relationship with Eppenstein lasted eight years, that one son was born last August, and the other three years ago, and that one was named after Eppenstein and the second after his father, Charles Eppenstein.

The case will be called next Tuesday before Probate Judge Harry C. Daniels in Geneva.

WORD OF RUSSIAN PRINCESS' DEATH RECEIVED BY SON

Word of the death Sunday in Budapest, Hungury, of the Princess Alexandra Galitzine, a Russian refugee, was received here yesterday by her son, Nicholas, and a daughter, the Princess Aleka Rostislav. The Princess Galitzine was 77 years old. Other surviving members of her family are four daughters, Mme. Aglaida Unkowskoy of Vienna, Austria; Countess Maya Szechenyi of Budapest; Mrs. James Campbell of London, England, and the Baroness Sophia Von Liebieg of Reichenberg, Germany. Memorial services will be conducted at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday in the Russian Holy Trinity cathedral at 1121 North Leavitt street. The Princess Galitzine visited Chicago in 1927 and 1934.

New Zealand Clipper Off on Its Inaugural Flight

Los Angeles, Cal., July 12 (AP).—A huge Pan-American Clipper ship hopped off at 4:35 p. m. [7:35 p. m., Chicago daylight time] from Cabrillo Beach today, bound for Auckland, New Zealand, to establish the first air line across the South Pacific ocean.

FINDS ALL IS NOT DIAMOND HOARD THAT GLITTERS

Hyde Park police last night were seeking two confidence men who, earlier in the day, defrauded Leonard Irlacher, owner of an apartment building at 5501 Cornell avenue, of $1,800.

The victim had fallen into conversation with the first of the confidence men, who told him he was seeking a long lost brother to give him 14 diamonds, worth $450 apiece, as a share of the family estate. He had despaired, however, of finding the brother and was ready to sell the stones, Irlacher was told.

When Irlacher became interested, his visitor summoned a second man who, asserting he was formerly a jeweler, produced a microscope and scales and said they were indeed fine diamonds. So fine were they, the second confidence man said, that he insisted on buying them. No. 1, however, wanted Irlacher to have them. Last night Mr. Irlacher had 14 pieces of glass—imitation diamonds—and his two visitors had $1,800 which he had withdrawn from a bank, according to Detective Patrick O'Connell of the Hyde Park station.

REPORT WOMAN'S CONDITION GRAVE AFTER ROOF LEAP

Mrs. Anna Kroll, 55 years old, who plunged from the roof of a three story building at 2123 Washington boulevard early yesterday, was reported to be in a serious condition in County hospital last night. Mrs. Kroll jumped from the roof as several hundred persons watched.

The woman stood poised on the edge of the roof for nearly six hours and leaped while police made preparations to rescue her. She sat on the roof several hours before police were notified and balked attempts to reach her by threatening to jump.

Detectives Thomas Stapleton and George Tapling of the Warren avenue station appeared and called for assistance. She jumped before it arrived. Mrs. Kroll, who has been a widow for five years, has been on relief. She has lived in the building three months.

JAS. H. PERKINS IS DEAD AT 64; N. Y. BANK HEAD

New York, July 12 (AP).—James H. Perkins, 64 years old, chairman of the board of the National City bank of New York since 1933, died of heart disease tonight while visiting Arthur M. Anderson, a banker, at Mount Kisco, N. Y. A native of Milton, Mass., and a graduate of Harvard, he had been president of the New York Clearing house since 1937. He was director of a number of insurance, mining, and railway companies. Perkins was a member of the American Red Cross commission to Europe in 1917, but resigned to enter the U. S. army, where he became a lieutenant colonel in the quartermaster's corps. Later he was assistant chief of staff for the American army of occupation.

Ex-Cathleen Vanderbilt Divorces L. W. Lowman

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, July 12.—Mrs. Cathleen Vanderbilt Lowman, wealthy New York society leader, today was granted an uncontested divorce from her husband, Lawrence Wise Lowman, by Judge Sanches Gallaraga. Married in 1932, she charged Lowman wanted to live a life away from all society.

CHICAGO LEADERS BACK PROPOSED CAR LINE PLAN

The citizens' subway committee, a group of business and civic leaders who helped to get a federal subway grant for Chicago in 1938, urged full support yesterday of the proposed unified traction ordinance. Frank A. Hecht, chairman of the committee, appeared at a public hearing on the ordinance to congratulate the city council's local transportation committee and other city officials on the unification plan.

"The traction tangle is probably Chicago's greatest problem," Hecht said. "The unification and modernization program to be undertaken will do much for Chicago if it succeeds and will seriously affect Chicago if it fails."

Robert Warden, representing the Englewood Community club, also indorsed the ordinance, but suggested an additional provision for extensions of rapid transit service. He said residents of Edgewood on the northwest side of Chicago would be willing to pay a 12 cent fare for improved service.

The hearings were continued to July 22 by Ald. James R. Quinn [50th], chairman of the transportation committee.

SIX WOMEN DIE IN HOSPITAL FIRE; ANOTHER INJURED

Cincinnati, O., July 12 (AP).—Six women died and another was burned severely as fire early today trapped 30 residents and employés on the third floor of the Holy Family home, a branch of St. Francis hospital.

The dead were Mary Rose Watkins, 42; Mary Theders, 57; Minnie Brandhoff, 57; Regina Niekamp, 45; Theresa Burghart, 78, of Cleveland, and Rosaline Burns, 41, all residents. Jennie Kenster was burned seriously.

Flames starting in the basement laundry cut off escape by stairways. Many occupants of the building were led down fire escapes. Others were rescued thru windows.

Police Major Elmer O'Neil saw the blaze as he was passing in an automobile and said he heard persons shouting "save me." He helped carry four down fire escapes, while hospital employés went from room to room arousing patients.

MRS. EDWARD GILMAN DIES.

Mendota, Ill., July 12 [Special].—Mrs. Edward Gilman, 83 years old, past president of the Mendota Woman's club and owner of one of the most beautiful private gardens in this part of the state, died yesterday.

Dinner-Dance Just Prelude to Clarina Scudder's Stage Debut

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE dinner-dance at which Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence W. Scudder of Lake Forest will present their elder daughter, Miss Clarina, this evening will not be the only debut which the gifted young woman will make this season. An even more exciting one is in store for her. She is to make her first appearance on the stage in August. Miss Scudder, who was graduated in the spring from the American Academy of Dramatic Art in New York, will spend two weeks in Ridgefield, Conn., with a summer stock company and then will go to New York to "seek her fortune."

If the weather permits tonight's affair will be held at the pool at the Onwentsia. Miss Peggy Houghteling, who arrived yesterday from Washington with her parents, the James L. Houghtelings, will be the Scudders' house guest this evening. The Houghtelings are planning to spend the next two months in their Winnetka home.

Next Friday Mrs. Scudder, Miss Clarina, and Mary Scudder will depart for Chocorua, N. H., to escape the hay fever season. Subdeb Mary, who is feeling thankful that she has recovered sufficiently from a recent appendectomy to attend her sister's debut tonight, and Mrs. Scudder will return from the White mountains at the end of September.

Two Clubs Are Giving Summer Dances Tonight.

The Dunham Woods Riding club and the Saddle and Cycle are having midsummer dinner-dances tonight. More than 100 are expected at the smart little club in Wayne, among them the Perry Drydens, the Chauncey Blairs, the James R. Shennans, the John Mercers, the Kenneth M. Hesses, the Edgerton Throckmortons, and the Stephen Harringtons.

Dining and dancing at the Saddle in cool breezes from the lake—they hope—will be the Merrill Shepards, the Thomas Underwoods, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Winfield Ellis, who are entertaining at cocktails before the party; the John Farwells, the Paget Cadys, the Herbert Stratfords, the Wells and John Farnhams, and Laurens Hastings, among others.

Friends of the Robert H. Gardners and the Marquis Bowmans will gather tonight in the Gardners' white garden for dancing. A Hungarian gypsy orchestra will furnish the music and artificial moonlight will be created thru indirect lighting. Mr. and Mrs. John Coblidge and the Robert Cartons are among those who will have dinners before the dancing.

Every one who met Mrs. Gardner's young English relative, Anthony Benn, last summer will be glad to hear that he is speedily recovering from a serious wound he received in the battle of Flanders. His older brother, John, is a liaison officer in Finland. Mrs. Gardner's brother, Samuel D. Flood Jr., is still in the consular service in Naples.

Mrs. William P. Martin Dinner Hostess Tonight.

Mrs. William P. Martin is entertaining at a dove dinner party tonight. Her guests will include Mrs. H. H. Brady of New York, who is visiting her daughter, Mrs. John G. Beadle, in Lake Forest; Mrs. Keene Addington, Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, Mrs. James O. Hinkley, and Mrs. George McLaughlin. After dinner Mrs. Hinkley will take her guests to Ravinia park to occupy her box for tonight's Ravinia Festival concert.

From New York comes the announcement of the engagement of Miss Jean Roig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Joseph Roig of 117 East 78th street, to John Thompson Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thompson Ross of Chicago. Miss Roig attended the Brearley school and was graduated from the Shipley school and Smith college. She made her debut in 1936 and is a member of the New York Junior league. Mr. Ross was graduated from the Choate school and from Princeton with the class of 1939. He is engaged in business in New York.

This Is Golf Day for French Relief Fund.

Those who play golf tomorrow at the Old Elm, the Onwentsia, and the Shoreacres clubs each will pay one dollar and so participate in a nation-wide tournament that will raise funds for French relief. The money will be given to the American Friends of France. Mrs. Howard Linn, who originated the idea of the tournament, chose tomorrow as the day upon which it was to be held because July 14 is Bastille day.

Mrs. Linn wrote 1,000 letters to various clubs all over the country inviting them to take part in the tournament. She expects that many that have not replied have arranged benefits, and she hopes that when the proceeds all are in and counted that there will be a goodly sum to be sent to Miss Anne Morgan's relief committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Linn will play at the Shoreacres club. At least Mrs. Linn, who has been laid up for several days with bronchitis, hopes she will be well enough to play and to act as hostess at the luncheon party that she has planned. Her guest during the Democratic convention, Mrs. George Sloane of New York and Warrenton, Va., will not be here for the tournament for she does not arrive until Monday. Mrs. Sloane lived in Chicago as a girl, when she was Miss Katherine Ingalls.

Bastille Day Dinner to Aid French Relief.

Bastille day will be observed quietly this year by the Franco-American societies of Chicago. There is to be a dinner at 6:30 o'clock in the Old Town room of the Hotel Sherman, followed by movies and a concert. Proceeds from the $1.50 tickets will be distributed among the American Volunteer Ambulance corps, the American Friends of France, and the French Urgent relief.

Four of the following members of the Onwentsia polo team, William Fergus, Frank Bering, David Wilhelm, Otis Carney, and Bruce McFarlane, will meet the Meadowbrook Polo club of Milwaukee at Onwentsia at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Lester Armour Jr., who has been playing for the Lake Forest team, has had to discontinue polo thru physician's orders.

Charles F. Glore has donated individual trophies which will be presented to the winning players by Mrs. Glore. The visitors will be guests of the home team at cocktails after the game. Next Sunday the Onwentsia team will play in Milwaukee.

The second and last of two free admittance afternoon polo games at the Oak Brook Polo club will be played tomorrow at 4 o'clock. Playing will be the Oak Brook and Ramblers teams, captained, respectively, by Paul Butler and James A. Hannah. The current matches will determine what players will appear in the central circuit championship matches to be played next month.

Grant Park Soloist

Marion Claire, soprano of opera, operetta and movies, and a regular feature of W-G-N's Sunday night symphonic hour, as she sang at the Grant park band shell last evening with the W-G-N orchestra under the direction of her husband, Henry Weber.

Park Audience Cheers Singing of Miss Claire

BY EDWARD BARRY.

It was Marion Claire against the weather man last night, and Marion Claire won. Appearing at the Grant park band shell on what was perhaps the bitterest winter night this summer, she succeeded in creating so gala an atmosphere that the evening will be remembered as a major climax of what we wittily call the summer concert season. Aiding and abetting her skilfully were her husband, Henry Weber, and his augmented W-G-N orchestra.

Pretty Miss Claire, dazzlingly gowned, had the audience with her from first to last. At the very start of her part of the program she made a little talk in which she told her listeners what good sports they were to come out on such a night and revealed that she had walked a mile to the concert [the road to the band shell is closed] rather than let her audience down. At the very end she led the audience thru a verse of "God Bless America," and pulled out an American flag to display as the song reached its climax.

Beginning with an excerpt from "Andrea Chénier" and a song by Marx, Miss Claire moved on to her first encore, "The Blue Danube," from her starring vehicle, "The Great Waltz." There were shouts of excitement as the last number was announced and cordial applause for the lilting, exhilarating way in which it was performed.

Returning to the stage later in the evening, she offered three songs from "Blossom Time"; "Music in My Heart," from Ocar Straus' score for the motion picture, "Make a Wish"; that most charming of old English love songs, "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes"; and Irving Berlin's "God Bless America."

To everything she did Miss Claire brought that power of hers to identify herself with the music. Her singing was a greatly intensified speech, with a persuasive personal quality to it. This was as true of the air from "Chénier" as it was of the morsels from light opera, as true of the Marx song as of the Irving Berlin ballad with which the evening closed.

Versatile Miss Claire has appeared in opera, operetta, and motion pictures. She is now active in radio as star of W-G-N and Mutual's symphonic hour and Chicago Theater of the Air [this last to be resumed in September].

The purely instrumental parts of the program were given over to Brahms, Wagner, and Smetana. In the first named composer's fourth symphony Mr. Weber and his men preserved the music's grave strength and reticence against every temptation to be lush or sentimental.

The beat was stern but not excessively rigid. Tone colorings were subdued, but not to the point where the somber richness which Brahms wrote into the symphony could fall of its effect.

The introduction to the third act of "Die Meistersinger" was done with moving dignity. The contrast between this music and the bright and noble third act excerpts which followed was cunningly pointed up by the exceptionally sturdy rhythmic emphasis which the latter received.

Mrs. Geraghty's 4 year old daughter Betsy was encountered backstage playing. Asked what she was playing she answered, "Mrs. Elmer Davis and the news." She was Mrs. Elmer Davis, she said. The news? O, that was a witch or hobgoblin of some kind—something bad, anyhow.

Petal Popcorn Medallions

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

If you are a needleworker who enjoys creating something lasting for posterity, why not crochet one of these beautiful petal popcorn bedspreads? It is made in single medallions and joined together as shown in the illustration. The ideal coverlet for the guestroom, for a wedding gift, or to create a smaller gift, a tablecloth or runner is suggested. Finer thread is used for the cloth and scarf.

Looking at Hollywood
By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., July 12.—"N. Y. to L. A.: Elsie." Thus might Variety chronicle in its own laconic fashion the passage of an expectant milch cow from a dairy exhibit at the New York World's Fair to Hollywood, where the cow is to have a rôle in a movie.

But the passage of Elsie is worth some details, for it was right in the goofy tradition and it had more angles than a contract option.

When a movie star arrives in New York on a junket or for a "world première," the custom is to send one or two important journalists up to Harmon to ride back with the star on the Century and get the first interview. So it seems to be here, too. Elsie's movie studio, picking carefully, decided that this reporter and a lady from a magazine should have the honor of journeying to San Bernardino, a hot hell-hole that raises oranges, and traveling back to Los Angeles with the cow on the Chief. All the rest of the impatient press had to wait for the train at the station.

Having won a spot in RKO's Towne-Baker production of "Little Men," Elsie was whisked out of the fair, put aboard a special car, and shipped amid trans-continental hoorah to Hollywood, where, an hour after her arrival, she was the guest of honor at a sandwich party on the lawn of the Hotel Ambassador. Traveling with her from New York were Dr. Gary V. McBride, veterinarian from Albany; Charles Bayer, milk company publicity man, and Lee Boyce, Brookfield, Mass., dairyman who bred her. There was a big party at the Congress hotel in Chicago, during which Elsie met a tall, curvesome 15 year old blonde, daughter of a milkman, Donna Jean Larsen. Somebody said why not put Donna in the movies, too, so the young lady and her mother were added to the entourage.

Everybody traveled in the Chief's Pullmans except the vet and Boyce, who had cots in Elsie's baggage car. Despite modern comforts they all looked hot and tired by the time the train got to San Bernardino. All but Elsie, who stood or lay on her straw bed and took everything calmly.

The San Bernardino welcoming party included, besides the lady journalist, your reporter, two RKO publicity men, and a studio still man, a makeup expert named Shotgun. Shotgun, that's all. He had brought along his $750 studio makeup kit in case the cow needed touching up. He had made a huge pair of false eyelashes—which Elsie would have nothing of. Her lips, an inner-tube gray, seemed not to need cosmetics, and Dr. McBride brightened her horns with tan shoe polish, so Shotgun was slightly discouraged. He decided he'd put a studio makeup on young Donna Jean instead and this brightened his life.

Shotgun didn't look like a makeup man. He's a big, handsome Texan who used to play football. Real name, Layne Britton. He was the first kid in town in his set to wear long pants, and the pants were just the length of a shotgun barrel; hence the nickname.

Some of the angles on Elsie are these: The milk company owns her, is paying for her trip. By the time she has her calf and returns to N. Y., via Texas, her voyage will have cost $15,000. At one of the stops on the way out a man said he was a communist and didn't believe in spending that much money on a cow, but nobody paid any attention to him. RKO isn't even paying Elsie hay, but is paying for hotel accommodations and several parties. A third group has an interest in her career—manufacturers of glass milk bottles. They had a publicity man on hand at Los Angeles.

There was a band at the station, and a radio setup, and a lot of movie stars, including Fay Wray and Jack Oakie. Elsie's eyes were bigger than Miss Wray's. But not so nice, I thought. At the garden party everybody drank milk out of bottles. Elsie's company had to have the stuff shipped in from San Francisco because it didn't have a branch any nearer.

O, yes—another angle. Elsie's owners won't get her child. When Boyce sold her he reserved the right to all her offspring.

Listen, Elsie. Enjoy all this while you can. Enjoy the bands, cavort at the parties, act your movie rôle, have your baby and then get a divorce if you feel you must be in the social swim—but have a good time. Remember, there once was a cow named Daisy, whom Twentieth Century-Fox made famous a couple of years ago. After a nation-wide search, Daisy was chosen for the rôle of Mrs. O'Leary's cow in "Old Chicago." A San Fernando valley rancher named Ralph Potts sold her for the very high price of $200.

After the picture was made they didn't want a cow around the studio, so Daisy was sold to a Mrs. Ray Wells of Fowler, Cal., for $40 and she's just another cow on a great big range. Get it, Elsie?

My Mae Tinde.

Good Morning!

If the mood you have is gloomy
And you crave a picture tomb-y
I refer you to "The Island of Lost Men."
It drips cruelty and sadness
And assorted brands of badness
And of slightest touch of lightness doth not ken.
In an atmosphere most gory
Operates that Peter Lorre
Than whom none [in films] is slimier, as you wot.
It's HIS isle. He takes parolees
Works 'em, beats 'em—if they die he's Entirely unconcerned—believe 't or not.
A fair wife he has, the devil!
She had thought him on the level
When she'd left the chorus for to be his bride.
Now she hates him absolutely
And she wishes most acutely
To be rid of Stephen, money, hair, and hide.
Thru a young G-man's astuteness
And her innate, foxy cuteness
The two of them escape from durance vile.
And, tho little's said about it
You have no reason to doubt it,
G-man's due to live in sunshine of gal's smile.
WHEW—the reels of this are dreary
And the watchin' makes you weary
And a critic's job seems just a bagatelle. [Trifle—not worth mentioning.]
But, away, say you, with sorrow!
Don't forget there's a tomorrow!
And the moving picture IT brings may be SWELL! [Hipollyanna!]

See you tomorrow.

Tricky Buttons Newest Accent for Dark Dress

BY REA SEEGER.

Enterprising button designers have gone in for lighter accents to dramatize summer clothes. Also delicate pastels and dramatic all-whites have arrived in stunning assortments to perk up dark daytime dresses and suits. Lacy white affairs are extraordinarily effective. These come in the round as well as oblong and octagonal shapes.

Dull white and pastel buttons that look like artful twists of pulled taffy offer something sweet for cotton linens and printed silks, with buckles to match. Difficult colors like cerise, almond green, azure blue, and mustard yellow are to be found in decorative buttons, small, medium, and large. The newest tricks are buttons that are really hang-ons with the hole pieced way on the outer side. On the dress they'll look like smart clips.

Dozens of amusing buttons are out to lure the money from your pockets . . . pink teakettles, small colored cats, fat little birds, and the still interesting vegetable array—corn on the cob, tomatoes, pods of peas, and string beans. These are only matched by the many fruit finds, the oranges, lemons, apples, bananas in realistic reproductions.

Floweret buttons are particularly effective on summer silks. Most of them are easily matched with decorative clips of flower clusters, hyacinths, edelweiss and the like, with contrasting green foliage, leaves, and buds. If you need something different for a summer frock do it with the new high fashion button ideas.

National Music Clubs to Aid Paderewski Fund

Mrs. Vincent Hilles Ober of Norfolk, Va., president of the National Federation of Music Clubs, has accepted a vice chairmanship of the Paderewski fund for Polish relief and will appeal to the 5,000 music clubs affiliated with the federation to contribute according to their ability. This announcement was made yesterday by Col. William J. Donovan, president of the Paderewski fund.

THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

If you're looking for a deodorant that won't irritate even the most sensitive skin we know just the thing for you. It's one of the most perfect preparations of its kind, efficient and inexpensive.

It's not an antiperspirant, this liquid. What it does is deodorize thoroly and quickly, and the best way to use it is to apply it in the morning after the bath. It can be used on the feet as well as under the arms and, if you're pressed for time, you needn't preface its use with a bath.

Men like it immensely because it's not sticky or greasy and can, if necessary, be applied to the underarm area right thru the shirt. Clothing isn't affected by it at all with the exception of white wool—it will turn that back to its natural color. But ordinarily there is no waiting for it to dry before permitting fabric to touch the surface to which it has been applied.

This is a preparation that every member of the family can use, even the youngsters. And, we might add, one that every member should use. Of all habits of grooming none is so important to establish early and soundly as the one of using some preparation that eliminates that of fensive odor of perspiration.

Sally to Announce Another Party in Tribune Tomorrow

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

A double portion of good news for the boys and girls of Chicagoland tomorrow! You'll find some mighty interesting party plans in your CHICAGO TRIBUNE when it arrives bright and early Sunday morning.

First of all, there'll be a long list of the names of the boys and girls who've won invitations to our big movie party on July 18. My guests will total 100, and those fortunate youngsters who find their names printed in my column will know that they're invited to a private screening of "Tom Brown's School Days," R. K. O.'s version of the famous old book.

They'll see Freddy Bartholomew, Jimmy Lydon and a number of other entertaining persons in this splendid new movie, which is just the kind of picture boys and girls should see. The winners will receive personal invitations by mail in a day or two.

You'll also find the news of our next big party in my column tomorrow. It's one you're sure to like, and I know you'll be anxious to start early on your letter to me about it, so be on the lookout for the details in tomorrow's TRIBUNE.

The Fate of the Darmenys

INSTALMENT XLII.

FUNERAL SERVICE.

Frank was not debating the question of Leda's conscience very seriously. It was enough for him that Leda so far had raised no objection to the plans he was making for their immediate future. He had been wondering how he could include Shirley in those plans without bringing a sneer from Leda, but when he suggested it, she said it was a very good idea.

One reason he wanted Shirley to come with them was on Betsy's account. The child was terribly strung up, and Shirley knew how to deal with her. Another reason, which Frank admitted honestly to himself, was Geoffry. He did not care to leave Betsy at Crane's Wood, even if the Westalls could keep her. Geoffry's hatred of him could so easily extend to the child; and after that villainous threat against Shirley, Frank felt very much the same about her.

Dr. Westall's health always improved a little during the summer months, and he agreed to Shirley's leaving him to the care of one of the village women if she accompanied Frank's family to the small fishing village in North Wales that he had selected.

He was afraid that Leda would be bored stiff and hate the place at sight, but it was obvious, even to her, that they could not stay on at Beechbourne.

Frank was a little fearful of what the proximity of Shirley would do to his self-control. He would need it all and perhaps she would need all of hers as well. But he knew that primarily his need of her just now had an unselfish motive, and hers, in responding to his request was equally unselfish.

Secretly the girl was terrified of Geoffry Darmeny, who during these few days since his aunt's death had taken to haunting the path leading from the woods to her father's cottage. Often when he was supposed to be in London, Shirley would see him there, but since she always had Betsy with her, he did not actually molest her.

She told no one of her fears. A rumor was going around that Frank and Geoffry had come to blows the night before poor Mrs. Darmeny died, and it was whispered that their animosity had arisen thru Geoffry's paying too much attention to Mrs. Frank.

Crane's Wood, like most country villages, always knew too much and at the same time too little of what was actually taking place in its midst.

Shirley told Frank she would be glad to go away for a few weeks and take full charge of Betsy. She had a good idea of what he was going thru.

That night before the funeral he came down to bring Betsy home and to tell Shirley they would be ready to leave Beechbourne to catch a train from Canterbury shortly after 4 o'clock the next afternoon.

As he did not intend to ask any favors of Geoffry and by the same token would give no orders to the servants himself, he had arranged for a taxi to take them away.

Leda obliged him when he told her to pack her things and be in readiness, and Shirley packed Betsy's.

Frank had not advertised his departure, but of course the household got to know of it.

They knew that Frank Darmeny would probably never set foot in Beechbourne again, and Gibson was particularly cast down by that thought. Gibson had been in Madge Darmeny's service from the time she was married when the general was only washing captain, and she, herself, the loveliest young girl in the world, younger even than Mrs. Frank Darmeny was now, and in Gibson's opinion considerably more beautiful.

When the body of his gentle mistress was carried out of Beechbourne tomorrow, the old régime would have ended. It would be the last of the Darmenys as a family, that the poor dear old lady had striven so valiantly to keep together.

Well, everything changes; everything passes.

Gibson's legs had grown tottery during the last few days and his eyes seemed permanently rimmed with red.

He, too, was changing; he, too, would pass.

He shook his head disconsolately at the thought, but if Beechbourne was sold he did not care very much what became of himself.

He mopped his eyes and tuning back blew his nose, when Frank and Betsy passed thru the lounge hall. There went two of them that might have saved the family if only Mrs. Frank had been a different sort of woman, and if only poor Mrs. Darmeny, God rest her soul, had made Mr. Frank the heir, instead of Mr. Goeffry.

Gibson knew well enough his late mistress' partiality for Geoffry and wondered at it, but he did not know how radically she had changed her point of view towards the last, altho certain unusual things had given him hope that she might have done so.

. . . . . .

The day of Madge Darmeny's funeral dawned clear and fine, but along the eastern horizon stretched a soft band of fleecy looking clouds and Amelia Pennyfather's feet announced to her that before the sun went down there was likely to be a storm.

Drawn out of her seclusion by Alfred Barnes, she stayed out. She had even decided to go to the church, since it developed that Leda was going, as well as the two female Scofield cousins who were staying in the house.

She had found a crêpe veil to hang over her face which added emphasis to her mourning attire.

Geoffry Darmeny was twitching with nervous dread of her. She had kept him on tenterhooks for three days, and even now he was not sure what she would suddenly elect to say or do.

But each hour that passed lessened the likelihood of any one's taking seriously whatever Amelia Pennyfather might say. He had spread the idea of her mental instability to some purpose.

The servants and the relatives were whispering it; even hardheaded Alfred Barnes took stock in it. Only Leda laughed at the brilliant idea and her laughter was so scornfully loud and unseemly that it raised shocked eyebrows.

Perhaps Mrs. Frank Darmeny was a little "touched," herself. The taint might have run unsuspected in from Madge's family. Not on the Scofield side, of course! But wasn't there an aunt of her mother's who had to have somebody with her night and day the last year of her life? And she, also, would have been a blood relation of Leda's tho a little distant.

Frank kept a watchful eye on his wife. She gave him much the same feeling, altho for quite a different reason, that Amelia Pennyfather was giving Geoffry.

She was so unpredictable; so much a creature of her wild, undisciplined impulses. Even her recent manner of humility he felt to be merely an impulse of the moment.

These thoughts accompanied Frank as, with Leda on his arm, he walked side by side with Geoffry behind the farm wagon that bore Madge Darmeny's remains to the church.

After them came Alfred Barnes with Amelia, and then the other relatives and some of the women servants.

Gibson, the old chauffeur and four of the out door men walked at the side of the cart, which was filled with branches of copper beech.

In the church, Frank and Geoffry contrived not to sit next each other. They got Mr. Barnes and Amelia between them with Amelia beside Frank.

Frank thought of Madge Darmeny's smile, now frozen in death and lost to human sight forever under the coffin lid and its heavy weight of flowers.

While Mr. Mortgage read the service and gave them his short eulogistic discourse and while the clear fresh voices of the choir boys rang out in the anthem Madge herself had chosen—I Am the Resurrection—and the congregation joined in singing her favorite hymn, Geoffry Darmeny's mind was filled with alternate thoughts of fear and hatred.

Fear of the half-crazed woman who knew his dreadful secret; hatred for the cousin who so very nearly had supplanted him.

He also had made up his mind to leave Beechbourne as soon as he decently could.

He would tell Alfred Barnes to put it on the market at once and take the first offer. He, himself, intended to come back to Crane's Wood to pursue his interrupted courtship of Shirley, but he would not stay at Beechbourne. The village inn would be more convenient for his purpose as well as being unhaunted by painful associations.

He heard nothing of the service for his own thoughts drowned it.

Parents: Trust Your Child and Avoid Anxiety

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.
[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

The novel as a whole didn't interest me much, but there was one part that appealed.

The central figure was a wife and mother. On one particular day everything had gone wrong. She went to bed as usual, but at three in the morning woke with a start. She hadn't heard a car drive up nor her daughter come in. She got up and looked in the adjoining room. The bed was untouched. Worried, she sat up and tried to read. Everything that a mother can be apprehensive about went thru her head. Finally, frantic, she woke her husband. "John," she said, "Please, let's go out and look for them."

They drove thru the night, here and there, but in vain. At last they headed the car toward a hilltop where the children used to picnic, and parked. For a moment they sat, then listened. The sound of singing reached them. Silently they got out and walked toward a distant orange glow. Then thru the trees their eyes beheld a dozen young figures grouped around a big fire, singing softly together, their upturned faces, young and quietly happy, illumined by the flames.

"Sh!" said the wife to her husband, putting a restraining hand on his arm. "Let's go back home. I wouldn't spoil this lovely night by letting Angela suspect the kind of anxiety I had about her. Look at them. They've lost all track of time." Then, "Don't you remember, John," she went on. . . .

Sometimes it's a good thing for us to come out flatly with a fact. Let's do it now in winding up this series of articles on our young people, their independence, hours and so forth.

The fact is this: That when our teen age children are beginning to go out at night and especially when they are unusually late in getting home, loving them as we do, there are two things that worry us. One is the possibility of an accident. The other is the possibility that they may be having some sort of sex experience, slight or serious, that we feel will be unfortunate for them.

What can we do about it?

[a] Start early answering naturally our child's questions about the origin of life and about sex, and continue thru the years.

[b] Before adolescence, extend their knowledge about sex so that it is definite. But give it to them as part of the whole picture, as it ties up with life and love and marriage and parenthood. They need this from you to offset what they may hear outside.

[c] If your child has good taste and fastidiousness, it will show in his or her relation with other boys and girls. But also, the subject of so-called "necking" can be talked over frankly between a parent and child.

[d] Be a friend to your child so you have his or her confidence.

[e] Be aware of your child's friends and supervise reasonably his or her hours.

[f] Then trust your son or daughter.

Our "Sex Education" booklet has references for all ages. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, the Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Aliveness Is One Secret of Staying Young

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.
[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Stay irritable, biologically irritable," is the recipe for remaining young offered by Daniel A. Lord, S. J.

"I don't suppose any other test would more easily solve the problem of how old you really are than the question: 'How irritable [in the technical sense of the word] are you?'"

Irritability, as used here, however, is not to be confused with bad temper expressed in throwing the furniture around, or tossing dirty looks, by growling under the breath, or by becoming angry at slight provocation. The word irritability, it is explained, has been savagely misused. Aliveness has been learnedly defined as irritability. A thing that is alive is a thing that can be irritated.

"Aliveness, irritability, is quickness of response," explains our authority. "It is that quality in a living organism that is easily aroused, quickly excited."

So to answer the age question, you must ask yourself: "How is my response to anything, to everything, to this type of person, to human beings in general, to some skill or art that I have cultivated and grown to love, to something I instinctively like?"

"Youth responds naturally to almost everything. It likes people. It wants to play. It is delighted by the new and the novel. It is excited by music. It is interested in pictures. It is amazed by beauty. It reacts to friendliness."

It's regrettable, our authority observes, that instead of directing these interests and properly stimulating the enthusiastic responses, society tends to knock them out of the child.

Yet people who never lose their irritability, or aliveness, are those who stay young. Their interest is ever fresh. They are intensely alive.

The whole fundamental measurement of youth comes down to this: "How alert is your mind? How responsive is your soul? How quick are your reactions? How many interests have you? Is the world wonderful, or is it a bore to you? Are you fond of new acquaintances and devoted to old friends?"

Two Memorial Gifts Increase Algonquin and Free Ice Funds

Gifts totaling $30 increased the Camp Algonquin fund yesterday to $335.19. One anonymous donor sent $20. Davie and Billy Newey contributed $10 "in loving memory of D. B. N." The Newey boys also gave a memorial donation of $10 to the Free Ice fund, which now totals $102.83.

Largely thru the generosity of TRIBUNE readers thousands of mothers and children from the city's most needy families are given two-week vacations each summer at Algonquin, the United Charities camp on the Fox river, and hundreds of the destitute and ill are provided with ice during the hot weather.

Grateful acknowledgement of these gifts is made by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., Tribune Tower, which serves as a depository for contributions to both the Algonquin and free ice funds.

'Olde English Faire' to Aid British War Relief Funds

The eighth annual "Olde English Faire" will be held from 10 o'clock this morning until midnight on the grounds of the British Old People's home at Hollywood, Ill. Sports, games, dancing, entertainment and refreshments will be in order, and dinner will be served. J. E. Humphries is chairman of the benefit, which the Sons and Daughters of St. George, the Daughters of the British Empire in Illinois, the British Empire association, the Welsh Women's club and the Manx society jointly are sponsoring.

Breaking Off of Betrothal Up to Girl

BY DORIS BLAKE.
[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"I met a remarkably nice girl some time ago. We went out often together and would have married had I been in a position to support her at that time. She revealed her love for me when I told her mine. Then I acquired a fairly good position with a future to it, and we announced our engagement. Some stroke of evil luck pursuing me, I was laid off shortly after the announcement. I spend every day looking for a job now, but am out of luck so far.

"The girl says she will wait for me no matter how long, until I am in a position again to marry. But being the girl she is, I think it isn't right to encourage her to wait. Do you think it is fair to encourage a girl to wait when jobs are so scarce and I lose all this time and the little savings I have? We both wait your answer, Miss Blake.—Cal."

We wouldn't like to see you lose a girl like that, Cal, and you must be something special yourself to inspire such loyalty. Your generosity about releasing the girl from the engagement bodes well in her opinion of you, no doubt. If the average young man ever needed a girl, it is during those trying days of job-hunting when his own courage is likely to be reduced to its lowest state.

At this moment of joblessness, Cal, you exaggerate your problems over the girl, no doubt. You exaggerate the hopelessness of your own future. If the girl can lift you out of that mood, hang on to her as long as she is willing. Let her be the one to suggest that the engagement bond between you were better broken.

We understand your state of mind at the moment, Cal. We understand the depression of all young men similarly placed, but we do think that the final decision of whether to break or not to break should be put to the girl and left in her hands.

Numerology
By Evelyn Holmes

July 13, 1940.

Universal Day—Ideas are likely to be a little foggy today. Concentrate if you find your mind wandering.

Harmonizing Numbers—Number 2 harmonizes with 4 and 6, but since it is a lower vibration of this combination it is the least powerful and can be overshadowed by them. Number 8 seems to be so overpowering that it is not advisable to try to accomplish anything very important on 2-days if you are in an 8-year. If you are in a 2-year the 8-days are likely to be a little too hectic.

Year Ahead—Don't plan anything startling for this year. Relax, study, read, go into the country, but don't put too much pressure on yourself. Stress spiritual matters.

SANDWICH MAKING TIPS: Let butter for sandwiches stand at room temperature for an hour, then cream it until very soft and spreadable. Spread it clear to the edges of the bread being used for sandwiches.

If you have fresh, unsliced bread, chill it in the refrigerator for an hour or so before cutting. The chilling makes the texture firmer and will prevent that "haggled" effect so often seen in too fresh bread cut for sandwiches.

If you are using a meat filling in the sandwich, mix chopped chives or onion juice into the butter. If the filling is to be sweet, date and nut, for example, try adding the slightest amount of vanilla to the creamed butter.

Choose a variety of breads for picnic sandwiches, white, whole wheat, rye, cinnamon, raisin, cheese bread, these are some of the possibilities. And for fillings see "The New Sandwich Maker," a booklet which sells for 5 cents by mail. Address orders to Mary Meade, in care of THE TRIBUNE.

COLD MEATS FOR SUMMER SUPPERS: One of the best and easiest of buffet suppers for warm weather has a menu something like this: Platter of potato salad, cold cuts and cheese; relish tray of celery, pickles, olives, radishes, and green onions; hot biscuits or rolls; hot or iced coffee, and fresh fruit dessert.

There's an almost endless variety of cold meats from which to choose. The canned ones are handy, because they'll keep indefinitely on the shelf until you are ready to chill and slice them. Markets carry salami and cervelat, bologna, minced ham, baked and boiled ham, ham loaf, veal loaf, liver sausage, spiced tongue, and many other cold sliced or sliceable meats. Three or more kinds, along with slices of aged cheddar cheese or brick cheese, make a tempting platter. If you have a large, round chop plate or tray, you can arrange potato salad attractively in the middle of it, and overlap slices of cold meats and cheese around the salad.

Deviled eggs, sliced tomatoes, radish roses or green onions [or even all of them] make an attractive edible garnish for such a tray.

NEW QUIRKS WITH FOOD: If you like Roquefort spread on your steak, you'll probably like it on lamb chops, too. Mix the cheese to a paste with a little cream, and spread over hot broiled lamb chops. Tuck back under the broiler for a few seconds before serving.

Or spread the hot chops with mint jelly just before they go to the table. Even if you don't like the Roquefort chops, you'll go for these.

Try those easy, packaged pudding mixes as pie fillings when you're in a hurry. They make good butterscotch and chocolate pies, especially, and you can add nuts or fruit to the filling and top them with whipped cream or meringue.

HOME CURED STYLE OLIVES: These olives were so popular with tourists and Californians who bought them from a little roadside stand that the dealer was persuaded to pack them for a larger trade. Now they may be purchased in Chicago at several chain stores. They're unusual and delicious. If you wish to know where to buy them, telephone Superior 0200 or write to Mary Meade, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and the information is yours.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

Mathematically, a player would break even if he bid all slams which depended on a finesse; that is, assuming that he was neither very lucky nor very unlucky when finessing. But mathematics is not the sole test. It must be remembered that poor defense may help declarer and that he may find a way to make his contract without risking a finesse.

In the hand below any opening lead except the one selected would have made the contract a laydown. As it was, South had to play rather well to avoid a losing finesse.

North, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 clubs	Pass	4 spades	Pass
4 no trump	Pass	5 spades	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the jack of hearts and East won with the ace. For lack of a better return he continued the heart suit.

Before playing to the second trick South carefully considered his resources. Apparently, the slam depended upon the club finesse. The finesse, however, could be dispensed with if he could find three winners in dummy on which to discard clubs. The ace and king of diamonds were sure to furnish two discards, and there was a possibility that a long diamond might be brought in if each opponent had started with a four card diamond suit, but in order to bring in the long diamond he would have to use every possible entry to dummy.

Proceeding on this plan, he played the king of hearts from his own hand at the second trick, and ruffed with dummy's deuce of spades. Next he cashed the ace and king of diamonds and ruffed a diamond. The queen of spades was the entry for another diamond ruff. When both hands followed, the ten of diamonds in dummy was high. Declarer therefore drew trumps and entered dummy with the ace of clubs to discard his last club on the ten of diamonds.

Mother-and-Daughter Fashion

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER PLAY SUITS.

We're not to be caught riding the slow freight! When fashion introduced the mother and daughter idea in clothes, we designed this beach duet. The garments are identical in styling. The only difference is that one is Lilliputian! The originals are created of vertical striped cotton, the stripe with a pattern of its own. The bodices are brief to allow for bare midriffs. The skirts are full, and there are matching panties for each ensemble.

Style No. 3390 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, and 19. Size 15 requires 3 yards of 39 inch material for play suit and panties.

Style No. 3392 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14. Size 8 requires ¼ yards of 39 inch material for play suit and panties.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

The Housewife

When you are passing those tall, cool drinks and little appetizers at the cocktail hour it's convenient to equip each guest with a little tray for holding them. There are a number of styles of these handy gadgets now, and one of the newest comes in several sizes and is gayly decorated with labels of famous liquors. The background color is yellow, or green, or red. The smallest size in this tray, convenient for a glass and hors d'oeuvres, is about six inches long.

Lake Geneva Is Invited to Summer Musicals

Music lovers and members of the summer colony at Lake Geneva, Wis., have been invited to a series of Sunday afternoon musicals to be given in the white and gold ballroom of "Younglands," the former home of the late Otto Young, at Lake Geneva. His granddaughter, Mrs. Fred J. Koch, gave the estate to the Order of St. Anne's [Episcopal].

MARION CLAIRE ON SYMPHONIC HOUR TOMORROW

Selections from the light operas of Gilbert and Sullivan and works of Wagner, Brahms and Tschaikowsky will highlight the Chicago Tribune Symphonic hour tomorrow from 9 to 10 p. m. Marion Claire, noted soprano, will be the soloist with the W-G-N Symphonic orchestra directed by Henry Weber.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, will be the speaker of the evening. Miss Claire is to sing "Star Vicino" by Rosa, and Brahms' "Serenade" as well as the Gilbert and Sullivan themes with the support of the W-G-N chorus.

The Symphony orchestra will play, among other numbers, the overture to "Rienzi," Debussy's "Afternoon of a Faun," and Tschaikowsky's "Waltz of the Flowers." William A. Bacl.er will direct the production and Cecil Smith will comment on the numbers.

DRIVER GIVES UP AFTER LEAVING A VICTIM DYING

Thought He Hit Grain Bag, He Tells Police.

Ludwig J. Patrny, a railroad clerk, surrendered yesterday to the Brighton Park police and confessed he was the motorist who left a pedestrian lying fatally injured in the street after first turning his spotlight on the man.

Ludwig J. Patrny.

Patrny, who lives at 5727 South Sawyer avenue, said he did not know his automobile had struck the man at 34th street and Ashland avenue early Thursday until he read of it in a newspaper. Patrny said he had been driving in the rain behind a feed truck and thought that his automobile had struck a bag of grain which had fallen from the truck. Even after flashing on the spotlight, Patrny said, he still thought the injured man was a grain bag.

Inquest Continues Today.

The victim was Stanley Stefans, 42 years old, 2913 West 101st place. He was taken to County hospital, where he died. The inquest was opened and continued until this morning. Patrny was ordered held.

James Jacob, 2, was killed last night when a car driven by his grandfather, George Mirsch, 7741 South Morgan street, was in collision with another machine at 90th street and Racine avenue. Four other persons in the car were injured slightly. Gresham police questioned Mirsch and John Marketka, 8942 South Morgan street, city alley inspector, who drove the other car.

Jack Ridgley, 6, was killed last night in front of his home, 957 Logan street, Hammond, when he ran against a car driven by Earl Smutzer, 21, of 1127 Logan street. The driver was released in bond of $5,000 on a technical charge.

Boy, 9, Hit by Cab.

Michael Devereaux Jr., 9, son of the assistant desk sergeant at the Chicago Lawn police station, was in a critical condition in Holy Cross hospital last night after he was struck by a taxicab in front of his home at 6855 South Wolcott avenue. The driver, John Ault, 4227 Berkeley avenue, said the boy darted from behind a parked car.

Emil Henninger, 62, of 5549 Adams street, a painting contractor, died in the Garfield Park hospital of injuries incurred Thursday when he was struck by an automobile at Cicero avenue and Washington boulevard. The driver was Frank Sidley, 430 North Waller avenue.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 444 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 336 were killed in Chicago, where 11,831 were injured in the same period.

Take a Deep Breath, Then Say It, Mr. Court Clerk

Arthur Claussen, deputy clerk in the federal district court, took one look at a patent suit which was filed yesterday. Then he figured that when it comes up for hearing in Judge Charles E. Woodward's court, Clerk A. L. Van Alstyn will have his mouth full. The suit charges the Chicago Hair Goods company with infringing on a patent. The plaintiff, a German corporation, is Aktiengesellschaft fur Feinmechanik vormals Jetter and Scheerer.

Drunk Driving on July 4 Brings 10 Day Jail Term

Walter Michaels, 1244 Blackhawk street, was sentenced yesterday by Judge Gibson E. Gorman of the Safety court to 10 days in the county jail for driving while intoxicated on July 4 at Ohio street and Sacramento boulevard. Michaels was credited with five days he already has spent in custody. He was deprived of his driving privileges for 60 days.

Defies Geology

Soter Nicholas, who, after seven years' digging, is confident that he is going to find a vein of gold in Lake county, despite discouragement offered by geologist.

Soter Nicholas, a miner, bartender, and student of mining journals, will continue to dig for gold on the prairie a mile south of Wadsworth and two blocks west of Green Bay road in Lake county. He pointed to 40 holes he has bored in the last seven years and said yesterday that an assayist in Denver has assured him his ore is worth $12.20 a ton. And this at only 40 feet. At 160 feet it undoubtedly will be worth thousands, Nicholas asserted.

The prospector, who is 45 years old and lives at 3350 Natchez avenue, was seeking oil when he first started digging, but he now has compromised on gold.

Prof. Harold E. Ward, Northwestern university geologist, insists there is no gold in the Niagara dolomite that underlies Lake county. Traces of gold that may be found are contained only in the alluvial deposits left by the glacier, said Prof. Ward.

11 C. I. O. PICKETS FOUND GUILTY IN CONTEMPT CASE

Cleveland, O., July 12 (AP).—Eleven C.I.O. pickets at the Precision Die Castings company plant were convicted of contempt of court today by Judge Samuel H. Silbert, who held they violated a court order limiting picketing and prohibiting violence.

A twelfth man, C. I. O. Organizer Alex Balint, was found innocent, and Carlos Cornwall, company witness, was fined $500 and costs and sentenced to 10 days for testifying a man was at the company's gates when he really was held at a police station for questioning.

Various sentences were given the pickets, ranging as high as $1,000 and 20 days in jail. The strike was called late last month to enforce demands for a plant-wide contract. The company's headquarters are at Syracuse, N. Y.

5 U. S. WARSHIPS CRUISING ALONG COAST OF BRAZIL

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 12 (AP).—Five United States warships were along the Brazilian coast tonight.

The cruisers Quincy and Wichita were due to arrive at Santos from Rio Grande do Sul. The destroyer O'Brien was scheduled to proceed north from Belem and the destroyers Walke and Wainwright were excepted at Belem today or tomorrow. The Walke and Wainwright are on a shakedown cruise and probably will continue to Rio de Janerio from Belem.

Phoenix Reaches Chile.

VALPARAISO, Chile, July 12 (AP).—The American light cruiser Phoenix arrived here today on a good will tour of South American ports.

Offers a Plan for County's Schools to Hit the Jackpot

Attorney General John E. Cassidy submitted a plan to the Circuit court yesterday to help educate the county's children thru funds obtained from "one-arm bandits." He filed a petition for permission to turn over to Noble J. Puffer, county superintendent of schools, $424 found in 25 slot machines confiscated by the county highway police. Money from confiscated slot machines previously has been donated to charity.

3 VIALS OF WATER AID STATE'S LAKE DIVERSION PLEAS

Laboratory Head Shows River Pollution.

Dr. Floyd W. Mohlman, director of laboratories for the sanitary district, presented dramatic evidence of pollution in the Illinois waterway at yesterday's hearing on the state's plea for an increase in diversion of lake water from 1,500 to 5,000 cubic feet a second.

Dr. Mohlman entered the hearing room at 160 North La Salle street, followed by an assistant bearing bottles, flasks, test tubes, and other chemical apparatus. Spreading his equipment over a large table, he pointed to three bottles of water.

Shows River Water Samples.

"Those," he told Monte M. Lemann, special master named by the Supreme court to conduct the hearings, "are samples of water taken from the river today. One was taken at the mouth of the river, the second at Halsted street in the south branch of the river, and the third at Summit, 14 miles downstream."

Dr. Mohlman added chemicals to each bottle, explaining that a dark yellow color would indicate the presence of dissolved oxygen in the water. The dissolved oxygen is necessary to complete the purification of the water after sewage has been processed in the treatment plants.

The sample taken at the mouth of the river turned a deep yellow, and was found to contain 9.6 parts of oxygen for each million parts of water. The sample taken at Halsted street, after treated sewage from the north side plant had entered the river, turned light yellow. It contained only 6.7 parts per million of oxygen. The sample taken at Summit, where the water contains the discharge from all the sanitary district's Chicago treatment plants, remained colorless. It contained no oxygen.

Tells Results of Cut.

Dr. Mohlman then produced records showing that the amount of putrefactive material in the river has greatly increased since diversion was cut to 1,500 cubic feet a second on Jan. 1, 1939.

Pouring more of the water samples into three separate flasks, Dr. Mohlman asked Master Lemann to smell them.

"You will note the sickening odor of the water taken from the river at Summit," he said.

Lemann sniffed, nodding as he tested the samples from the mouth of the river and Halsted street. Taking only a short whiff of the water from Summit, he put the flask down quickly and said, "Hmm. Yes."

Sludge on Pool Described.

Charles L. Adams, chemist in charge of the sanitary district's Joliet laboratory, testified that sludge floats on the surface of the Brandon pool at Joliet during warm weather. Dr. Mohlman later described sludge as "a muck or putrefactive mass of solids of sewage origin."

William Clausen, assistant attorney general, is attempting thru the testimony to prove the need for increased diversion until Dec. 31, 1942, when proposed plant additions will permit further treatment of Chicago sewage.

The hearings will be resumed July 22 at Joliet, where witnesses are expected to testify to obnoxious odors created by the polluted water.

Ralph H. Burke Re-elected to Head Park Benefit Fund

Ralph H. Burke, chief subway engineer of Chicago, was reëlected president yesterday of the Park Employes' Annuity and Benefit fund. Stephen D. Forst was reëlected secretary. The fund, which has 5,000 members, has assets of more than 12 million dollars.

Tells of Shooting

PEGGY GOUDIE.

James Sanone, 36 years old, a convicted robber, was charged with murder yesterday following a session of the inquest into the death of Philip Malloy, a tavern doorman, who died Wednesday of a bullet wound. Malloy, before he died, had accused Sanone of shooting him on July 5 after he had ejected Sanone from the tavern where he worked. Sanone will be arraigned in Felony court Monday. The inquest was continued until next Wednesday. Among those questioned was Peggy Goudie, 4431 Ellis avenue, an entertainer in the tavern.

9TH STREAMLINED DIVISION WILL BE CREATED IN ARMY

Washington, D. C., July 12 (AP).—Creation of a ninth "streamlined" division, last to be undertaken under immediate plans, was announced today by the war department along with organization of numerous other new units made possible by a prospective increase of 55,000 men in the regular army's strength.

The ninth division's headquarters will be at Fort Bragg, N. C. Like its predecessors, it will have a peace strength of about 8,000.

The war department also announced details concerning a new armored corps of two divisions, which will have 1,100 officers and approximately 17,500 enlisted men. To equip the corps, 400 light and 18 medium tanks and about 175 scout cars are immediately available and these numbers are to be increased.

EXECUTE SUGAR, ELEPHANT THAT MAULED KEEPER

Fort Worth, Tex., July 12 (AP).—At sunset they shot Sugar, an elephant whose name belied her disposition. She was executed for striking down her keeper, Jim Brown, 41 years old, and trampling him nearly to death.

Seven bullets from highpower rifles were used by zoo attendants to dispose of her in the rock house she shared with old Queen Tut, heroine of the attack on Brown. Gentle Queen Tut, many years older than the 35 year old, 4,000 pound Sugar, helped drive the angered Sugar away this morning as she slammed Brown with her trunk. She then guarded Brown until rescuers could pull him from the pen.

Girl, 11, Shoots Herself While Playing with Pistol

Bernice Vitkus, 11 years old, accidentally shot herself in the left arm and chest yesterday with her father's automatic pistol on the sun porch of her home at 1432 South 49th avenue, Cicero. Her parents were away and she and two playmates were playing when Bernice got the gun from the dresser drawer of her father, Frank, a former bank policeman. The weapon went off as Bernice was dancing up and down with it in her hand. She ran to the street, where a passerby took her to a physician's office. Cicero police removed her to the county hospital. Physicians said she was expected to recover.

HUNT WINDOW SMASHERS.

Sergt. George Barnes of the police labor detail began an investigation into the smashing of windows early yesterday of two food stores at 4709 Belmont avenue and 4056 Belmont avenue. Owners of the stores could give police no reason for the window breaking.

WIFE, 30, KILLS HER 3 CHILDREN; TAKES OWN LIFE

Oregon, Ill., July 12 (AP).—A young mother stabbed her three small children to death with a kitchen knife today and then took her own life by inhaling fumes from the burners of a gas stove.

The bodies of Mrs. Ray Bressler, 30 years old, and the children, Carolyn, 6; Paula, 16 months, and Robert, 6 months, were found in the kitchen of the Bressler's second floor flat this afternoon, apparently several hours after the tragedy.

Sheriff James White said the condition of the room and the position of the older children's bodies indicated they had struggled to escape. All were stabbed in the chest, Carolyn three times.

A note left on the kitchen table indicated, said Sheriff White, that the woman's motive was that she was tired of living and couldn't "stand to work any longer." Her husband, a foundry worker, said he could give no cause for the act.

YES, BRIDLE PATH HAS BEEN UP FOR SALE SINCE 1912

Sanitary district officials were surprised yesterday to learn that observers were surprised to hear the district's million dollar cinder bridle path which extends alongside the North Shore channel from Bryn Mawr avenue in Chicago to Green Bay road in Evanston is for sale. The bridle path was laid down in the late 1920s at a cost of $1,062,000.

"It has been for sale ever since the North Shore channel was constructed about 1912 or 1913," said William H. Trinkaus, chief engineer for the sanitary district. "The district owns a strip of property averaging about 660 feet wide there, but only 30 or 40 feet of land on each side of the channel is needed for possible future expansion."

TEST YOUR HORSE SENSE

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE.

Here is the fourth instalment of my TEST FOR THE GIRL FRIEND, based on confidential interviews with 1,144 men who candidly stated the virtues and faults of their own specific sweethearts. To find how you rate, subtract your DEMERIT total from your MERIT total, and then interpret the result according to the norms below.

DEMERITS.	MERITS.
1. Tells risqué or vulgar stories. [30]	1. Has same religion as her boy friend's. [30]
2. Artificial in appearance owing to mascara, dyed hair, excessively plucked eyebrows. [6]	2. Uses mild perfume suited to her personality. [6]
3. Has strong prejudices regarding race, religion, or politics. [6]	3. Well read so she can converse on current topics. [6]
4. Flirts with other men at parties or restaurants. [30]	4. Always thanks her boy friend for dates and favors shown her. [30]
5. Keeps digging up unpleasant things from the past. The nagging type. [6]	5. Writes interesting and jolly letters. [6]
6. Addicted to the "career" complex or worship of money. [6]	6. Has many friends of both sexes and is popular with people. [6]
7. Cynical. Disbelieves everybody. [6]	7. Has good self-control. [6]
8. Snobbish or affected in speech and actions. Tries to "high hat" people. [30]	8. Generous. Gives time and money to religious and philanthropic organizations. [30]
9. Too easily offended. Has the "persecution" complex. [6]	9. Likes to go fishing, hunting, or to baseball games. [6]
10. Hair is too oily or full of dandruff. [6]	10. Was, or is, an active member of school clubs and societies. [6]

Score yourself as follows: 0-27, very poor; 28-43, poor; 44-61, average; 62-80, superior; 81 and up, very superior.

Intended Victim Flees, So Bandits Follow Suit

When Michael Zandstra, a driver for Armour & Co., returned to his truck at the rear of a meat market at 1850 West 103d street yesterday he was met by two robbers, one with a gun. Zandstra leaped into the truck, out on the other side, and fled. The robbers ran in the opposite direction. Then Zandstra returned and drove the machine away.

DOCTOR CHARGED WITH MURDER IN ABORTION DEATH

Dr. Roy I. Hardin, 2354 Wilson avenue, a physician, was booked on a charge of murder by abortion at the North Damen avenue police station yesterday, pending an inquest hearing on July 24 into the death of Mrs. Jean St. John, 1618 Wilmette avenue, Wilmette.

Mrs. St. John, who was 45 years old and the mother of five children, died Wednesday in St. Francis hospital, Evanston. Her husband, Gordon St. John, a painting and decorating contractor, told Assistant State's Attorney Verne Thompson that he and his wife visited Dr. Hardin about a week before her death. He said he took her to the physician for an operation and paid him $50.

Dr. Hardin admitted treating the woman medically, but denied he had performed an illegal operation.

BEGIN CLOSING ARGUMENTS IN JURY FIX CASE

Closing arguments were started yesterday before the Criminal court jury which is hearing the trial of Attorney George Crane and three codefendants on charges that they fixed a vote fraud jury.

Assistant State's Attorney Thomas Bugan spoke for four hours for the prosecution and will continue when the case is resumed Monday before Judge James F. Fardy. The case is not expected to go to the jury until Tuesday.

Besides Crane, the defendants are James Creed, superintendent of city dumps, who was personal bailiff to Judge Joseph A. Graber at the vote fraud trial; Sam Orlando, Democratic precinct captain of the 11th ward, who was acquitted at the trial along with his political helper, Joseph Vinci, and John Howe, discharged state policeman and convicted robber.

FELLER YIELDS ONE HIT; INDIANS WIN, 1-0

OSMANSKI FINDS ALL-STAR GAME IS SPECTACULAR

Bill Calls It Thrill of a Lifetime.

Votes Tomorrow

FIRST returns in the nation-wide poll to determine the starting College All-Star lineup against the Green Bay Packers in Soldiers' field on the night of Aug. 29 will be published in tomorrow's Tribune. The poll opened yesterday and will continue until midnight, July 23. Send your selections to the All-Star Game Editor, Tribune Tower.

BY BILL OSMANSKI.

[Holy Cross full back, who was voted the most valuable player on the 1939 All-Star football team and now a member of the Chicago Bears professional eleven.]

The All-Star football game is the most spectacular I have ever seen or played in.

Bill Osmanski.

This is a sweeping statement, but I am certain that all of the people who have attended an All-Star game in Soldiers' field will agree. The importance of the game has increased each year since the Chicago Bears, with whom I now play, and the 1934 All-Stars engaged in a scoreless tie.

I am sorry that our 1939 squad couldn't carry on the All-Star conquests begun against Green Bay in 1937 and continued at the expense of Washington's Redskins in 1938, but since the series with the National Football league champions is now tied, the college boys of the 1940 squad have an incentive even greater than was ours last year.

It Takes Real Men.

My experiences date back to notification that I had been elected to the All-Star squad. I appreciated the recognition by the fans of the nation. I realized the honor clearly when I joined the players from all sections of the country. It was a real pleasure meeting the boys, some of whom I had read about.

I knew the coaches by reputation, of course, but the two weeks of practice under the direction of Elmer Layden and his assistants always will be remembered. I had learned a lot about football from Dr. Edward Anderson, my coach at Holy Cross, who showed the Western conference a few tricks this last season, but my experiences at Northwestern, where the All-Stars trained last August, demonstrated to me that only real men become coaching leaders in football.

The cooperation of the men directing the game and the hospitality of Northwestern officials and coaches immediately established the training period indelibly on my mind.

But my personal climax in this series of new experiences was the honor my own teammates tendered me. When they voted that I share the team captaincy with Bowden Wyatt, the great Tennessee end, I was completely overwhelmed. It was a thrill I never will forget.

Nary a Touchdown.

We did our best against the Giants, but we couldn't win. The Giants had to be content, however, with three field goals. They couldn't cross our goal line. And if Billy Patterson had had a bit more luck in the final period, when we were behind only 6 to 0, we still might have made those New Yorkers like it.

Football always has been my first love in sports. Originally I didn't intend to continue playing after the All-Star game, but George Halas of the Chicago Bears finally convinced me that I could play and achieve my life ambition. So for the last year I have studied dentistry in Northwestern university. I hope to make professional football serve as a stepping stone to this career.

FORGETFUL?

It isn't necessary to visit your physician. Your case is easily cured if you will co-operate. You don't want to miss the seventh annual All-Star football game sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., to be played on Soldiers' field the night of Aug. 29. On that evening the College All-Americans will battle the Green Bay Packers, professional champions. There are seats waiting for you—if you order now! Make your check or money order payable to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and send to All-Star ticket manager, Tribune Tower. Simple, isn't it! The prices

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

CHICAGO may be spared as the site of the Louis-Baer championship fight after all. . . . The ridiculous decision of the Illinois Athletic commission in the Harry Thomas case amused even Promoter Mike Jacobs who now hesitates to go thru with the match at Comiskey park in September. . . . "What's the matter with those fellows out there?" was Jacobs' reaction to the strange verdict of the strange investigation conducted by Messrs. Triner, Clark, and Fitzpatrick. . . . If there was an answer to Mr. Jacobs' question, we might know what is wrong with professional boxing in Illinois. . . . Decisions such as the Illinois Athletic commission returned last Monday contribute nothing to the public's faith in the integrity of the sport. . . . A new commission, of course, might help. . . .

Add famous last words: "Ruffing is my starting pitcher" . . . The Western Amateur Golf tournament at Minneapolis proved once again that golf is the sport that draws from all fields. . . . Among the contestants were Ellsworth Vines, former world's tennis champion; Tony Stecher, one time wrestler; Glenn Seidel, Babe Levoir and Jimmy Shearer, former football players, and Marty Falk, goalie on the University of Minnesota's A. A. U. championship hockey team. . . . Robert Waldorf, brother of Northwestern's Lynn, will marry Miss Martha F. Bryant of Wilmette July 30. . . . An outstanding linesman on the University of Missouri eleven last season, Waldorf is a candidate for the All-Star team. . . . Bob Zuppke is summering at Muskegon, Mich., golfing, painting, and drawing football plays on the handiest scratch paper. . . . Ephriam Colledge, otherwise "Sharkey," the White Sox clubhouse boy who looks 30, has been a Sox employé for 34 years, 20 of those as major domo of the dressing room and bathhouse. . . . He says Amos Strunk was the fastest Sox dresser during his tenure and Johnny Mostil the slowest. . . .

Mark Panther, who holds the Big 9½ javelin record of 219 feet 7⅝ inches, is mourning the fact that there are so few spear tossers in the conference. . . . The former University of Iowa athlete thinks athletes today lack coaching on modern form and are not willing to work on arm development. . . . Bob Collins, Cub catcher, spends his winter firing a locomotive which shuttles freight cars between steel mills and main line railroads at Pittsburgh. . . . Notre Dame will allow sponsored broadcasts of its home football games this season, but will receive no financial remuneration from the broadcasts. . . . The Irish allowed only sustaining broadcasts the last three years, but hope to bring reports of the games to more alumni and friends by making them available to sponsored programs. . . . Benny Leonard will referee the middleweight championship bout between Al Hostak and Challenger Tony Zale in Seattle July 19. . . . The playing field in the Los Angeles Coliseum, where all the big college games in that city are held, is 40 feet below the street level. . . . Pat Flaherty, former pitcher for the Red Sox, is tutoring Gary Cooper, who plays the rôle of a semipro hurler for some of the sequences in his new film, "Meet John Doe." . . . Bud Ward, national amateur golf champion, won't say yes and won't say no, but friends say he will become a professional within a year. . . . Pete Miller, president of the Illinois Skating association, who was to have been coach of the 1940 United States Olympic team, is seriously ill in St. Joseph's hospital.

Inspiration.

I sat me down with pen in hand
Beneath a shady tree,
And waited for poetic thoughts—
My notebook on my knee.

I must have been there for an hour;
It really seemed like more—
And never once to me did come
The rhymes I waited for.

So back to work and office desk
Piled high with things to do—
Letters to type and bills to send
And lots of filing, too.

And just as I was deep in work,
As busy as a bee,
Wouldn't you know! Like a flash
My poem came to me!

And after I had jotted down
My momentary thought,
I then recalled the noontime hour
Which I had spent for naught.

But often it will happen thus,
In other things than rhyme—
What we crowd in our working hours,
We can't do when we've time!
—Tessie, the Duchess.

LASSIE STAKES DRAWS SPEEDY JUVENILES TODAY

Misty Isle Continues Title Drive at Arlington.

Field for Lassie

EIGHT fillies were named in the overnight entries for today's Lassie stakes at Arlington Park. If all start, the race will have a gross value of $28,330. The field in order of post positions follows:

Horse.	Wt.	Jockey.	Prob. odds.
Traffic Court	117	B. James	5-1
Moja	117	C. Bierman	8-1
Tidy Whisk	117	L. Dupps	20-1
Misty Isle	122	K. McCombs	9-5
*Silvestra	117	J. Richards	3-1
*Unquote	117	J. Richards	2-1
Valdina Myth	122	J. Adams	15-1
Blue Delight	119	A. Snider	8-1

*Woolford Farm entry.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Joseph E. Widener's fleet juvenile filly, Misty Isle, will continue her quest for the championship of her class in today's $28,000 Lassie Stakes at Arlington Park. Out of this event last season came Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Now What, which went on to earn No. 1 national ranking for the season as have many other Lassie winners of the past.

Misty Isle, which distinguished herself by beating colts as well as fillies in last Saturday's Hyde Park Stakes, is confronted with another formidable task. During the week new rivals such as the Woolford farm entry of Silvestra and Unquote, have emerged from preparatory races at Arlington, and in addition a pair of speedy fillies have been shipped in from the east. These are C. V. Whitney's Traffic Court and R. A. Coward's Tidy Whisk. Mrs. John Marsch's Blue Delight, Cleveland Putnam's Moja, and Valdina farm's Valdina Myth complete the field of eight named in the overnight entries. If all start, the race will have a gross value of $28,330.

Gallahadion Runs Today.

Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Gallahadion, winner of the Kentucky Derby, will run against the Millsdale stable's Andy K., Joseph E. Widener's Town Boy and Valdina farm's Valdina, star in the Classic trial, a race of a mile designed as tune up for next Saturday's $50,000 Classic stakes. This will be Gallahadion's first appearance in the central states since he beat Bimelech in the Derby. Andy K. will be returning to the track where he first became famous before going on to earn No. 2 national ranking among last season's juveniles. He won last year's Arlington Futurity.

Another Classic candidate, Joseph E. Widener's Roman, will run today, but Trainer Danny Stewart decided to send him into the Midsummer handicap, a six furlong sprint instead of into the mile trial.

Six Furlong Test Today.

In winning the Hyde Park Stakes Misty Isle ran the 5½ furlongs in 1:04 4-5, which was only three-fifths of a second slower than the track record. She will be going 6 furlongs for the first time in her career today. She closed so powerfully during the stretch run last Saturday that the extra sixteenth isn't expected to bother her.

Blue Delight, which had been a standout over juvenile colts as well as fillies during the Lincoln Fields meeting, made a poor showing in her only outing since her victory in the Joliet stakes. This occurred last Tuesday in a 5½ furlong tuneup for the Lassie, when she finished fifth to Silvestra. She was unable to keep up with the early pace and showed little disposition to close ground in the stretch. Many expect a much better effort from her today, however.

Entry Shows Teamwork.

Silvestra and her stable mate, Unquote, dominated Tuesday's event so completely that Trainer Ross Higdon decided to enter both in the Lassie. Unquote cut out a brilliant early pace and then handed the responsibility to Silvestra in the stretch. She went on to win in 1:06 over an off track. No other horse was anywhere near the Woolford pair at the finish.

Whitney will be trying for his third Lassie victory with Traffic Court. His previous winners were Top Flight and Motto.

They Have Speed to Burn in Today's Tests

Traffic Court, C. V. Whitney's entrant in today's $28,330 Lassie Stakes at Arlington Park is all set to run after recent arrival from the east in special car. The juvenile daughter of Discovery-Traffic is held at 5 to 1 in the morning line.

Gallahadion, Mrs. E. V. Mars' Kentucky Derby winner of 1940, will go to the post today in a mile trial for the rich Classic Stakes which will be held a week from today. Gallahadion recently turned in a mile workout in the good time of 1:39 4-5.

Western Amateur Cut to Four; Todd vs. Ward, Ferrier vs. Victor

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., July 12.—The defending champion, the national champion, a co-medalist, and a Chicago dark horse who has been playing some of the best golf of the show—what more could a golf gallery ask for a semi-final foursome? And that is what the bunion brigade will see tomorrow when Harry Todd of Dallas meets Bud Ward of Spokane and Jim Ferrier of Australia tees off against George Victor of Chicago in the penultimate matches of the Western Amateur tournament at the Minneapolis Golf club.

The national amatuer is two months away, but witnesses to this afternoon's quarter-finals doubt if the big show will produce such thrillers as three of the four battles in this meet. The fourth of these ended on the 14th green, where the imperturbable Todd consummated a 6 and 4 decision over Dr. Bill Kostelecky of Fargo, N. D. Todd was two under par for the distance. Todd has been going his quiet way all week long, swinging clubs and gnawing on stogies, and it has just occurred to the galleries that this taciturn Texan is the lad who won the 1939 championship.

Three Go to 18th Green.

But the other three matches! All went to the 18th green for decision, and any one of them would be a golfer's dream. Ward proved himself the fighter he is by outlasting another battler — John Goodman of Omaha, former American open and amateur title holder. They had similar cards of par 72 before Ward won, 1 up.

Consider that these two tenacious competitors halved the last seven holes, the eleventh, where Goodman three putted, being the deciding factor. Prior to that error Goodman had been in front 2 up after the third hole, Ward conceding the second when his ball lodged in a jack pine. Ward then won the sixth with a par and took eighth with a birdie.

Victor Eliminates Doering.

Victor, the 22 year old Glen View member who is a former C. D. G. A. junior champion and a consistent national amateur qualifier, started out the day by eliminating Art Doering of Medinah, who had shared medal honors with Ferrier. Doering was five over par for the 14 holes needed by Victor to win, 5 and 4.

This afternoon Victor met Earl Larson, one-time Gopher captain and rated by natives the best amateur in the Twin Cities. It looked dark for the handsome Chicagoan when Larson rolled home a chip shot from off the ninth to go 1 up. But Victor fought back and squared it, finally going ahead and coming on to the 18th green 1 up. Here it was that Larson made the best pressure attempt of the tournament, his 25 foot putt for a birdie that would have prolonged the match needing only half a turn to drop. Victor had a medal card of 71, one under par.

OLSEN LIMITS BEES TO 5 HITS; CUBS WIN, 2 TO 0

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cubs, with youthful Vern Olsen in the rôle of head man, yesterday got the second half of their season under way with a sterling 2 to 0, five hit victory over Bill Posedel and the Boston Bees.

The Cubs failed to shake the countryside with the impacts of bats against baseballs—they made only six hits off Posedel and none after the fifth inning—but they didn't have to hit much, in view of the excellence of Olsen's performance.

The Cubs' first run, the one that was enough for success purposes, was accomplished in the third inning on a double by Stanley Hack and Jim Gleeson's second and last hit, a single on which he was thrown out trying to reach second. The superfluous Chicago run was made in the seventh, two innings after the Cubs had closed their hitting program for the day. Bobby Mattick stole home at his end of a double theft. Bobby started his trip around by drawing the second of two passes which Posedel gave during the afternoon.

Double Play Halts Bees.

The Bees' biggest threat developed in the third inning, tho a double play slowed down their progress. Posedel opened with the first hit off Olsen, then Sibby Sisti hit into a double play launched by Mattick. Jim Cooney got the first of his string of three straight passes and stopped at third on Gene Moore's double to right. Chet Ross was given an intentional pass, loading the bases. The threat vanished when Max West sent an easy bouncer to Bill Herman.

With two out in the seventh, Olsen walked Sisti and Cooney, his sixth and seventh passes, but the parade was halted when Moore executed his third strikeout. The Bees again were in scoring position in the ninth. Phil Masi delivered a pinch single and, after Sisti had filed out, Cooney was safe on Hack's fumble. The game

ONLY SAFETY FOR A'S IS MADE BY SIEBERT IN 8TH

Bob Fans Dean with Men on 2d and 3d.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 12 (AP).—Bobby Feller limited the Athletics to one hit tonight—a single by Dick Siebert in the eighth inning—to give the league leading Cleveland Indians a 1 to 0 victory.

Feller outpitched Rookie Johnny Babich to chalk up his 14th victory of the season before 3,104 chilly fans.

For seven innings Feller pitched no-hit ball. Al Brancato, who walked with two down in the fourth, was the only Athletic to reach first until Siebert singled to center to start the eighth.

With two down, Feller walked Al Rubeling and both men advanced on a wild pitch. However, Feller bore down and whizzed three strikes past Pinchhitter Chubby Dean to end the A's only threat.

Strikes Out 13 Men.

Altogether Feller struck out 13 batters.

Babich, seeking his eighth victory, held Cleveland to six hits. The Indians' tally came in the third on doubles by Ben Chapman and Lou Boudreau.

The victory increased Cleveland's lead over the idle Detroit Tigers to one game. Score:

WILLIS S. KILMER, OWNER OF TURF STARS, IS DEAD

Binghamton, N. Y., July 12 (AP).—Willis Sharpe Kilmer, 71 years old, publisher of the Binghamton Sun and owner of three of the greatest horses on the American turf—Exterminator, Sun Briar, and Sun Beau—died tonight.

Kilmer, a well known manufacturer of medicinal supplies in addition to his publishing, horse racing, and thorobred breeding interests, succumbed to pneumonia at his summer home at nearby Sky lake after being in ill health for the last year.

His wife, the former Sarah Jane Wells whom he married in Paris, was with him when he died.

Born in Brooklyn, Oct. 18, 1868, Kilmer came to Binghamton with his parents while still a boy. After attending Cornell university he entered into business with his father in the manufacture of medicinal goods. He took to horse racing and in 1918 his Exterminator won the Kentucky Derby.

The horse was followed in the Kilmer string by Sun Briar, which became one of the nation's leading sires. Sun Briar has sent such offspring to the races as Pompey, Sun Edwin, Firethorn and the famed Sun Beau, winner of $376,774. Sun Beau held the American record for money won until Seabiscuit came along to surpass it.

SHOEING HORSES IS AN ART AND IT STILL FLOURISHES

Five Pass State Test with Flying Hammers.

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

Three pair of brawny arms set the anvil ringing yesterday in Bill Mahaney and George Kinney's smithy at the Arlington race track and produced Cinderella hoofware of a grace and delicacy that would move the old gray mare to forsake her chestnut tree bootery.

Master race horse platers, as distinguished from the draft horse "bull shoers," were seeking licenses which permit them, in accordance with a state law passed in 1916, to practice their profession in Illinois. Jesse Hall of Aurora and Herbert Cary of Springfield, examiners from Director John Hallihan's department of registration and education, watched carefully, nodded approval, and allowed that all three measured up to Illinois standards.

Machine Age Hits Craft.

At the same time, John Huening of the department examined and passed two bull shoers who demonstrated at a forge in Wayne.

The three platers of Arlington all are members of the Journeymen Horseshoers of the United States and Canada, a brotherhood this machine age has reduced to less than 200.

Senior member of the trio was Richard Healy, 68 years old, who came with Mrs. John F. Waters' string of 30 horses from San Francisco. Irish born Healy, who speaks to the animals in a brogue, has been handling horses for 50 years, starting in his native land, continuing in Australia and winding up here. Peter Whau, son of Ethauwa of Kentucky, wore Healy shoes when he won the world trotting championship [1924] in New Zealand. Running from a standing start he ran a two mile race on turf in 4 minutes, 18 seconds.

One Is a Youngster.

Bob Duell, shoer for the Putnam horses from Arcadia, Cal., is 61 years old. Alexander Pantages, in Duell shoes, was the runner that placed in the $100,000 Agua Caliente handicap in Tia Juana in 1928, the year of Victorian's triumph. Rip Vinas, third to be licensed, is 24 years old. The applicants examined in Wayne were Perry Vittoe and Harold Kelly.

The candidates were graded 20 points on the dressing of the foot, 40 for calking and fitting, 15 for nailing and finishing and 25 on proficiency in an oral examination covering anatomy of a horse's foot and special problems in shoeing.

"Shoeing runners," explained Bill Mahaney of the shop, as the anvils were singing, "is a delicate business. It might almost be called an art. The shoes must be as light and as exactly fitted as a ballet slipper. From 3 to 4 ounces—that's what a race horse's shoe weighs."

Tips on Lures to Catch Bass in Minnesota

BY BOB BECKER.

Weedless bait casting lures and popper surface lures for the fly rod should be in the kit of the fisherman who invades the lake country around Aitkin, Minn., where the large mouthed black bass live in clear, sand bottomed lakes.

After looking over or fishing a number of the lakes in that part of the northwoods vacation country, the notes we jotted in our notebook indicate that without those types of artificial lures the fisherman is going to have a hard time digging bass out of the weed beds.

For the fisherman who is going to visit the Aitkin country here are some practical tips on some of the lakes and their vegetation and the lures that we found successful:

Welawiben lake . . . about 14 miles from Aitkin and not far from Kimberly. Rushes along the shore, then heavy underwater weed beds in which the bass stay. Around sundown a plunker lure worked over the weed beds brings 'em up. When we were on Welawiben we suggested to three bass fishermen that they try plunkers over the heavy underwater weeds around sundown. They got fish with these lures. For going thru the weeds, most of the boys use the old twin spinner lure [made in Chicago] that has been a veteran of many bass fishing campaigns. Many of the lakes are lined with lily pads. To fish these, a weedless, non-snag surface lure is required. We used a new one, with a spinner, metal body, and single hook protected by a weed guard, that was a winner. Never got snagged.

FORMAL DRESS, steadied when outrun and raced wide thruout, started up slowly on the stretch turn, took command gradually after being placed to pressure and drew out fast thru the final sixteenth. OFFICE HOUR, well up from the start, saved much ground and weakened after three-quarters but outstayed SUN KIT. Latter raced wide, was well up after the first five-sixteenths and held on fairly well. KILLARNEY LASS lost ground. OGALLAH saved ground much of the race but was never a serious factor.

ART OF WAR, taken in hand after opening up a clear advantage in the first three-sixteenths, continued under restraint to the stretch, increased his advantage under mild urging, drifted out while holding a big margin over SIR KID in the last eighth and otherwise might have won more decisively. SIR KID, steadied under a snug hold until settled into good stride, raced wide when beginning to move up, stood right up gamely and followed ART OF WAR out thru the last eighth. BIRKA BOY, badly outrun in the stretch, closed well on the inside. FORT SPIN showed a fair effort.

INVITING, favored by the pace and kept under stout reserve until the final three-sixteenths, responded willingly and outgamed LIFE GUARD in the final strides. LIFE GUARD, well up after the first three-sixteenths and raced wide, stood a drive gamely, but was not good enough. SIR MOWLEE, away fast but kept in hand, dropped back when saving ground on the turn, rallied in his drive but weakened in the late stages yet lasted to deadheat with CADDIECAT. Latter far out in the track turning, moved up easily leaving the backstretch, was placed to pressure after five-eighths and held on fairly well.

Time, 1:41 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Haste On, $17.20 straight, $10.40 place, $6.80 show; Philyra, $12.00 place, $8.40 show; Jockarando, $10.40 show. Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 4:14½. At post ¼ minute. Start good from gate. Won driving, place same.

HASTE ON, slow to begin, was sent to the outside when improving his position swung extremely wide entering the stretch, came fast when straightened, and, wearing down PHILYRA in the last stages, was driven out to the front. PHILYRA, rushed to the front, held sway under strong urging, drew clear entering the stretch, tired in the last stages, and was unable to hold the winner. JOCKARANDO dropped back soon after the start, worked his way forward steadily, and finished well. HADALAD rushed forward thru the field offered and weakened in the last stages.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Three year olds and up. Allowances. Purse $1,200. Net value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, 1:14 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Rifted Clouds, $11.20 straight, $7.00 place, $4.60 show; Flying Jane, $5.00 place, $5.60 show; Silverette, $4.80 show. Winner trained by R. O. Higdon. Went to post at 4:46. At post 1 minute. Start good, from gate. Won driving, place same.

RIFTED CLOUDS, racing in fine form and forced to remain on the inside early, moved to FLYING JANE under light pressure entering the stretch, came out slightly after opening up a clear margin, and weakened but lasted. FLYING JANE disbursed good speed from the start, raced a trifle wide thruout, and failed to withstand the winner's challenge, yet held on gamely to the finish. SILVERETTE, also raced wide and strongly restrained for a half mile, bunted on with determination in the drive.

SEVENTH RACE—Mile and a quarter. Three year olds and up. Claiming. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

DISTILLATION recovered quickly after ground broke out from her at the start, established a clear lead during the opening three-sixths, was steadied along for nearly a mile, and increased her advantage when roused to win easily. ROUGH DIAMOND worked his way forward steadily, came between horses entering the stretch, and closed with a rush. FANCY THAT, impeded at the turn and far back early, improved her position at a loss of ground and finished well.

SURE SWIFT, steadied along early, moved forward on the outside, responded to strong urging when taking command and, altho tiring in the last stages withstood CAMARADERIE. Latter improved his position thru the field, was sent to the outside approaching the stretch and was gaining on the winner. CHANCE KING, shuffled back early, was forced to the outside for room and, coming to the inside at the stretch bend, closed with a rush.

Joyce Swings One Punch and Morelia Is Out

Willie Joyce, 1937 Chicago Golden Gloves featherweight champion, scored a one round knockout over George Morella of Detroit in White City last night. Joyce, who was defeated by Morella in an earlier meeting, ended the rematch with the only blow delivered, a right to the jaw two seconds after the bell had sounded. Referee Barney Ross completed his count after 12 seconds of the round had elapsed. The 1,381 spectators booed the quick ending, little realizing they had seen one of the fastest knockouts in history. Gross receipts were $1,049.60.

Joyce's feat matched that of Battling Nelson when the former lightweight champion floored Willie Rossler for the count in 12 seconds of the first round in Harvey, Ill., April 5, 1902. Al Foreman, Canadian lightweight, holds the world record, knocking out Ruby Levine in 11½ seconds of the first round in 1928.

Nate Bolden, former Golden Gloves intercity middleweight winner, conquered George Burnette, also of Detroit, in an eight round semi-final. Annunzio Ferraro, Milwaukee junior welterweight, defeated Kelly Kohn of Peoria, and Willie Ross, local 142 pounder, beat Tiger Robinson of Detroit in matches of four rounds. Matt Dougherty, lightweight, also of Milwaukee, was awarded a three round decision over Joe Dupont when his foe was forced to surrender because of a cut eye.

Tommy Mair, representing Heniff's gymnasium, defeated Andy Sterley of the Savoy A. C. in the five-round feature bout of an amateur boxing show in Parichy stadium, Harlem avenue and Harrison street, last night. They are featherweights. Other results:

John Crane, Morgan Park, beat Jack Wittinghill, Bloomington [5].

Frankie Kidd, Downers Grove, beat Lou Marshall, Savoy A. C. [3].

Stanley Stockins, Heniff's gymnasium, beat Wendell White, Savoy A. C. [3].

Charles Kidd, Downers Grove, stopped Bob Winters, Northwest A. C. [2].

Andrew Dixon, Savoy A. C., beat Celestino Valdes, Filipino-American A. C. [3].

John Hardr, [Madison A. C., beat Early Merritt, Northwest A. C. [3].

RAIN KEEPS SOX FROM LOSING TO BOSTON NEMESIS

They'll Have to Face It Twice Today, However.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., July 12.—The White Sox, who are very popular hereabouts because of the support they have been giving to the Red Sox pennant campaign, were unable to make another contribution today. The weather man locked them up for their own protection and, while this was somewhat annoying for the local athletes, they were quickly consoled by the announcement of a double header tomorrow. This will give them a chance to accomplish two days of work in one afternoon against James Dykes' team, which has double-crossed them only three times in 12 games.

To appreciate what the Chicago Sox have done for Tom Yawkey's Boston boys you need only a quick squint at the team vs. team count in the American league standing. The closest approach to Boston's nine victories over Chicago is seven losses by the latter to Cleveland in ten games, followed by six to Detroit in the same number of encounters. So the Chicago boys have made Boston a contender and, because of the Boston complex, haven't been able to hoist themselves into the first division.

Tough Loss for Rigney.

The ninth loss of the year to the Red Sox yesterday was another glaring example of White Sox generosity. Johnny Rigney was in as good form as he ever will be and the fact that he lost in the thirteenth because of a homer over a wall that a Boy Scout could clear in a running jump is not to his discredit. He should have been ahead by a healthy margin by the time the regulation nine innings were completed. He wasn't ahead because of screwy base running in the sixth when one run was needed for a tie. Running bases is a great offensive maneuver, but it must be combined with speed and judgment.

The blundering sixth opened with a single by Joe Kuhel and the next happening was a double by Julius Solters. Kuhel, who is none too fast afoot, tried to score from first and was shot down at the plate. If there had been two out the risk might have been warranted, but the brace of hits came before anybody was retired. If Kuhel had stopped or been stopped at third, the Sox would have had men on the two far corners with none out and it is reasonable to believe that at least the tying run would have reached home eventually. As the result of Kuhel's sprint, nobody scored.

Lyons, Knott Pitch Today.

If the weatherman releases the Chicagoans from his custody tomorrow, the pitching will be handled by Ted Lyons and Jack Knott. Lyons, altho at the grandpop stage of baseball life has a commendable 5 vs. 4 record for the season, his most recent achievement being a low score decision over Bob Feller in Cleveland last Sunday. Knott, who would be a consistent winner if he'd learn how to make use of his pitching stuff, has won only three while losing a half dozen.

As the result of yesterday's sixth inning blunder, the baseball writers today presented Manager Dykes with a pair of red lanterns for use in the direction of traffic at third base. Dykes admired the lanterns and admitted they would be helpful in his basement at home but he also voiced a suspicion that the reporters might be hinting that it would be better for himself and others if he'd get out on the third base coaching line and keep an eye on what is going past or trying to get past.

GREENBERG WINS WAY TO FINALS IN GOLD RACQUET

North Conway, N. H., July 12 (AP).—Seymour Greenberg of Northwestern university, national public parks champion, today upset fourth-seeded George Toley of Los Angeles, 6-4, 7-5, 4-6, 7-5, in the Gold Racquet tourney semi-finals.

Frank Kovacs, of Oakland, Cal., only seeded star left in the field, will fight it out with Larry Dee, of Stanford university, for the privilege of meeting Greenberg in the final. Dee disposed of Bob Decker of Newton, Mass., to reach the semi-final bracket.

In the doubles quarter-finals Dee and James Wade of Palo Alto, Cal., conquered Greenberg and William McGhee of New Orleans, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2.

ROUGH WEATHER DELAYS JUNIOR YACHT FINALS

The final races for the Great Lakes junior yachting championship, off Wilmette, were postponed yesterday due to the heavy northeast wind and rough sea. Competition is scheduled to end today on the Sheridan Shore Yacht club's course, before the club's Star boats begin their regular series races at 2:30 p. m.

Racing sloops of the R, Eagle, Star, Tumlaren, and 110 classes will sail on the Chicago Yacht club's course off Belmont harbor starting at 2:15 p. m. today. The Chicago Snipe class fleet off Montrose harbor, the Columbia Yacht club's handicap class off Chicago harbor, and the Jackson Park Yacht club's fleet, are also scheduled to race this afternoon.

Rain Delays Semi-Finals in Middle States Tennis

Philadelphia, Pa., July 12 (AP).—Rain forced postponement of semi-final matches in the middle states women's tennis tournament today. The matches will be played tomorrow. Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Cal., will meet Helen Pedersen of Stamford, Conn., and the defending champion, 19 year old Helen Bernhard of New York, will face Hope Knowles of Philadelphia.

Rookie Olsen and Cubs Shut Out Bees, 2 to 0

ended when Olsen tossed out Moore to guarantee his fifth victory.

They Set the Stage.

The Cubs warmed up for their winning third inning run by getting into scoring position in the first two. In the first Gleeson wasted a double. In the second Augie Galan walked and Phil Cavarretta singled, but there was no wood to help them along, the failure including whiffs by Gabby Hartnett and Olsen.

Then came Hack's essential run. He opened with a double to left, paused while Herman popped to Al Glossop, and tallied on Gleeson's single to left. Gleeson was sunk at second on a cut-off play, Ross to Sisti to Glossop. Bill Nicholson flied to Moore.

The Cub run in the hitless seventh was produced thuswise: Mattick walked with one down, advanced to second on Olsen's sacrifice, and to third when Glossop fumbled Hack's grounder. Mattick and Hack put on a double steal, Mattick scoring. Herman fouled to Berres and production was over for the bleak July day.

Manuel Salvo, who has won three games and lost one for the Bees, and Jake Mooty, who has won five and lost one for the Cubs, will oppose each other in the final of the Boston-Chicago series in Wrigley field this afternoon. The game will start at 2 o'clock.

Many customers who were caught Thursday by a 30 degree temperature drop and shivered thru the Bees-Cubs double header clad in linen suits and other summery stuff, showed up yesterday in overcoats. The temperature at game time was 60 degrees.

Buddy Hassett, Bees' first baseman injured in a collision with Dolph Camilli, Brooklyn first baseman, before the Bees came west, continues to suffer much discomfort but expects to resume play after the Bees reach St. Louis, next stop after Chicago.

The Giants, who haven't been very nice to the Cubs this year, will come to town tomorrow to play four games, including a double header tomorrow afternoon.

MISS WILLIAMS WINS ONE DAY C. D. G. A. TOURNEY

STUDEBAKER NINE WHIPS CHICAGO FIREMEN, 9 TO 5

South Bend, Ind., July 12 [Special].—Eddie Hanyzewski, schoolboy star, stifled an eighth inning rally as the Studebaker Athletics defeated the Chicago Firemen, 9 to 5, tonight. Sebastian Nowicki, Notre Dame pitcher the last two seasons, weakened in the eighth after holding the Firems scoreless for seven innings. The Firemen chased him in the eighth with five hits, including doubles by Murphy, Conroy, and Lopatka, good for five runs. Hanyzewski then fanned Murphy, up for the second time, to retire the side. The Firems threatened again in the ninth, filling the bases with one down. Mucci hit into a double play with a liner to third, wiping out the rally. The Athletics raked Duncan and Minarek for 13 hits. Score:

Batteries—Duncan, Minarek and Bergman; Mowicki, Hanyszewski and Thomas.

KAMRATH PUT OUT OF NET MEET BY CARROTHERS

Indianapolis, Ind., July 12 (AP).—Bobby Carrothers of Coronado, Cal., seeded seventh, upset Robert Kamrath of Houston, Tex., third seeded, today in quarter finals men's singles match in the western tennis tournament. The scores were: 6-1, 3-6, 6-2.

Bobby Riggs of Chicago, seeded first, advanced to the semfinials over Ronald Lubin of Los Angeles, 6-4, 6-2.

County Golf Title Taken by Mrs. Sick

Mrs. Bernie Sick of Crystal Lawn, Joliet, won the 26th annual Cook county women's golf tournament yesterday by defeating Mrs. Evelyn Moore, slim blonde from Navajo Fields and last year's champion, 7 and 6, in the 36 hole final in Jackson park.

The new champion achieved her victory by superior play in the final 18 holes, where Mrs. Moore was short at intervals off the tee, erratic with her irons and went over on putts at several greens.

The contest was fairly close in the forenoon after an early lapse on the part of the former champion. Mrs. Moore was 3 down at four holes, but Mrs. Sick began to miss strokes on the greens and was 1 down at the turn.

All Even at Turn.

She became 2 down at the water 11th, but Mrs. Moore was weak with her woods at the long 14th, 560 yards, and lost the 18th with a long approach putt played too weakly.

This leveled the match for 18 holes, Mrs. Moore having the better medal card of 41—39—80 to Mrs. Sick's 44—38—82.

In the afternoon, they halved the first two holes, and Mrs. Sick regained the lead at the 21st, where Mrs. Moore's second went bouncing over the green. Halving the next two holes, the Joliet player began to gain ground when Mrs. Moore encountered several traps, missed putts, and suffered a bush penalty at the 27th. At this stage Mrs. Sick was 5 up, and thereafter in no danger.

Encounters Water Penalty.

The deciding factors were at the 28th, where Mrs. Moore drove among the trees, and the 29th, Jackson park's famous water hole. The former champion there had a water penalty, and Mrs. Sick won the match on the 30th, which was halved in par 4s. Cards:

Morning round:

Mrs. Moore—Out	565	554	434	—41
Mrs. Sick—Out	564	474	645	—44

Janet Shock Wins Ohio Golf Title in Playoff

Cincinnati, O., July 12 (AP).—Janet Shock of Dayton won the state women's golf crown here today by defeating Miss Dorothy Gardner of Steubenville, 1 up, on the 39th hole of a playoff match.

GEORGIA TAINTER WINS IN WOMEN'S JUNIOR, 5 AND 4

Georgia Tainter.

South Bend, Ind. July 12 [Special].—Georgia Tainter, a comely, raven-haired miss from Fargo, N. D., today conquered Eileen Quinlan, happy-go-lucky colleen from St. Paul, Minn., 5 and 4 to win the Women's Western Golf association's junior tournament in the final match over the lake-studded course of the South Bend Country club.

It remained for Miss Tainter, who lost in the final match of the 1939 junior tournament to Mary Wilder of Glencoe, Ill., to halt the amazing conquests of the plucky St. Paul lass. Unheralded in preturnament listings, Miss Quinlan tossed three hand grenades into the tournament when she ousted heavily favored rivals, including the medalist, Phyllis Otto of Atlantic, Ia.

Today, however, the Irish lassie found the smooth stylist from her own northwest too much of a problem, and she was three down at the turn. Miss Tainter, competing in her second major tournament, was three over par on the front nine with a 42, winning the first, fifth, seventh, and ninth holes. Miss Quinlan took the sixth. A faulty putter cost Miss Quinlan the 10th. On the 11th she finally picked up, conceding the hole. She dubbed a pitch shot on the match-ending 14th, spoiling a chance of landing near the pin for one putt and a par 4. She took a 5 to halve the hole. Cards:

Points in picking a Pointer

"Champion pointers today are dogs that look and are thoroughly trained and working bird-dogs. Aside from superb style and ability in open country, a good pointer should also display symmetrical build with head held high. These are only a few of the hundred points that make a great pointer."

POINTS IN PICKING A FINE BOURBON...

CHARLES G. HOPTON says: "In judging a bourbon only one point counts—TASTE! Two sips prove Meadow Brook 'Best in its Class'—thanks to its light, yet luxurious, true bourbon taste."

HIGHER PROFITS REPORTED BY 2 STEEL CONCERNS

Bliss & Laughlin Earns $339,485 in Half Year.

Increased earnings were reported yesterday by several industrial corporations, including two steel companies.

Bliss & Laughlin, Inc., Harvey, Ill., manufacturer of cold finished bar steel products, announced it had a profit of $339,485 in the six months ended June 30, after depreciation, normal federal income taxes, and national defense taxes at the new rates, and after dividends of $8,733 on the 5 per cent preferred stock. The earnings were equal to $1.29 a share on the common stock.

In the first six months of last year Bliss & Laughlin had net income of $244,233, equal to 93 cents a share on the basis of present capitalization.

Quarter Profit About $144,766.

Indicated profit for the quarter ended with June was $144,766, equal to 53 cents a share, compared with $119,134, or 43 cents a share on the basis of present capitalization, in the second quarter of 1939.

Allegheny Ludlum Steel corporation, Pittsburgh, Pa., reported consolidated profit of $1,008,121 in the June quarter, after federal income taxes, defense supertaxes, and other charges. This was equal, after dividend requirements on the 7 per cent preferred stock, to 76 cents a share on the common stock. In the corresponding period last year net income was $147,740, or 7 cents a share.

Revises Tax Allowances.

The company announced a revision of its previously reported earnings for the quarter ended March 31, the change being made to allow for the defense supertaxes. The new tax amounted to $33,699, cutting the earnings to $966,598 from $1,000,297.

Underwood Elliott Fisher company, manufacturer of office equipment, had June quarter profit of $484,656, equal to 66 cents a share, compared with $300,756, or 41 cents a share, in the corresponding 1939 period.

WEIRTON STEEL IS ORDERED TO END 2 UNIONS

Longest, Costliest Case Decided.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 12 (AP).—The National Labor Relations board, in a preliminary decision in its longest and costliest case, today ordered the $125,000,000 Weirton Steel company to dissolve independent unions at two plants and reinstate with back pay 17 of 300 employés who contended they were dismissed for union activity.

T. E. Millsop says company will carry fight to courts.

At the same time, the board refused to recognize the C. I. O.'s Steel Workers Organizing committee—which filed the charges against the company—as bargaining agent for Weirton's employés.

T. E. Millsop, president of Weirton, immediately announced he would carry the fight to the courts. He declared the NLRB order was "about 99 per cent invective and 1 per cent substance."

Proceedings 4 Years Old.

The decision was based on the board's four year long proceeding against the company headed by Ernest T. Weir, New Deal foe who successfully challenged the NRA and has frequently criticized administration of the Wagner labor act as government interference with business.

The independent unions which the company was directed to disestablish are located at the Steubensville, O., and Weirton, W. Va. plants. Organized under Weirton's employé representative plan, they were described by the SWOC as "company unions."

The company was also directed to "cease physical assaults on union employés or inciting others to such action." The decision said that "special watchmen" employed by the company "roamed the streets, trailed C. I. O. sympathizers, and assaulted SWOC organizers. The C. I. O. called the watchmen a "hatchet gang."

Dismisses C. I. O. Petition.

The board dismissed however, a petition by the C. I. O. Steel Workers Organizing committee seeking recognition as bargaining agent for the 12,000 employés of the company, main unit of the National Steel corporation of which Weir is chairman. The board held the SWOC had not established a majority among the employés.

Terming the board's order a "startling document," Millsop said:

"Among other things, it condemns the company because the employés' bulletin quoted extracts from speeches of a United States senator and a congressman and published reprints of articles by [newspaper columnists] Boake Carter and Westbrook Pegler."

He criticised the board also for giving out copies of its decision to newspapers a day in advance of its being served on the company charging that was "the same tactics it used in issuing the original complaint."

View on Pay Award.

The steel executive said the fact that back pay was awarded to 17 of more than 300 men who originally demanded reinstatement and pay "confirms the proof which has been amassed by the Smith [senate] committee, of the board's notorious disregard for the rights of employers.

"It is significant that two of the 17 men are now being prosecuted in West Virginia in connection with their signatures to communist petitions," continued Millsop. "Yet thruout the hearing the board prevented the company from presenting any proof of communistic activities on the part of the claimants and the C. I. O. organizers."

The company has 20 days to file exceptions and request oral arguments, and 30 days to file briefs before the board's order is made final.

In Chicago, Chairman Philip Murray of the SWOC hailed the decision as one which "brings into bold relief the reason why such violators of the labor relations act are trying to emasculate the law of the land."

Battle Started in 1936.

The four year battle—enlivened by frequent and bitter dispute among attorneys—started in 1936 after company mechanized its tin plate mills and discharged 300 employés.

The SWOC filed charges with the NLRB and the resulting hearings in three states—West Virginia, Ohio, and Pennsylvania—lasted 18 months, about 700 witnesses being heard. Unofficial estimates placed total cost of the case at more than $1,000,000.

One NLRB examiner, Edward Grandison Smith, quit after verbal clashes with Company Counsel Clyde Armstrong, who was later barred from the hearings.

Weir won a victory over the NRA in 1935 when the United States District court at Wilmington, Del., upheld his contention that the Weirton employe representation plan was a legal and efficient method of collective bargaining.

The court upheld the company's contention that congress could not regulate commerce not of an interstate or foreign nature, and that its relationship with its workers was not a part of interstate commerce. Subsequently, however, the Wagner Labor act giving the government supervision over employer-employe relations was upheld by the Supreme court.

Aluminum Pay Increase Ends Strike Threat

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 12 (AP).—The Aluminum Company of America agreed to grant a wage increase of 2 cents an hour to its hourly rated employés in an agreement reached tonight with the C.I.O. Aluminum Workers' union. This ended a protracted controversy in which a strike in the vital industry had been threatened.

Compromise Is Effected.

The agreement represented a compromise of union demands for a general increase of 10 cents an hour. The new rate leaves the minimum at 63 cents an hour, but provides for a 65 cent minimum after 90 days, the same as in the glass industry, but 2½ cents higher than that of steel. The new rate goes into effect July 14.

"I think it represents a fair settlement," was the comment of Nick Zonarich, union president, who predicted his organization would formally approve the agreement at mass meetings in the various plants this week-end.

The C. I. O. represents 15,000 workers in plants at New Kensington, Pa., Edgewater, N. J., Detroit, Mich., Badin, N. C., and Alcoa, Tenn.

Costs Million or More.

A spokesman for the company estimated the annual increase would amount to between $1,000,000 and $1,250,000. He said the terms would be extended to the concern's 15,000 other workers in 10 plants, excepting those at East St. Louis, Ill., and Garwood, N. J., where increases already have been granted.

Workers who have received increases of two cents an hour or more since Oct. 1, 1939, will not be given the increase, nor will employés with less than 90 days service.

WHEAT FUTURES SINK TO LOWEST FOR 10½ MONTHS

Wheat prices on the Chicago Board of Trade declined ⅛ to ⅝ cent a bushel yesterday with the July and September deliveries selling at the lowest level since Sept. 1, 1939. The close was about the bottom. Hedging pressure against the movement of the new winter wheat crop more than offset a report of dry and warm weather in the northwest and private reports indicating serious damage to spring wheat in parts of the American and Canadian northwest.

Corn futures closed ⅛ to ⅝ cent lower, increased offerings of cash grain by farmers being the dominating influence. Oats finished unchanged to ⅛ cent lower. Rye showed independent strength and advanced ¼ to ⅝ cent. Soy beans were ⅛ to ¼ cent lower.

H. C. Donovan reported to Thomson & McKinnon from Regina, Sask., that small grain crops in that area were badly damaged by hot and dry weather. R. O. Cromwell, reporting from Bismarck, N. D., to Lamson Bros. & Co., said there was a chance of a fair wheat crop in part of that territory, but in other sections deterioration will be resumed if the weather turns hot.

SEEK TO LOCATE BIG LABORATORY IN CHICAGO AREA

Five aviation fields in the Chicago area will be suggested as suitable sites for the proposed federal aircraft engine research laboratory to the national advisory committee for aeronautics when that group meets in Washington Monday, it was announced here yesterday.

The Chicago delegation pressing for selection of the sites will be headed by E. P. Querl, industrial development manager for the Chicago Association of Commerce, and George Mitten, of the association's industrial committee.

Curtiss Wright airport at Glenview and the municipally owned airports at Joliet, Lockport, Aurora, and St. Charles are the fields which will be proposed to the committee, Querl said.

The committee has been given $8,400,000 to build the laboratory with the stipulation that adequate electric power and sufficient trained men be available in the area chosen.

Lard Storage Stocks Rise to All-Time Peak

Lard stocks in cold storage on July 1 were the largest in the history of the nation, the department of agriculture disclosed yesterday. The increase of 7.6 per cent during June, amounting to 21,777,000 pounds, raised the total to 305,714,000 pounds. This was an increase of 143,609,000 pounds or 88 per cent over the Jan. 1 total.

Holdings were 106 per cent larger than on July 1 last year and 134 per cent above the average of the last five years. There has been an almost uninterrupted increase in the lard accumulation since last November when the supply was only 68,738,000 pounds.

Equal to 9 Million Hogs.

It was estimated at the stockyards that the huge lard stocks were equivalent to the lard obtained from about 9,000,000 hogs averaging 230 pounds, which is about a 10 weeks' slaughter for packing plants under federal inspection in this country. Statisticians also estimated that the available lard stocks were about equal to the normal United States consumption over a two months' period.

There was also an increase in cold storage stocks of pork, but a decrease in holdings of other meats during the month.

BIG WAREHOUSE LEASED FOR USE BY GOLDBLATT

Goldblatt Brothers, Inc. yesterday leased the 7 story warehouse at the southwest corner of West Pershing road and South La Salle street, containing 450,000 square feet, for a short term of years. The owner is Terminal Properties Inc.

The building is now occupied by Sears, Roebuck & Co., which will move into its new $800,000 warehouse at the northwest corner of 35th and Iron streets later in the summer.

Goldblatt Brothers then will move the contents of the furniture warehouse at 3746 South Loomis street to the warehouse just leased. The Loomis street warehouse has a floor space of about 200,000 square feet.

Pennsylvania Grade Oil Is Cut Another 25 Cents

New York, July 12 [Special].—The South Penn Oil company today reduced the price of Pennsylvania grade crude oil 25 cents a barrel, making total reductions of 75 cents since Jan. 1. The cuts were attributed largely to a decline in the export demand. The new price for oil in the Bradford-Alleghany district is $2 a barrel. In the South West Penn pipe lines the new schedule is $1.65 and in the Eureka pipe lines $1.59.

Germany Tests Soil of Each Farm to Save on Fertilizer

Washington, D. C., July 12 [Special].—Germany has set up 70 stations to test the soil of every farm in the country with the objective of increasing farm production as much as possible without the use of fertilizers, the department of commerce reported today.

ENGLISH PILOT TERMS U. S. PLANE 'STEADY' IN 600 M. P. H. DIVE

New York, July 12 (AP).—An English test pilot for the British purchasing commission has dived an American plane at 600 miles and found it "very steady," the commission said today.

The pilot reported the wing flutter which has appeared in similar tests on other planes was absent. He claimed it was superior to any German plane now in use. The plane, on which the tests were recently made in this country, is a modified form of pursuit plane. Production on the newest model is just getting under way.

Addition of 100 employés to the staff of the commission was also announced, thus bringing the personnel to 600. W. L. Smith of Western Electric company, under whose supervision the plane purchasing program of the commission was developed, has returned to his company, the commission added.

BRITAIN OFFERS TO BUY MORE DRY SKIMMED MILK

Dairy Trade Expecting Big Cheese Order.

The British purchasing commission announced yesterday that it would receive offers of spray processed dry skimmed milk for human consumption, manufactured after March 1, 1940. Offers will be subject to acceptance by the commission promptly, but in no case later than 72 hours after receipt of offers at the offices of the commission in New York. Offers are to be stated in carlots of 40,000 pounds. This is the second offer of the British to buy dried skimmed milk.

Dairy traders have been expecting the British commission to place large orders for American cheese. It was reported that the government had asked traders to form a committee to facilitate the buying of cheese by the commission.

The milk offer, usually a factor in the butter futures market, had little effect on prices on the Chicago Mercantile exchange. Butter for November delivery closed at 27.15 cents a pound, off 0.05 cents from the preceding day.

Egg futures closed 1-10 cent a dozen higher on a rally instituted by dealer buying. The wholesale market declined ¼ to ¾ cent a dozen in Chicago.

EASTERN ROAD'S PROFIT IN MAY FALLS SHARPLY

Net income of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western declined sharply in May in comparison with earnings in the same month last year, the road reported yesterday. May net income was $13,327, compared with $66,384 a year ago.

The Atlantic Coast Line reported a net loss of $281,567 for the first five months of the current year compared with a net income of $812,742 in the 1939 period.

LETTERS

[This department prints from time to time letters of not more than 250 words addressed to the financial editor.]

The Tax Table.

Chicago, July 5.—Your paper has performed a valuable public service by printing the list of the major 183 American corporations and the very valuable data about government taxes eating up profits. It would be a more valuable scientific treat for some knowledge hungry readers if you would publish also the pay rolls or wages paid to personnel.

If we are to avoid indulging in idle criticism and work toward curing this evil of mounting taxes, we must have statistics about pay rolls. If we could spend less money on taxes we could employ more idle men or train apprentices. H. B.

Packard Votes to Accept Big Engine Order

Washington, D. C., July 12 (AP).—The defense commission announced today that directors of the Packard Motor company had approved a "general arrangement" for production of 9,000 Rolls-Royce airplane motors for the United States and Great Britain. William S. Knudsen, commissioner in charge of coördinating defense production, said contracts were being prepared covering this arrangement.

Negotiated Three Weeks.

The announcement came after more than three weeks of negotiations on a contract which Henry Ford previously had declined to undertake, on the ground that he would make munitions only for the United States.

Knudsen and M. M. Gilman, president of Packard, worked out a tentative agreement after the Ford deal fell thru, but several days ago the Packard directors declined to approve that. Gilman conferred with officials this week to break the deadlock, which involved details of financing, profits, and taxation.

Estimated $150,000,000 Deal.

The contract will cover 3,000 motors for the United States government and 6,000 for the British government. It is understood to cover an expenditure by the two governments of about $150,000,000, as congress appropriated $43,500,000 for the American share of the order.

Gilman told the commission last week the Packard plant would be prepared to begin production in ten months.

SALES BY STORES IN 7TH RESERVE DISTRICT ARE UP

Department stores in the 7th [Chicago] federal reserve district increased their sales last week 9.1 per cent above the corresponding week in 1939, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported yesterday. Sales during the four weeks ended July 8 rose 11 per cent above a year ago. Department store business for the entire United States increased 7 per cent during the week.

Chicago stores reported a gain of 8.7 per cent in sales during the week above a year ago and 10.5 per cent greater volume in the four week period.

Buying in retail stores at leading centers of distribution this week averaged 3 to 8 per cent over a year ago for the country as a whole, Dun & Bradstreet reported yesterday.

"July clearance sales got well under way as retailers began to empty their shelves to make room for new fall merchandise," the credit agency said. "More normal summer weather conditions benefitted sales of hot weather goods."

In wholesale markets, fall buying was reported starting, altho here and there last minute requests for summer merchandise were still coming in.

NILES TRAMMELL ELECTED AS NEW NBC PRESIDENT

New York, July 12 (AP).—Election of Niles Trammell, formerly of Chicago, as the third president of the National Broadcasting company was effected by the board of directors today. He succeeds Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, who resigned to become president of the Chicago Museum of Science and Industry.

Trammell's elevation from executive vice president had been forecast almost since the announcement on June 7 of Lohr's resignation. Lohr had been president since 1936.

Trammell in 1923 joined the sales department of the Radio Corporation of America, transferring to NBC in March, 1928. Three months later he was named manager of the central division, Chicago. The next year he became a vice president, serving in that city until January, 1939, when he was promoted to executive vice president at New York.

SEC Exempts Utility Securities Sales to REA

Washington, D. C., July 12 (AP).—The Securities and Exchange commission today exempted from authorization the sale of securities by public utilities to the Rural Electrification administration. Heretofore, utilities have had to get SEC authority to sell securities to the REA.

PLAN MERGER OF 2 CHICAGO GAS COMPANIES

Stockholders Will Vote Aug. 27.

Merger of two large Chicago manufacturers of industrial gases—National Cylinder Gas company and Compressed Industrial Gases, Inc.—was indorsed yesterday by the directors of both companies, subject to approval by stockholders.

The merger proposal will be voted upon by the stockholders Aug. 27, according to an announcement made jointly by Charles J. Haines, president of National Cylinder, and Horace B. Pearson, president of Compressed Industrial Gases. They said the merger agreement had been signed.

Third and Fourth Largest.

National Cylinder will be the surviving company. It is the third largest company in its field, and Compressed Industrial Gases is the fourth largest, altho both are much smaller than the two leaders in the industry—Air Reduction Co., Inc., and Union Carbide and Carbon corporation. These two together produce about 85 per cent of the domestic output of industrial gases.

Assets to be combined in the proposed merger total about $11,000,000.

"The merger will permit economies of production and distribution, and greater research and service facilities," Haines and Pearson said.

Fix Share Exchange Basis.

They said that 1.45 shares of National Cylinder Gas stock will be issued for each share of Compressed Industrial Gases, except treasury shares. "This basis was arrived at on the earning ratios per share of the individual companies," the statement said. "Neither company has any bonded indebtedness or preferred stock, so the exchange will be one of common stocks only."

National Cylinder Gas has 21 plants which produce oxygen and nitrogen by liquefaction of air, and acetylene by treatment of calcium carbide with water. The plants are in Chicago, Peoria, Ill.; Milwaukee, St. Louis, Los Angeles, Detroit, Logansport, Ind.; Cleveland, Akron, O.; Columbus, O.; Dallas, Cincinnati, Corapolis, Pa.; McKeesport, Pa.; Hornell, N. Y.; Niagara Falls, North Bergen, N. J.; Memphis, Atlanta, Savannah, Ga., and New Orleans.

The main office is at 205 West Wacker drive. National Cylinder's net sales in 1939 were $4,944,767, and net income amounted to $1,001,306. At the end of last year total assets were stated at $6,921,532. Capitalization consists of 1,500,000 authorized shares of $1 par value common stock, of which 941,000 shares are outstanding.

Plants Widely Scattered.

Compressed Industrial Gases produces gases used in industry for welding and other purposes, such as cutting of metals. It also makes equipment for the use of the gases. Plants are in Chicago, Detroit, Fort Worth, Pittsburgh, Chattanooga, Oklahoma City, Kenosha, Wis., El Paso, Tex., Grand Rapids, Mich.; Fort Smith, Ark.; Evansville, Ind.; Conshohocken, Pa., and Shreveport, La.

The company's main office is at 221 North La Salle street. Last year Compressed Industrial Gases had net sales of $3,419,081, and net income of $322,870. As of Dec. 31, 1939, total assets were listed at $4,101,344. The company was incorporated under the laws of Delaware in 1928 as a holding company, but subsequently a number of wholly owned subsidiaries were liquidated and the corporation became an operating company.

Capitalization consists of $5 par value capital stock, of which 500,000 shares are authorized and 262,287 are outstanding.

WARD'S LEASES NEW BUILDING AT 113TH STREET

Montgomery Ward & Co. yesterday leased the one story building being erected at 11301-05 South Michigan avenue, in the Roseland business district, for 20 years beginning Sept. 1, 1940, at a term rental of $252,000.

According to present plans the new Ward store will be opened about the middle of September. It will be the company's BC type of store—carrying furniture, hardware, and tires. The building will be 80 by 155 feet, and will cost $60,000, it was said. It stands on the site of a department store which burned last December. The property is owned by Mary E. and Florence J. Morrissey, sisters. Cornelius Teninga, of Teninga & Co., was broker.

Bell Savings and Loan Assets Rise 13 Per Cent

Total assets of Bell Savings and Loan association increased $2,238,454, or 13.3 per cent during the first half of 1940, Arthur G. Erdmann, president, reported yesterday. Total assets on June 29 amounted to $18,992,346. Erdmann reported the first half of this year was the best six months in the association's history, loan volume totaling $4,091,066. Assets consist almost exclusively of first mortgages on residential real estate located in Chicago and the suburbs, Erdmann said.

Railroad Jobs, Pay Rolls Run Above Year Ago Level

Class 1 railroads at mid-April carried on their pay rolls a total of 985,039 employés, compared with 950,352 employés at the same time last year, the Interstate Commerce commission bureau of statistics reported yesterday. Total compensation paid in April was $155,485,785, against $144,962,740 a year earlier.

Boost Surplus of Continental Bank 5 Millions

Directors of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company yesterday voted to add $5,000,000 to the bank's surplus, thus raising the total capital and surplus to $85,000,000. At the same time the board authorized the payment of a dividend of $2 a share, to be distributed Aug. 1 to stockholders of record July 20.

Walter J. Cummings.

Walter J. Cummings, chairman, announced the action after the regular monthly meeting of directors.

The $2 dividend continues the rate that was established last February. Prior to that time the bank had been paying dividends at the rate of $1.50 semiannually, or $3 a year.

Use Undivided Profits.

The addition to surplus was made by the transfer of $5,000,000 from undivided profits. On June 29, the date of the bank's last published statement, undivided profits totaled $20,213,000. The transfer raised surplus to $35,000,000.

With the previously existing capital of $50,000,000 the combined capital and surplus totals $85,000,000. The capital is represented entirely by common stock, the last remaining preferred shares having been retired last Dec. 1.

Resources Above 1½ Billions.

The action of directors in raising the surplus account came shortly after the disclosure that the bank's total resources are in excess of $1,500,000,000. This was shown in the June 29 statement and was the first time that any Chicago bank had reported resources in excess of that figure. The indicated profit of the Continental in the first half of 1940 was $8,126,687, equal to $5.48 a share.

NAVY CONTRACTS OF 64 MILLIONS ARE LET IN DAY

Contracts totaling more than 64 million dollars, mostly for construction, were awarded yesterday by the navy department. The war department placed "educational" orders totaling $967,144 and including one of $70,235 to a Chicago company.

The navy awards were $11,050,000 for aviation facilities at Coco Solo, Canal Zone; aviation facilities at the Alameda, Cal., naval air station, $9,800,000; aviation; facilities, buildings, and dredging at various locations in the west coast, Pearl Harbor, Honolulu, and islands in the Pacific, $30,870,000; battery shop facilities at Philadelphia navy yard, $75,000; construction at San Diego, Cal., base, $1,630,000; machine shop extension at Norfolk, Va., $720,000; San Diego aviation facilities, $3,313,900, and in Puget Sound area $7,300,000 for aviation and storage facilities.

American Forge division of American Brake Shoe and Foundry company was the Chicago company which received one of the war department educational orders. The order was for shell forgings and related items.

REPORT INDIANA TO GET $30,000,000 POWDER PLANT

Washington, D. C., July 12 (AP).—Construction of a $30,000,000 plant in the Louisville, Ky., industrial area to produce smokeless powder was reported today to have been agreed upon by the war department and the du Pont Powder company.

Under the agreement the government would build the factory and the Du Pont interests operate it. Start of construction awaited final official approval. The plant would be on the Indiana side of the Ohio river.

The plant, first of four to be undertaken with emergency defense funds, is to have a daily capacity of 200,000 pounds, more than doubling the nation's entire existing output.

Persons familiar with the negotiations said it would employ an operating force of 4,000 or more persons.

British Pound Halts Long Decline to Gain 4½ Cents

Interrupting its week long decline, the British pound gained 4½ cents in relation to the United States dollar yesterday, closing at $3.71. The Canadian dollar closed 1¼ cents higher at 86.87½ cents.

ILLINOISAN NAMED CEA CHIEF AS SUCCESSOR OF DR. JOSEPH DUVEL

Washington, D. C., July 12 (AP).—Secretary Henry A. Wallace announced today that Dr. Joseph W. T. Duvel will be succeeded by Joseph M. Mehl as chief of the Commodity Exchange administration on Aug. 1.

Dr. Joseph W. T. Duvel.

Duvel, who has been with the department of agriculture for 38 years, will become associate chief and will devote most of his time until retirement to research. Wallace said the change with made at Duvel's request.

Mehl has been assistant chief of the CEA and has been with the department of agriculture for 20 years. He is a native of Douglas county, Ill.

EXCHANGE'S BAN ON DEALERS IS SET FOR SEPT. 1

New York Seeks to Guard Trade.

The New York Stock exchange yesterday set Sept. 1 as the date after which member firms are forbidden to act as dealers in its listed securities on other exchanges, including the Chicago exchange.

The ruling by the committee on member firms brings to life an unused section of the exchange constitution and carries out a decision reached by the board of governors last February. The purpose is to prevent the diversion of business from New York.

The ruling applies directly to 27 firms, including eight which have offices in Chicago.

Effect of Ruling.

In a letter to these enterprises, Howland S. Davis, executive vice president of the exchange, said:

"The effect of this ruling is that member firms may not act as 'dealers' and more particularly may not function as 'odd lot dealers' or 'specialists' on other exchanges in securities listed on the New York Stock exchange. Members and member firms may, of course, continue to accept orders from customers for execution on such other exchanges."

The big Chicago firms which will be affected by enforcement of the rule are Paul H. Davis & Co., Winthrop, Mitchell & Co., James H. Oliphant & Co., Wayne Hummer & Co., Faroll Brothers, Shields & Co., Mitchell, Hutchins & Co., and Rawson, Lizars & Co.

The Chicago membership was reported equipped to take over the work of the eight firms. Plans for substitutions as soon as the New York Stock exchange member firms resign as specialists here are understood to have been prepared for some time. No marked effect on trading in the 72 dually listed stocks in the Chicago exchange's optional odd lot system is expected.

Extensions May Be Granted.

Requests for temporary extension of the Sept. 1 date will be considered when member firms assert adjustments cannot be made in time, Davis said.

The ruling by the member firms committee completes the work of a special committee which spent several months studying the question of multiple trading on exchanges. That committee, which was headed by Robert L. Stott, has been disbanded.

Penalties for making a market in another city in a security listed in New York may be suspension or expulsion.

Announcement of the proposed ban in February started a controversy between many of the smaller exchanges and New York. An antitrust suit against the "Big Board" charging unreasonable restraint of interstate trade has been discussed.

Contention of Chicagoans.

Chicago brokers have contended that New York is not justified in attempting to monopolize trading in Commonwealth Edison and other issues primarily midwestern, which have gone to the eastern market in recent years. Chicago Stock exchange officials have directed attention to the fact that many of New York's most prominent security issues were originally listed in Chicago.

The attitude of the Chicago brokers is that New York already has a strangle hold on the business of buying and selling securities—its two markets accounting for 95 per cent of the volume for all exchanges of the United States—and should stop trampling the smaller exchanges.

To the little markets, the overflow business in dually-listed issues is of vital importance. Much of their volume in these issues consists of transactions of fewer than 100 shares, the "round lot" in New York.

FAYETTE COUNTY, (ILL.) GAS LEASE BRINGS $300,000

Vandalia, Ill., July 12 (AP).—The sale of the oil and gas lease on a 50 acre tract in Loudon township of Fayette county to the Bell Oil and Gas company of Lawrenceville for $300,000 was on record in the circuit clerk's office here today. The lease formerly was owned by the W. B. Johnston Drilling company and Paul Doran, drilling contractor and operator. Doran said the eight wells drilled on the south half of the lease known as the Goetting farm, already had produced $285,000 worth of oil.

Present production is from shallow sand formations, but deeper exploration by the new owner was expected.

Middle West Integration Hearing to Start July 29

Washington, D. C., July 12 (AP).—The securities commission today ordered the Middle West corporation integration hearing to reconvene July 29, but agreed to limit the evidence for the time being to the system's southwestern properties. These include properties controled principally by Central and Southwest Utilities company and American Public Service company. The commission denied a motion that it sit and hear the evidence instead of a trial examiner.

Forbid Sales of Foreign Stocks in Amsterdam

AMSTERDAM, July 12 (AP).—A new decree forbids dealing in foreign stocks when the Amsterdam exchange reopens next Monday. The newspaper Telegraaf said it was informed authoritatively dealing in certificates of American shares issued by the so-called Dutch administration offices would be permitted, altho no official quotations would be published.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Stocks.

New York, July 12 (AP).—Domestic political and European war problems continued speculative handicaps in today's stock market and leading issues shifted listlessly over a restricted area. Scattered stocks managed to emerge with small advances but these were overbalanced by declines of fractions.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues eased 0.1 point at 41.1. In the four preceding sessions the composite had remained at 41.2. Transfers of 255,990 shares were the second smallest for the week to date and compared with 328,330 yesterday. Of 574 individual stocks traded, 201 were lower, 186 higher, and 187 unchanged.

As in the last several days, blame for today's slow proceeding was laid mainly on the inclination of speculative interest to avoid heavy commitments pending next week's Democratic convention outcome and clarification of the foreign situation.

Pullman was one of the few losers of more than a point, seemingly reflecting action of the justice department in filing civil proceedings against this company to divorce manufacture from operation of sleeping cars.

Unchanged to lower were United States Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, General Electric, Anaconda, Consolidated Edison, Santa Fe, Sears-Roebuck, and Eastman Kodak. Advances were held by Bethlehem Steel, United Aircraft, American Telephone, Great Northern, Texas Corporation, Westinghouse, and Woolworth.

New York Bonds.

New York, July 12 (AP).—Bonds moved ahead again today despite little support from the stock market and a fair amount of week-end profit selling in recent leaders. Small new gains were recorded by the Associated Press rail and industrial averages. For the carriers it was the ninth consecutive rise.

Gainers, up fractions to around 2 points, included Boston & Maine 4¾s of '61 at 66, Canadian National railway 4½s at 83½, Atlantic Coast line collateral 4s at 61½, Walworth 4s at 55, and Southern Pacific 4½s of '60 at 56¼.

Down fractions to around a point were Bethlehem Steel 3½s, Pacific Telephone 3¼s of '66, Western Union 5s of '60, and Santa Fe 4s of '95. United States government loans idled at irregular levels, closing 6-32ds higher to 4-32ds lower.

French government 7½s lost 4¾ on small transactions. Loans of Italy, Japan, New South Wales, and Hungary advanced. German government unstamped 5½s of '65 dropped 4 points.

Transactions totaled $4,393,700 face value against $4,620,550 Thursday.

Chicago Stocks.

Trading dwindled to 9,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange, and declines outnumbered advances. Midland United preferred, which had a turnover of 800 shares, was the most active issue. It closed unchanged. Commonwealth Edison, of which 750 shares were traded, finished ¾ point lower.

Bank Stocks.

First National bank stock declined 3 points in over-the-counter trading in Chicago yesterday. Continental sagged 1½ points and other leading issues closed unchanged.

ICC PLAN WIPES OUT FRISCO R. R. STOCKHOLDERS

Provides Capitalization of 240 Millions.

Washington, D. C., July 12 (AP).—The Interstate Commerce commission issued today a plan of reorganization for the St. Louis-San Francisco railway calling for sharp reduction in capitalization and fixed interest charges and the elimination of present stockholders.

The plan provides a capitalization of $240,000,004 compared with the old capitalization of $388,680,293. It would reduce fixed interest charges from $12,613,106 to $3,000,117 annually.

The commission said the equities of the holders of both the common and preferred stock "are found to have no value," and made no provision for their participation in the reorganized company.

Equipments Undisturbed.

Of the total proposed capitalization, $75,685,319 would be fixed interest obligations.

The plan provides that the equipment obligations of the Frisco remains undisturbed.

New 30 year 4 per cent divisional mortgage bonds would be distributed in exchange, at par, to holders of the two issues of Kansas City, Memphis & Birmingham Railroad company bonds.

New securities would be distributed to holders of other outstanding bonds on the following basis for each $1,000 bond:

Fort Scott 4s, $614 in general mortgage bonds, $382 in second mortgage income bonds, $254 in preferred stock; prior lien 4s, $146 in general mortgage bonds, $117 in second mortgage income bonds, $241 in preferred stocks, $327 in common stock; prior lien 5s, $154 in first mortgage bonds, $124 in second mortgage income bonds, $255 in preferred stock, $364 in common stock; consolidated 4½s, $169 in first mortgage bonds, $122 in second mortgage income bonds, $195 in preferred stock, $170 in common stock; consolidated 6s, $185 in first mortgage bonds, $133 in second mortgage income bonds, $213 in preferred stock, $185 in common stock.

One Stock Group Recognized.

The only stockholders in the system who would receive anything for their shares are the holders of 100 shares of preferred stock of the Kansas City, Fort Scott & Memphis Railway company. They would receive a new preferred stock of the reorganized company on a par for par basis.

The claims of the Reconstruction Finance corporation and the Railroad Credit corporation are recognized by the allotment of first mortgage bonds. Because of the lack of assets free of mortgage lien, the commission said general creditors could be given nothing for their claims.

60 Days for Objections.

Interested parties have 60 days in which to petition the ICC for modification of the plan. At the end of that time it will be sent to the United States District court for the Eastern district of Missouri, where the railroad has been in reorganization for several years.

If approved by the court, the plan will be submitted to eligible security holders for their approval or rejection.

The road owns about 6,560 miles of track in Missouri, Kansas, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama, and Florida.

Certain-teed Products Uses More Modern Warehouse

Certain-teed Products corporation, manufacturer of roofing, wallboard, and gypsum products has moved its Chicago stocks into a more modern warehouse at 319-325 West 40th place in the Globe Manufacturing district. The company has carried its stocks at 2246 W. 49th street since 1928 when it took over the Beaver Products company. Its Chicago offices are at 105 W. Adams.

Rush Plane Output

Waco Aircraft company's YPT-14 type plane which will be used in the CAA training program.

Waco Aircraft company, Troy, O., announced yesterday its entire plant has gone on a 24 hour, three shift basis to fill an order for training planes for the Civil Aeronautics authority's secondary training program. The number to be built is indefinite, but at least 50 planes are to be delivered in the next 60 days.

ASSERTS PROPER INSURANCE CAN CUT ESTATE TAX

Helps Save Assets, Garwood Says.

Life insurance can be used effectively in estate planning to save taxes as well as to conserve assets, Morse Garwood, tax specialist, asserted in "Estate Planning to Minimize Taxes," just published by Prentice-Hall, Inc.

The book was prepared for the business man who desires to conserve his estate as well as for attorneys, life underwriters, and trust officers.

"In the well planned estate," the author said, "life insurance plays a prominent part. Life insurance is the best and safest means of providing cash, for regardless of whether the insured dies in times of depression or in times of prosperity the cash is there when it is needed."

Trust May Solve Problem.

The life insurance trust offers a common method of reducing the tax burden on an estate, Garwood indicated. If the insured person surrenders all his ownership rights in the insurance which will be turned over to a trust upon his death, the proceeds are not taxable.

"In the great majority of cases," he said, "the insurance trust will be found most desirable. It is more flexible, its terms and provisions are unlimited except for the laws of the state, and the trustee can be given discretionary powers.

"The trustee can use the proceeds of the insurance to purchase assets from the executors of the estate so that, regardless of market conditions, the insured's beneficiaries will suffer no loss."

Outlines Various Levies.

Garwood presented a simplified statement of the federal estate, gift, and income taxes applicable to the handling of an estate. In addition he supplemented the discussion with a description of the inheritance taxes imposed by the various states.

As a practical guide to estate planners, Garwood listed numerous illustrations of methods thru which taxes can be minimized without sacrificing the wishes of the person creating the estate.

"A plan which has for its purpose the avoidance of taxes may very well be a trap for the unwary taxpayer," he warned. "Many times the courts have held that some scheme failed in its purpose to avoid taxes because no reason or purpose could be found for the transaction involved except the desire to escape tax."

DAIRY AND POULTRY PRODUCTS IN STORAGE

Holdings of butter in refrigerated warehouses on July 1 were the third smallest for the date in the last 10 years, the United States Department of Agriculture reported yesterday:

Eggs moved into storage during June at the best rate since 1931 but holdings on July 1 fell short of the 10-year average.

Reserve supplies of dairy and poultry products compare as follows:

	July 1	Preceding month	Yr. ago
Butter, lbs.	80,842	25,463	131,009
*Eggs, cases	7,509	5,980	6,977
Frozen eggs, lbs.	150,207	123,793	141,456
Frozen poultry, case equivalent	4,293	3,537	4,042
Total case equival. shell and frozen eggs	11,801	9,517	11,019
Cheese, lbs.	96,247	73,056	81,262
Poultry, lbs.	82,380	76,904	67,470

*Eggs shown in cases of 30 dozens.

Creamery butter figures July 1 include 2,155,000 pounds held by the Surplus Marketing association and various states for relief purposes. Shell egg figures July 1 include 933,000 cases held by the S.M.A. and various states for relief purposes. S.M.A. was formerly called the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation.

LARGE AMERICAN STAKE IMPERILED IN NAZI RUMANIA

Investments and Loans Total 163 Millions.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, July 12 (AP).—A stake of $163,000,000 which Americans have in Rumania is bound to be affected strongly by the sudden transformation of King Carol's monarchy into a totalitarian state.

Since Rumania renounced her British-French connections, set up a government on the Nazi model and threw in her lot with Germany and Italy, the American colony here has expressed deep concern over what will happen to $36,000,000 in United States investments and $127,000,000 in United States loans.

Most of this second figure—$122,000,000—is a world war loan, principal and interest.

Investments Are Diversified.

Many ties link Rumania and the United States. Most Rumanian automobiles come from America. Each time a Rumanian makes a telephone call he rings an American telephone. One of the largest oil companies is American owned. Most of Rumania's movies are turned out in Hollywood, and shops until recently were full of American magazines, cosmetics, and gadgets.

War in the Mediterranean already has ended an exchange of goods in which $5,000,000 in American manufactures were sold annually to Rumania, which in turn shipped back about $2,000,000 worth of raw materials. Commercial men see little possibility of this trade returning, for under Nazi domination Rumania would get her automobiles, face powder, and can openers from Adolf Hitler's third reich.

Perils Dividend Payments.

The possibility that Rumania's foreign trade in the future will be done on a clearing basis under Berlin's domination immediately raises the question of how American owners of stock in Rumanian corporations will receive their dividends. In the past it was possible to pay these dividends because of Rumania's favorable trade balance with free exchange countries such as Britain and France.

Under the continental economic system which diplomats expect will follow the war, all trade would be done by clearing and all dividends would be paid only in marks or lei [the Rumanian monetary unit], which could not be exported to the United States either as goods or in gold.

There are further complications in the recent decree prohibiting the sale of stock in Rumanian oil corporations without government permission. American oil men hope that leniency will be shown United States interests in the application of this law. United States oil investments here total 26 million dollars.

Other American Interests.

The entire Rumanian telephone system is American owned and managed, with more than $8,000,000 of United States savings invested there and another $1,000,000 in a subsidiary manufacturing company.

Other United States interests include:

The Ford Motor Company of Rumania, with $400,000 in capital, owned by a Luxemburg holding company which in turn is owned by Ford of Great Britain, which is said to be 60 per cent American financed.

International Harvester, with about $150,000 in American capital tied up in equipment.

Miscellaneous United States engineering firms, with combined investments of $1,000,000, largely in oil well machinery.

The British caption says this picture was taken from a royal air force coastal plane, showing the path of a submarine trying to escape from the area.

Churning of the water, according to the British caption, indicates that bombs dropped from a British plane scored a direct hit on the submerged enemy submarine.
